DECLARATION OF MARCUS A. CONANT, M.D.

I, Dr. Marcus A. Conant, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California and a clinical professor of dermatology at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco ["UCSF"], where I have taught for more than 30 years. I am also Medical Director of the largest private HIV/AIDS practice in the San Francisco Bay Area. Since establishing that practice, my colleagues and I have treated some 5,000 HIV-infected men and women, and we currently provide care for approximately 3,000 AIDS patients in both our clinic and our research facility.

2. I received a bachelor's degree in 1957 and a doctorate in 1961, both from Duke University. I subsequently completed an internship in internal medicine at the Duke University Medical Center (1961-1962), and a residency in dermatology at UCSF in San Francisco (1964-1967). I received further training at the School of Aerospace Medicine in San Antonio, Texas, and served in the United States Air Force from 1962 to 1964, as both a Medical Officer and a Flight Surgeon. I continued to serve as an Air Force Reserve Officer until 1967.

3. Since joining the UCSF faculty as a Clinical Instructor in 1967, I have held numerous positions, including Assistant Clinical Professor, Associate Clinical Professor, and Clinical Professor of Dermatology, a post I have held since 1984. I was Chief of both the Dermatology Clinic and the Dermatology Inpatient Service from 1967 through 1970, Co-Director of the Medical Center's Kaposi's Sarcoma Clinic (1981-1985), and Director of its AIDS Clinical Research Center (1983-1985). I am currently an Adjunct Professor at its Mount Zion Medical Center as well.

1           4.       Throughout my career, I have also been a consultant to numerous agencies and 2 service providers, both public and private, including San Francisco General Hospital, the U S 3 Public Health Service Hospital, UC Medical Center's Director of Hospitals and Clinics, and 4 the California State Assembly Ways and Means Committee's AIDS Task Force. I have been 5 appointed to similar task forces and committees of the Fifth Congressional District, the 6 California State Department of Health Services, the California Medical Association, the San 7 Francisco Medical Society, the American Academy of Dermatology, and the City of San 8 Francisco. In 1983, I represented the United States at the World Health Organization meeting
9 on AIDS. I served as Medical Director of the National Public Health Project Against AIDS
10 for several years. I am currently a member of United States Senator Dianne Feinstein's AIDS 11 Committee.

13           5.       I have authored and co-authored some 70 articles in scholarly and professional 14 journals, most of which deal with the diagnosis and treatment of AIDS and AIDS-related 15 conditions. My work has been published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, 16 New England Journal of Medicine, Western Journal of Medicine, Journal of the American 17 Academy of Dermatology, Journal of Infectious Disease, American Journal of Clinical 18 Pathology, Journal of Clinical Immunology, Journal of Osteopathic Medicine, American 19 Journal of Oral Medicine, Public Health Reports, Clinical Research, American Journal of 20 Pathology, and The Lancet. My colleagues and I have contributed chapters to medical 21 textbooks, research publications, clinical protocols and conference reports. I am a frequent 22 presenter at national and international conferences and congresses. ER1453

25           6.       Many of the therapies used in the treatment of AIDS-related conditions can 26 cause symptoms and medical complications which themselves are physically painful and 27 medically dangerous. The most frequently cited example is chemotherapy, which is often a 28

1 first-line treatment in the aggressive treatment of cancer. Chemotherapy has also been used in 2 the treatment of several common AIDS-related conditions, including lymphoma and Kaposi's 3 sarcoma. Chemotherapy -- administering medications such as adriamycin, fluorouracil, 4 cytotoxin and methotrexate, usually in combination -- has proven to be highly effective in the 5 treatment of many cancers, extending lives and relieving the symptoms of many individuals 6 whose conditions were once considered hopeless. These medications have been approved by 7 the FDA. Nonetheless, chemotherapy protocols used in the treatment of cancer often cause 8 nausea and retching which is sometimes thoroughly disabling. They can result in severe 9 weight loss, which itself has troubling implications not only for the efficacy of the treatment, 10 but for a patient's health generally. The medications are indeed toxic. Administration of 11 these drugs always includes considering potential adverse effects, advising the patient of the 12 risks and providing information and treatment to reduce harmful or undesirable side effects.
13 Acknowledgment and clinical treatment of those effects are standard and necessary parts of 14 the chemotherapy protocols.
15

17 7. Other drugs frequently prescribed in the treatment of AIDS-related conditions 18 have the potential to cause adverse medical conditions. Among them are AZT, ddI, ddC and 19 d4T, all of which are approved by the FDA. More recently, physicians have prescribed a 20 class of drugs known as "protease inhibitors," often in combination with other medications.
21 The results have been very promising. Physicians are seeing positive clinical results, and 22 laboratory findings (blood tests) show remarkable improvements. Many patients report great 23 relief from physical suffering. These drugs are now approved by the FDA. One common 24 AIDS-related condition is wasting syndrome, which undermines both the immune system 25 generally and a patient's ability to withstand the effects of other therapies. The FDA has

27 /// 28

ER1454

1 approved the use of Somatropin (human growth syndrome), as well as Megace and Marinol, 2 to reverse the disabling effects of wasting syndrome.

3 8. As with all medications, further research is essential to our understanding of 4 these medications. As research continues, the use of these medications (e.g., dosages, means 5 of ingestion, combination therapies) will be refined to maximize the potential for treatment 6 and minimize adverse reactions. That is the very nature of research. There are always risks
8 As scientists, we identify those risks and provide information to reduce and ultimately 9 eliminate those risks. As healers, we advise our patients accordingly and work with them to 10 address their individual medical needs. Caution and candor are essential to maintaining 11 scientific integrity and providing effective treatment.

12 9. Medical marijuana has been used extensively by physicians throughout the 13 United States in the treatment of cancer and AIDS patients. It stimulates the appetite and 14 promotes weight gain, in turn strengthening the body, combating chronic fatigue, and 15 providing the stamina and physical well-being necessary to endure or withstand both adverse 16 side effects of ongoing treatment and other opportunistic infections. It has been shown 17 effective in reducing nausea, neurological pain and anxiety, and in stimulating appetite.
19 When these symptoms are associated with (or caused by) other therapies, marijuana has been 20 useful in facilitating compliance with more traditional therapies. It may also allow individual 21 patients to engage in normal social interactions and avoid the despair and isolation which 22 frequently accompanies long-term discomfort and illness. In glaucoma patients, marijuana 23 has been effective in decreasing inter-ocular pressure. The evidence behind these findings is 24 both scientific and anecdotal. The research in this area has been documented and published in 25 the leading scientific journals, including the New England Journal of Medicine and Annals of 26 Internal Medicine.

1           10.     In my practice, marijuana has been of greatest benefit to patients with wasting 2 syndrome. I do not routinely recommend marijuana to my patients, nor do I consider it the 3 first line of defense against AIDS-related symptoms. However, for some patients, marijuana 4 proves to be the only effective medicine for stimulating appetite and suppressing nausea, thus 5 allowing the AIDS patient to recover lost body mass and become healthier. Likewise, for 6 some of my patients undergoing chemotherapy, when conventional drugs fail to relieve the 7 severe nausea and vomiting, I often find that marijuana provides the patient with the ability to 8 eat and to tolerate aggressive cancer treatments. As with any medication, I am aware of the 9 potential for abuse and I am cautious in the information I provide. Some of my patients are 10 using marijuana, which I learn in the course of my treatment. I advise those patients of the 11 risks that marijuana may pose. In some instances, I have counseled patients to discontinue or 12 decrease their use of marijuana. In patients with a history of substance abuse, I am especially 13 vigilant in recommending caution. Physicians have always been held to that standard, 14 whether the medication is Valium, morphine, Xanax, or marijuana. Safeguards to decrease 15 the incidence and effects of substance abuse are already in effect. Medical practices in 16 prescribing and recommending all treatments are monitored and subject to professional and 17 legal guidelines.

20           11.     It is the sanctity of the doctor-patient relationship that enables this counseling 21 and guidance to take place. The unique nature of that relationship has been recognized 22 throughout history. Legally, ethically and clinically, a physician has unique duties to a 23 patient in his or her care. When I treat a patient with a potentially terminal condition, I 24 provide the information and treatment that can literally determine whether my patient lives or 25 dies. My duty is to provide accurate and complete information and treat each patient 26 according to his or her individual symptoms, medical history and clinical responses. Each

ER1456

1 patient's medical needs are unique, as are his/her responses to specific therapies. Confidential 2 communication is essential to this process.

3 12. As a physician responsible for the care and well-being of my patients, I cannot 4 ignore information which might affect my assessment of a patient's condition or assist me in 5 providing the best care possible. If I have knowledge that a patient is smoking marijuana, I 6 would be seriously remiss if I failed to address the medical consequences with that patient. If 7 I have information that limited use of marijuana may provide relief from disabling symptoms, 8 I feel duty-bound to provide that information. If I believe, in my clinical judgment, that the 9 risks to that patient may be reduced if the marijuana is ingested by means other than smoking 10 (e.g., by eating baked goods or drinking a tea with marijuana infusion), I have a duty to 11 provide that information as well. That knowledge is based on my scientific knowledge, 12 clinical judgment, and common sense.

15 13. My knowledge and clinical judgment are informed by all credible sources, 16 including the federal Food and Drug Administration. I was one of the principal investigators 17 of an FDA-supervised trial conducted by Unimed, Inc. on the safety and efficacy of Marinol 18 as an appetite stimulant in HIV/AIDS patients suffering from wasting syndrome. Marinol is a 19 form of THC, one of the key active components of marijuana, it is essentially a marijuana 20 extract. It was approved by the FDA five years ago, and has been widely prescribed by 21 physicians treating both AIDS and cancer patients.

23 14. The current edition of the Physician's Desk Reference, the most widely-used 24 and comprehensive authority on prescription medications, states that:

25 Marinol (dronabinol) is indicated for the treatment of:

- 26 1. anorexia associated with weight loss in patients with AIDS; and 27 2. nausea and vomiting associated with cancer chemotherapy in patients who

1 have failed to respond adequately to conventional antiemetic treatments <sup>1</sup> 2 Stedman's Medical Dictionary, another highly respected and widely-used reference work, as 3 part of its definition of "cannabis," includes the following:

4 C[annabis] was formerly used as a sedative and analgesic, now available for 5 restricted use in management of iatrogenic<sup>2</sup> anorexia, especially that associated 6 with oncologic chemotherapy and radiation therapy.<sup>3</sup>

7 I am aware of no medical report that would indicate serious adverse effects arising from the 8 clinical use of Marinol.

9 15. I am aware, however, that Marinol (like any medication) is not effective in 10 treating all patients. In some cases, the reason is simple: Marinol is taken orally, in pill form.
11 Patients suffering from severe nausea and retching cannot tolerate the pills and thus do not 12 benefit from the drug. There are likely other reasons why smoked marijuana is sometimes 13 more effective than Marinol. The body's absorption of the chemical may be faster or more 14 complete when inhaled. Means of ingestion is often critical in understanding treatment 15 efficacy. Research has revealed, for example, that insulin, which is critical in the treatment of 16 diabetes, is rendered ineffective when taken orally. Medications commonly used to treat 17 asthma and lung infections are routinely administered through inhalers. Marinol is not 18 currently available in any form other than pills. These are scientific facts which inform my 19 clinical practice. I cannot ignore them or deprive my patients of that knowledge.

22 16. I am aware that federal government officials have issued threats of criminal, 23 civil and administrative sanctions against physicians who recommend the use of marijuana or counsel and advise patients regarding the clinical risks and benefits of marijuana. They have repeatedly stated that providing counsel and advice regarding the clinical use of marijuana is a violation of federal law. I see these public pronouncements as a threat to the integrity of my medical practice. While there are certainly limitations on my ability to obtain or prescribe medications, I cannot ethically withhold information or scientific data which may be of benefit to my patients. If I am prohibited from advising my patients on any matter affecting their health, I am unable to exercise clinical judgment and provide effective treatment.

17. Such interference in my communications with individual patients can do immeasurable damage to my relationship with specific patients, thereby undermining my ability to provide effective treatment generally. Without the element of mutual trust and protected confidentiality, many of my patients will be unable or unwilling to provide me with information essential to my medical assessment. As a result, I am disarmed in my struggle against illness and suffering. They are deprived of basic medical information which could inform their behavior and relieve their disabilities. In light of the recent government threats, I have already limited my discussions with patients and directed my staff (including other physicians) to use extreme caution when obtaining medical histories or answering patient inquiries about marijuana. Even this degree of wariness and apprehension has a chilling effect on my rapport with patients. They see me as part of their fight for life. Government threats disarm me in that struggle, and it is my patients who will ultimately suffer.

18. I have already stated that marijuana has proven effective in addressing many symptoms caused by medically prescribed treatments. The adverse affects of these therapies are particularly troubling to both the patient and the physician. In my practice, I frequently recommend treatments which, in the short term, may result in increased discomfort and visible suffering. They may also have adverse implications for the patient's long-term health

1 I cannot, in good faith, recommend these procedures and medications without a professional 2 commitment to decrease, prevent or reduce the effects of these conditions.

3 19. Failure to consider every possible means of alleviating adverse side effects has 4 very serious implications. When a patient can no longer tolerate the adverse consequences, 5 she or he will cease treatment. I have seen it many times in my own practice and my 6 colleagues report it consistently. It is a tragic fact which we monitor and assess constantly.
7 In the case of chemotherapy and many AIDS medications, terminating treatment can mean an 8 early and often painful death. It results in hopelessness where there should be, or could be, 9 hope. As a scientist and a healer, preventable suffering and unnecessary despair are 10 unacceptable.

11 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and 12 the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, and 13 that this declaration was executed this 14 day of February, 1997 in San Diego 14 California.

DECLARATION OF NEIL M. FLYNN, M.D.

I, Dr. Neil M. Flynn, declare as follows:

1. I am a Professor of Clinical Medicine in the Division of Infectious Diseases of the Department of Internal Medicine at the University of California at Davis School of Medicine. I also serve as attending physician in the University Medical Center's AIDS and Related Disorders Clinic. I received my B.A. in bacteriology from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1970, graduated from the Ohio State University Medical School in 1973, and did my internship and residency in internal medicine at Loma Linda University Hospital from 1973-76. I completed a fellowship in infectious diseases at the University of California at Davis from 1976-78 and was awarded my Master of Public Health from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1994. I am licensed to practice medicine in the State of California.

2. I am a member in good standing of several professional societies including the American Public Health Association; Infectious Diseases Society of America; American College of Physicians; and the American Society for Microbiology. I am board certified in Internal Medicine and in Infectious Diseases.

3. In addition, I have served on numerous hospital and medical school committees at the University of California, Davis (UCD). Currently, I am the Chairperson for the UCD Human Subjects Review Committee, and a member of the Chancellor's Committee on AIDS. Previously, I have served as a member of the Department of Internal Medicine Quality Assurance Committee, the Medical Director of the AIDS & Related Disorders Clinic, and Chair of the Infection Control Committee.

4. Among the awards I have received are the ACP Humanitarian Award (1995), Sacramento Regional Pride Award (1991), Lambda Community Award (1988), Kaiser

1 Foundation Hospitals Award for Excellence in Teaching Clinical Sciences (1986), 2 Outstanding Staff Award at UCD Medical Center (1982-83), and the Roessler Foundation 3 Research Scholarship Award (1972-73). I have successfully sought hundreds of thousands of 4 dollars in grant money to pursue research on HIV and AIDS since establishing the UCD 5 Clinic in 1983.

7 5. The continuation of this research depends upon my ability to obtain future 8 grants from both private and public sources. I am the principal author or co-author of 9 numerous articles and book chapters in the area of infectious diseases. My writings have 10 appeared in such journals as The New England Journal of Medicine, Journal of the American 11 Medical Association, Western Journal of Medicine, Life Sciences, Annals of the New York
12 Academy of Sciences, and Journal of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndromes. I have also 13 delivered numerous lectures at professional symposia, in this and other countries, including 14 the Third through Tenth International Conferences on AIDS.

16 6. Through the University's AIDS Clinic and the Center for AIDS Research, 17 Education and Services (CARES), a private, non-profit clinic for treatment of HIV infection 18 and disease, I participate in the care of approximately 1,500 AIDS patients. I am the primary 19 physician for 200 AIDS patients.

21 7. Intractable nausea and wasting syndrome are frequent symptoms associated 22 with AIDS and the treatment of AIDS. The nausea, which can last for days, weeks or months, 23 is one of the most severe forms of discomfort or pain that the human being can experience. It 24 destroys the quality of life of the patient, whose sole objective is to make it through the next 25 hour, the next day. Racked by intense vomiting and queasiness, time for the patient seems to 26 stand still. Wasting can take a similar psychological and physical toll.

27 ///

1 8. For patients suffering intractable nausea and/or wasting, my first concern is to 2 relieve these symptoms. If I fail to do so, the patient is increasingly likely to decide that life 3 is simply intolerable. I have had patients whose nausea and/or wasting were so disabling that 4 they preferred death. As a physician, I try my utmost to avoid this end result.

5 9. Fortunately, I often can relieve the patient's acute suffering and, thereby, 6 restore her quality of life to an acceptable level. My first line of therapy for acute nausea 7 involves the use of Compazine or Reglan. Sometimes these traditional anti-emetics do not 8 work, either because they fail to reduce the nausea and/or the patient does not tolerate them 9 well. The drugs themselves have side effects, and can cause impairments in a patient's fine 10 and gross motor skills. As a result, patients sometimes move in a slow, stiffened manner.
11 Their faces may appear frozen. And they can develop severe muscle contractions. Many of 12 these side effects are similar to those experienced by patients treated with Thorazine and 13 Haldol. I have also tried prescribing a newer drug called ondansetron which was developed 14 specifically for the treatment of chemotherapy-induced nausea. The success of ondansetron 15 varies greatly among patients. Lastly, benzodiazepines can be tried.

16 10. If I am unable to relieve the patient's nausea with the above remedies, I next 17 prescribe Marinol, a synthetic version of THC, one of the main active compounds found in 18 marijuana. Marinol is also helpful in stimulating appetite in patients suffering from AIDS 19 wasting, as are other drugs, Megace, anabolic steroids, and human growth hormone.

20 11. If Marinol does not provide adequate relief from nausea and/or wasting, I may 21 suggest that the patient try a related remedy, marijuana. I firmly believe that medical 22 marijuana is medically appropriate as a drug of last resort for a small number of seriously ill 23 patients. Over 20 years of clinical experience persuade me of this fact. The anecdotal 24 evidence is overwhelming. Almost every patient I have known to have tried marijuana
27
28

1 achieved relief from symptoms with it. That success rate far surpasses that for Compazine.
2 Accordingly, as with any other medication that I consider potentially beneficial to my 3 patients, I must discuss the option of medical marijuana in detail when appropriate. Anything 4 less is malpractice.

6 12. For those patients for whom I believe marijuana is an appropriate remedy, I 7 discuss the various ways in which marijuana can be ingested. Smoking marijuana is the most 8 direct, rapid, and accurate delivery of the drug. But smoking has the drawback of putting 9 particulate matter in the patient's lungs. This is of concern to me because studies show that 10 AIDS patients who are heavy cigarette smokers shorten their life spans by about 2 years. It is 11 not unreasonable to surmise that heavy marijuana smoking could lead to similar results.
12 Nevertheless, smoking may be the most accurate way to deliver a number of drugs, including 13 nicotine or marijuana. Furthermore, there are ways of reducing particulate intake, for 14 example through the use of water pipes which tend to filter the smoke, and consumption of 15 unadulterated marijuana.

17 13. I inform my patients that they may try eating marijuana. But this, too, is not 18 without difficulties similar to those experienced by many patients who try Marinol. Eating 19 marijuana (or ingesting a Marinol capsule) can cause unpredictable results because the 20 absorption of the THC can either be rapid or delayed, depending on whether the patient 21 ingests the marijuana on a full stomach. The same is true for drinking marijuana tea.

23 14. In my experience, the unpleasant side effects that some patients experience 24 from marijuana, however it is ingested, are far less severe than the side effects experienced 25 from Compazine and Reglan and similar drugs. Nor do I have to worry about harmful drug 26 interactions with patients who use therapeutic doses of marijuana: to my knowledge, there 27 are none. If a patient presents with both nausea and anxiety, I can prescribe Compazine and 28

1 Valium. However, marijuana can effectively treat both conditions simultaneously. It is not at 2 all clear to me that the combination of Compazine and Valium, both of which are toxic, the 3 latter of which is addictive, is better than marijuana alone.

5 15. As the above approach illustrates, I begin treating my AIDS patients by 6 listening to their complaints and concerns. For symptoms such as intractable nausea and 7 wasting syndrome, I first prescribe those medications that are legal. If these medications do 8 not work, or prove intolerable, I then discuss the option of medical marijuana, which appears 9 near the bottom of my cascade of options. But because I consider marijuana a legitimate 10 medical option at all, I stand squarely in the cross-hairs of the federal government's official 11 policy against medical marijuana and the doctors who recommend it. The government's 12 threats to sanction physicians who, in their best medical judgment, recommend marijuana to 13 treat a seriously ill patient are threats against me.

15 16. AIDS medicine is my profession and my passion. I have dedicated myself to 16 this disease since 1983 when I opened the Clinic at U.C. Davis. Thus, I am deeply concerned 17 about civil and criminal sanctions that loom over me. I do not want my job to be taken away 18 by some government official who has a different medical paradigm than I, many of my 19 colleagues, or for that matter, the majority of California voters. If I lost my Schedule II 20 license, my ability to provide care for people with AIDS -- 80% of my patients -- would be 21 severely compromised. I write 30-50 narcotic prescriptions per month for my seriously ill 22 patients. I would no longer be able to do so if my DEA license were revoked.

24 17. I feel compelled and coerced by the government threats to withhold 25 information, recommendations, and advice to patients regarding the use of medical 26 marijuana. This state of affairs is unacceptable in medicine. My patients come to me seeking 27 relief from pain or suffering or the threat of death or disability. Their complex and severe

1 illnesses are often complicated by difficult personal situations. The government's threats 2 inject yet another complication into the mix.

3 18. The threats erect a barrier between me and the patient. Yet the patient's trust 4 is essential if I am to provide the best medical care possible. If, in an attempt to protect me 5 from government sanctions, patients refrain from discussing the fact that they find relief from 6 marijuana, I lose an opportunity to suggest that they try Marinol (if they have not done so 7 already). Marinol, which is legal and covered by health insurance, can save the patient 8 considerable money and anxiety, if it works. Similarly, if patients do not inform me that they 9 can only control their nausea with marijuana, I remain ignorant of the full extent of the side 10 effects of their illness or medications and miss the chance to change patients' bothersome 11 medications in order to lessen or eliminate the nausea for which they have resorted to

15 19. More fundamentally, I need to know how much pain my patients suffer. If I 16 don't know this, I cannot perform my job effectively. If a patient, because of the 17 government's threats, fails to inform me that s/he uses marijuana for nausea or wasting, but 18 the marijuana is not very effective (although perhaps more effective and less deleterious than 19 prescription medications), perhaps the patient is not using potent enough marijuana. As a 20 physician, it is my duty to inquire into this possibility, and, where appropriate, suggest trying 21 a different type of marijuana.

23 20. Protease inhibitors, the newest and perhaps most effective drugs in the battle 24 against AIDS, are beginning to lose their efficacy in some AIDS patients. When this happens, 25 wasting syndrome, a potentially deadly process, begins. Body mass lost to wasting is difficult 26 to regain. Therefore, it is preferable to stop wasting as early in the process as possible. To 27 effectively treat wasting, I must know when wasting starts and at what pace it occurs. Thus, it 28

1 is important to know if a patient is combating wasting with marijuana. Such behavior signals 2 that I should consider prescribing other drugs, such as Megace or anabolic steroids. The 3 government's threats, however, hamper the free exchange of information and advice 4 necessary to an accurate and comprehensive diagnosis of the patient's condition.

6 21. The government's threats have been the subject of discussion among my 7 colleagues who provide care to AIDS patients in the greater Sacramento area. As a general 8 policy, a group of physicians who treat approximately 1,200 AIDS patients decided to speak 9 with their seriously ill patients about the benefits and drawbacks of medical marijuana, but 10 not to record this information to protect the patient from government recrimination which 11 could cause them far greater harm than the use of the drug itself. The policy also aimed to 12 protect physicians and the institutions with which they are affiliated from government 13 sanctions or liability. Such a policy -- don't chart, just tell -- flies in the face of how doctors 14 are trained, and is not necessarily in the patient's best interest. If salient facts regarding the 15 patient's medical condition and treatment do not appear in the patient's chart, a consulting 16 physician or the patient's next physician may be deprived of critical facts necessary to 17 provide adequate care. Doctors need every bit of information available to treat their seriously 18 ill patients.

21 22. The absence of information in a patient's chart also robs doctors of the ability 22 to scientifically study the efficacy of marijuana in the treatment of various symptoms. If only 23 every fifth patient chart accurately reflects the fact that Compazine failed as an anti-nauseant 24 and the patient successfully resorted to medical marijuana, while, in reality every third patient 25 presented with this history, the medical landscape which scientists analyze is deeply distorted.
26 What we cannot see we conclude to be nonexistent. Thus, the government's calls for further 27 research of marijuana are undermined by its concurrent threats against physicians which 28

1 result in the suppression of the data on which such research depends. The failure to record 2 medical history in patient charts risks perverting scientific attempts to assess the use and 3 efficacy of marijuana.

4 23. Doctors neither want to overdramatize nor obfuscate what they learn from their 5 patients. Doctors should be free to record the information they learn and their ideas as they 6 arise. We frequently do not understand everything we see or hear the first time we see or hear 7 it. In my patient charts I sometimes write "Puzzling" or "not clear" if I am unsure of the 8 significance of what I am observing or being told. I then can follow up and try to discover its 9 true significance.

10 24. Physicians often consult with one another and discuss our various options of 11 treatment and talk anecdotally about our patients' therapies, including their use of marijuana.
12 We try to find the most effective, least toxic medications for our patients. When faced with a 13 choice of equivalency, we opt for the least toxic treatment. When one medication is more 14 toxic than another, but is also more effective, we discuss this fact with patients, and they pick 15 the preferred course of action. Medicine is a constant process of adjustment. When advising 16 a patient, I do not simply have my next move in mind, I have my next three or four moves in 17 mind. I develop a sequence of options, in case my next move doesn't work. "If this hasn't 18 worked in 2-3 days," I tell the patient, "we'll try something else."

19 25. Two of my colleagues have told me that they feel so constrained by the 20 government threats that they will not talk with their seriously ill patients about marijuana until 21 the issue is resolved legally.

22 26. The government's policy and threats make criminals out of people who are 23 suffering from life-threatening illnesses. This stigmatization is unnecessary. The 24 government permits doctors to prescribe narcotics, such as morphine, for the relief of pain.

1 To single out doctors who recommend or patients who use medical marijuana -- a substance 2 almost certainly less addictive than many narcotics, not to mention alcohol and nicotine -- is 3 irrational. Benzodiazapines and barbiturates are more addictive, and far more dangerous than 4 marijuana with respect to their ability to induce death due from overdose.

6 27. The federal government and the public have little to fear from physicians 7 abusing their recommendations or prescriptions of marijuana. The vast majority of physicians 8 dispense morphine or Valium, much more powerful drugs, without incident. It has 9 traditionally been the province of state governments to curb abusive practices of physicians.
10 In California, the Board of Medical Quality Assurance polices the state's medical 11 practitioners. If a physician administers drugs in an irresponsible manner, an investigation 12 will ensue. If the abuse is egregious, the doctor's license to practice will be revoked. There 13 is no reason to believe that these same policing mechanisms would not be effective for 14 marijuana.

16 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States and the State of 17 California that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

DECLARATION OF MILTON N. ESTES, M.D.

I, Dr. Milton N. Estes, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California. I received both my undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of Chicago and completed my post-graduate medical training at St. Luke's Hospital, San Francisco. I am board certified by the American Board of Family Practice, and licensed to practice in the State of California. I am a member of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the California Academy of Family Physicians, the California Medical Association, and the Marin Medical Society.

2. From 1971 through 1974, I was Medical Director of the Orange Cove Family Health Center, a federally funded health clinic serving rural farm workers. Since 1974, I have maintained a private family practice in Mill Valley, California. In recent years, I have become the largest private provider of HIV care in Marin County. Since 1995, I have been Medical Director and Senior Physician for the Forensic AIDS Project. The Forensic AIDS Project, operated by the Department of Public Health of the City and County of San Francisco, provides early intervention, education, and medical care for inmates who are HIV-positive or who have AIDS.

3. I am presently an Attending Physician with active duties at Marin General Hospital. My previous hospital experience includes being Chair of the Department of Family Practice at Marin General Hospital, and Attending Physician at both Ross General and Mt. Zion Hospitals, and the California Pacific Medical Center (San Francisco).

4. My academic appointments include Clinical Instructor in Family Practice and Assistant Clinical Professor of Family Medicine at the University of California-Davis (1972-84), and Associate Clinical Professor in the Department of Obstetrics, Gynecology & Reproductive Medicine at the University of California-San Francisco (1983-present).

5. I serve on several professional and community boards, include many years as a member of the Oncology Committee (1990-present), Bioethics Committee (1993-present), and AIDS Task Force (1986-present) at Marin General Hospital, as well as the Medical Advisory Board of the Coalition for the Medical Rights of Women (1984-1987). I currently serve as both the chair of Marin General Hospital's AIDS Task Force and the Marin Medical Society's AIDS Committee. I have been a member of the Marin AIDS Advisory Commission since its inception in 1987. For the past twenty years, I have lectured widely on issues of medical ethics, HIV and AIDS. In 1989, I was named Physician of the Year by the Marin Medical Society. In 1990, I received the Benjamin Dreyfus Award from the Marin Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, and in 1992, I received the Martin Luther King Humanitarian Award by the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

6. Last month, one of the most prestigious medical journals in the world, The New England Journal of Medicine, published an editorial that confirmed what practicing clinicians have long known: that relatively small amounts of marijuana can provide striking relief from intractable nausea, vomiting, pain, and anorexia that frequently plague persons suffering from cancer, AIDS, and other serious illnesses.

7. Shortly before that editorial, the nation's top law enforcement officials, joined remarkably by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, announced before cameras that they would bring the full force of government authority to bear on physicians who in their best medical judgment recommend medical marijuana to their seriously ill patients.

8. As a result of the government's public threats, I do not feel comfortable even discussing the subject of medical marijuana with my patients. I feel vulnerable to federal sanctions that could strip me of my license to prescribe the treatments my patients depend upon, or even land me behind bars. I am worried that a government agent, posing as a patient,

1 will try to infiltrate my office in order to provoke a statement that the federal government
2 considers dangerous but which I, as well as thousands of my colleagues, the New England
3 Journal of Medicine and the voters of California, regard as sound medicine. As a result, I am 4 somewhat less trusting of new patients. I am also concerned that a former patient who may 5 himself feel vulnerable, or one who suffers an emotional disturbance (perhaps caused by the 6 stress, anguish or dementia of late-stage AIDS) might make out-of-context reports to federal 7 authorities that dovetail with the government's official policy regarding medical marijuana.
8 Because of these fears, the discourse about medical marijuana has all but ceased at my 9 medical office. If perchance the issue of medical marijuana does arise, I make no notes of the 10 substance of the conversation for fear of government reprisal. My patients bear the brunt of 11 this loss in communication.

14 9. Restrictions on the flow of relevant information between doctor and patient 15 are, by definition, counter-therapeutic. It is critical for physicians to know what their 16 seriously ill patients ingest. But this knowledge is generally provided by the patients 17 themselves. That will occur only if patients trust their physician to maintain professional 18 confidences and to use that information not to judge, but to treat. The dialogue that ensues 19 from this atmosphere of trust continues throughout the course of treatment. I do not treat the 20 patient as an anonymous subject; rather, the patient and I work together. We discuss together 21 the symptoms and possible treatments. It is a critical collaborative effort.

23 10. Physician-colleagues work collaboratively as well. As doctors, we share and 24 assess our observations, experiences, ideas, and knowledge. Government threats inhibit the 25 discourse among physicians which is critical to advance our understanding of disease and the 26 efficacy of certain treatments. Physicians are naturally reluctant to discuss any subject which

1 implies or is associated with potentially illegal practices. Thus, the current threats stifle the 2 free flow of ideas that medicine has traditionally depended upon to improve health care.

3 11. My fear of discussing medical marijuana precludes the climate of trust that 4 must be established between doctor and patient. Imposed silence on any relevant issue, 5 including the use of marijuana, leaves both patient and doctor with unspoken (and thus 6 unanswered) questions: "What else is not being disclosed or addressed?" "Are we 7 overlooking information which could be critical to medical treatment?"

9 12. I care for an increasing number of patients with HIV in various stages of 10 illness. Over the years, through cautious trial and error, close observation, ongoing 11 consultation and persistent research, AIDS researchers and front-line physicians (like myself) 12 have developed an increasingly effective arsenal of drugs and protocols to combat HIV and 13 AIDS. Only a few years ago, a positive test for HIV was perceived as the first step toward 14 inevitable death. Today, our years of research have resulted in significant advances in drug 15 therapies; there appear to be treatments which have brought us, as healers and as a 16 community, within sight of the day when we eliminate the HIV virus and thus substantially 17 improve the quality of life and extend the lives of persons inflicted with this epidemic.

19 13. However, the treatments of today, like those of previous years, are not without 20 unknown or unintended effects. Some of my patients routinely take almost a dozen different 21 medications each day to combat the virus and the opportunistic infections which prey on the 22 body's compromised immune system. This daily regimen of medication poses serious 23 problems for a significant number of my seriously ill patients. First, by definition, these pills 24 must be swallowed. One of the frequent symptoms of HIV-related illness is severe and 25 chronic nausea, such that swallowing pills on a regular basis can be difficult, if not 26 impossible. To make matters worse, nausea is a common side effect of the medications

1 themselves. Thus, a debilitating and demoralizing cycle sets in: the patient must repeatedly 2 swallow pills which induce nausea, which is addressed, in turn, by yet another round of pills.

3 14. The inability to swallow can have devastating consequences for both treatment
4 compliance and the patient's general health. Not only must patients be able to ingest 5 medications, they must be able to eat and hold down food in order to obtain the nutrition 6 essential to anyone's health. The need for regular and adequate nutrition is even more critical 7 in patients whose compromised immune systems render them vulnerable, especially when 8 accompanied by late-stage wasting syndrome. Moreover, some of the medications prescribed 9 for HIV/AIDS patients must be taken on a full stomach to allow full absorption and maximum 10 efficacy. Thus, a premium is placed on the patient's ability to swallow both medications and 11 food. Chronic and severe nausea and loss of appetite caused by the illness and/or clinical 12 therapies pose severe obstacles to a patient's well-being.

15 15. In my experience as an HIV/AIDS physician, a significant number of patients 16 use marijuana as both an anti-emetic (anti-nauseant) or appetite stimulant. For persistent 17 nausea, I often prescribe Compazine or Marinol, a synthetic form of THC (the active 18 compound found in marijuana), both of which are FDA-approved. But some patients do not 19 tolerate these medications well. Many have complained of feeling dysphoric using Marinol 20 or find the duration of effect unduly long. These adverse effects are of concern to me, not 21 only because of the immediate effects on patient comfort and functioning, but also because 22 they may signal greater difficulties in patients' inability to comply with medical protocols, 23 now and in the future. Especially with the new generation of AIDS drugs, strict compliance 24 with daily protocols is absolutely crucial. Missing even a small number of doses can allow a 25 drug-resistant strain of HIV to resurge, thus undermining or eliminating the effectiveness of 26 the treatment. In circumstances where a patient is unable to comply with medical protocols, it is incumbent on the physician to work with the patient to find alternative therapies. My inability to explore and identify alternative therapies for unsuccessful medicines can cause patients to stop treatment altogether. I know of patients who have terminated potentially life-saving treatment because the side effects of their treatment seemed to them worse than the disease.

16. Before the government issued public threats against physicians, I discussed the medical use of marijuana with seriously ill patients who raised the issue. If patients had not tried other medications first, then it was my practice to recommend anti-emetics and/or Marinol. For patients who found other medications unsatisfactory, and for whom I believed medical marijuana could be, on the whole, beneficial, I provided counsel on the risks and benefits associated with various means of ingestion.

17. I am struck by the vehemence with which federal officials have attacked both treating physicians and the seriously ill patients who use medical marijuana. Those who suffer from chronic and severe illnesses need, above all, a broad range of therapeutic options from which to select a treatment (or treatments) that provide the greatest relief. In my experience, the government generally acknowledges this need. However, its recent policies (i.e., regarding cannabis) stray from its logical deference to medical reality. Recent pronouncements by the DEA and the Department of Justice contradict and belie the spirit of their official stance regarding experimental drugs, off-label use of drugs approved for limited purposes, and compassionate use protocols for experimental drugs which, while promising, are still in the early stages of testing. For example, the Food and Drug Administration permits AIDS physicians like myself to prescribe a variety of experimental drugs. Although early reports are promising, little is known with respect to their efficacy or the long-term effects.

DECLARATION OF

M.D.

Date: March 21, 1997
Time: 10:00 a.m.

DECLARATION OF ARNOLD S. LEFF, M.D.

I, DR. ARNOLD S. LEFF, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California and have been practicing medicine for 11 years in Santa Cruz, California.

2. I received a B.S. in zoology from the University of Cincinnati in 1963. I received an M.D. from the University of Cincinnati Medical School in 1967. I completed an Internship in internal medicine at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center Hospitals in 1968. In 1969, I completed an internal medicine Fellowship in clinical pharmacology, also at the Medical Center Hospitals.

3. From 1971-72 I was Deputy Associate Director for the White House Drug Abuse Office under President Richard Nixon. In that position, I worked on a number of different areas of drug policy including: developing drug abuse programs for the Department of Defense and State Department; establishing drug treatment programs in foreign countries; implementing drug testing and treatment programs for U.S. military troops; and consulting with local law enforcement officials on implementing drug treatment programs. From 1972-75 I was a consultant to the White House Drug Abuse Office on these and other issues. During the late 1970s, I advised President Jimmy Carter's Administration on national drug policy.

4. I have had experience in drug control policy and public health in other positions as well, including as Director of Health Services for Contra Costa County, California from 1979-83.

5. Throughout those years, I also held teaching positions on medical school faculties. I was an Assistant Clinical Professor at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine from 1971-79, and an Associate Clinical Professor at the University of California from 1979-84.

6. I am currently a family practitioner with an emphasis on caring for geriatric and AIDS patients. My practice includes approximately 4,000 patients overall. I have been an AIDS specialist since 1985, and currently treat approximately 110 patients for AIDS and AIDS-related conditions.

7. For many of my AIDS patients, I prescribe Marinol, a synthetic version of a primary active ingredient of marijuana, to combat severe nausea and to stimulate appetite. In some cases, however, Marinol is inappropriate because patients cannot tolerate or effectively absorb it. A significant number of my patients find that Marinol is too strong and makes them dysphoric ("high"). Many of these patients find that by smoking medical marijuana they are able to limit the dose, thereby avoiding an unwelcome dysphoric feeling.

8. I currently treat at least 20 patients for whom I believe marijuana is medically appropriate in responding to treatment-induced nausea or for appetite stimulation. In my medical judgment, in some cases medical marijuana may be the only effective medicine.

9. I am aware of threats by federal government officials against physicians who provide their patients with information regarding the potential risks or benefits of the medical use of marijuana. Due to fear caused by these threats, I feel compelled and coerced to withhold information, recommendations, and advice to patients regarding use of medical marijuana. I have postponed discussions about the use of medical marijuana and approach such discussions with trepidation. I am fearful and reluctant to engage in even limited communications regarding medical marijuana, yet I feel a duty to provide my patients with complete medical advice.

DECLARATION OF HOWARD D. MACCABEE, Ph.D., M.D.

I, DR. HOWARD D. MACCABEE, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California. I have been Medical Director of the Radiation Oncology Center in Walnut Creek, California, for 17 years. I am also an Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of California at San Francisco ("UCSF").

2. I received a B.S. from Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana in 1961. I received a Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley in 1966. My dissertation research was on radiation biophysics. After extensive research in the areas of physics and medicine, I attended the University of Miami School of Medicine, where I earned an M.D. in 1975. I then completed my Internship at UCSF in 1976, followed by a three-year Residency in radiation oncology, also at UCSF.

3. I am board certified in therapeutic radiology and am a member of several professional societies. I have published 25 articles on diverse scientific and medical topics.

4. I have also studied the ethical aspects of the doctor-patient relationship and am on the bioethics committees of John Muir Medical Center and the Alameda-Contra Costa County Medical Association. I have chaired symposia on this issue between 1988 and 1994 in Contra Costa County.

5. In my practice, I commonly use radiation therapy to treat the whole spectrum of solid malignant tumors. Radiation therapy is often used after surgery or chemotherapy, as a second stage in treatment. Sometimes, however, radiation therapy is used concurrently with chemotherapy, or even as the first or only modality of treatment.

6. I treat approximately 20 patients each day and provide follow-up care and/or consultation with another 5 or so patients a day. I currently have approximately 2,000

1 patients in various stages of follow-up to their initial treatment. Most of these are long-term 2 survivors.

3 7. Because of the nature of some cancers, I must sometimes irradiate large 4 portions of my patients' abdomens. Such patients often experience nausea, vomiting, and 5 other side effects. Because of the severity of these side effects, some of my patients choose to 6 discontinue treatment altogether, even when they know that ceasing treatment could lead to 7 death.

9 8. During the 1980s, I participated in a state-sponsored study of the effects of 10 marijuana and THC (an active ingredient in marijuana) on nausea. It was my observation 11 during this time that some patients smoked marijuana while hospitalized, often with the tacit 12 approval of physicians. I also observed that medical marijuana was clinically effective in 13 treating the nausea of some patients.

15 9. During my career as a physician, I have witnessed cases where patients 16 suffered from nausea or vomiting that could not be controlled by prescription anti-emetics. I 17 frequently hear similar reports from colleagues treating cancer and AIDS patients. As a 18 practical matter, some patients are unable to swallow pills because of the side effects of 19 radiation therapy or chemotherapy, or because of the nature of the cancer (for instance, throat 20 cancer). For these patients, medical marijuana can be an effective form of treatment.

22 10. I occasionally have patients who inquire about the use of medical marijuana. I 23 have always considered it my ethical duty as a physician to provide every patient with the full 24 truth as I know it. This duty includes informing patients about treatment options that I 25 personally do not provide. For example, although I do not prescribe chemotherapy, it is my 26 ethical obligation to discuss this treatment option with patients who are also considering 27 undergoing radiation treatment. Because of the threats by federal officials against physicians 28

1 who provide information to patients regarding the potential risks or benefits of the medical 2 use of marijuana, I have had to reexamine this basic ethical principle for the first time in my 3 professional career.

4 11. Due to fear caused by the threats of federal officials, I feel compelled and 5 coerced to withhold information, refuse to make recommendations, and modify for non-6 clinical reasons my advice to patients regarding use of medical marijuana. Since the threats, I 7 have not had any patients ask about medical marijuana. When I do receive such an inquiry, 8 however, I will temper what I say to avoid the risk of government sanction. Based on my 9 years of practice, I am concerned that my reticence in providing information will adversely 10 affect the doctor-patient relationship, a result which is both regrettable and ethically 11 substandard.

12 12. I understand that one of the reasons behind the threats is to deter physicians 13 who may inappropriately recommend the use of medical marijuana. The threat of abuse in 14 this context is no greater than the threat posed by doctors who misprescribe or otherwise act 15 irresponsibly with regard to any drug. There will always be a small number of doctors who 16 behave irresponsibly; those individual doctors should certainly be sanctioned, but not at the 17 expense of the ability of responsible doctors to provide important medical information to their 18 patients.

20 the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

DECLARATION OF DEBASISH TRIPATHY, M.D.

I, DR. DEBASISH TRIPATHY, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California. I received a B.S. degree in chemical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Massachusetts in 1981, and earned my medical degree at Duke University School of Medicine in Durham, North Carolina in 1985. I subsequently completed an internship and residency in internal medicine at Duke University Medical Center, followed by a clinical fellowship in hematology and oncology, and then a post-doctoral fellowship in cancer research, both at the University of California-San Francisco ["UCSF"].

2. I have been a member of the UCSF faculty since 1991, first as a Clinical Instructor, and then (since 1993) as Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine. I am certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine in the areas of Internal Medicine, Clinical Hematology, and Medical Oncology. I am an active member in good standing of the American Society of Clinical Oncology. I serve on the Board of Directors of Cancer Support Community, a nonprofit agency which has provided free support and advice to cancer patients and their families for the past 20 years. I am a Contributing Editor of Breast Diseases: A Year Book Quarterly.

3. My clinical research and publications have focused on the diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer. I am currently involved in several major research studies assessing the efficacy of specific therapies in several patient groups, including those with metastatic breast cancer. I am the Principle Investigator on fifteen of those studies. I am the author and co-author of several chapters appearing in standard medical texts. I have also published widely in scholarly and professional journals, including Annals of Internal Medicine, Journal of Clinical Oncology, Breast Cancer Research Treatment, Journal of 1 Clinical Outcomes Management, and Clinical Research.

2 4. Since 1993, I have been a physician at the UCSF Mount Zion Breast Care 3 Center in San Francisco. My practice is devoted exclusively to breast cancer patients. I treat 4 more than 1,000 patients. Approximately 100 of these patients are currently undergoing 5 chemotherapy, a treatment utilizing various combinations of powerful medications. In some 6 cases, the therapeutic dose of the medication we use is not far from the potentially lethal dose.
7 Although chemotherapy is a widely used treatment in the treatment of many cancers, it can 8 also cause severe adverse affects which some patients are simply unable to tolerate. The most 9 common adverse effects of chemotherapy are nausea and retching.

11 5. The nausea and retching associated with chemotherapy are often disabling and 12 intractable. The severity of the symptoms and their medical consequences vary from patient 13 to patient. In many cases, the immediate results are weight loss, fatigue, and chronic 14 discomfort. The consequences can be far graver in patients whose health and functioning is 15 already compromised. For example, the dangers associated with weight loss and malnutrition 16 are greater in patients whose cancer has metastasized and attacked other parts of the body.

18 6. For most chemotherapy patients, relief from nausea is obtained through one of 19 several medications, including Compazine or Ondansetron, a recently developed medication 20 specifically used for relieving chemotherapy-induced nausea. In my practice, I often rely on 21 these medications as first-line treatment for my chemotherapy patients. They are legally 22 available and clinically effective in many patients. For those who cannot tolerate them in pill 23 form (e.g., certain patients with cancer of the colon, stomach, throat or esophagus), these and 24 some of the other anti-nauseants are available in other forms. Compazine, for example, can 25 be administered intravenously, intramuscularly or in suppository form. Nonetheless, these 26 FDA-approved medications are not effective in some patients. There is no singular formula

ER1494

1 for treating illness -- i. e., no "best medicine" which is appropriate or advisable for all 2 patients. Indeed, the phrase "best medicine" belies the concept of individualized treatment.

3 7. Another medication often used to combat nausea is Marinol, a synthetic form 4 of THC, which is one of the key active ingredients in marijuana. In my opinion, Marinol is 5 often the third or fourth line treatment for chemotherapy-induced nausea. I generally 6 prescribe Marinol only after Compazine or Ondansetron have proven unsuccessful in 7 "refractory" patients -- i. e., those who are resistant to traditional treatments. It is often in that 8 patient group (those who do not respond to commonly effective treatments) that clinicians see 9 the greatest variation. Individual responses to medication may be idiosyncratic, unexpected 10 or otherwise unique. In those patients, cautious trial and error is essential to effective 11 treatment. Therapies must be modified or "customized" to the unique needs and responses on 12 the individual. Some degree of experimentation, closely monitored, is clinically appropriate.

13 8. Marinol is FDA-approved as an appetite stimulant and for relief from nausea 14 associated with chemotherapy. I have prescribed Marinol to some of my patients and it has 15 proven effective in some cases. However, scientific and anecdotal reports consistently 16 indicate that smoking marijuana is a therapeutically preferable means of ingestion. Marinol is 17 available in pill form only. Moreover, Marinol contains only one of the many ingredients 18 found in marijuana (THC). It may be that the beneficial effects of THC are increased by the 19 cumulative effect of additional substances found in cannabis. That is an area for future 20 research. For whatever reason, smoking appears to result in faster, more effective relief, and 21 dosage levels are more easily titrated and controlled in some patients.

22 9. Still, patient preferences between Marinol and marijuana are not uniform. I 23 have had patients who stopped smoking marijuana and returned to Marinol to address their 24 nausea. Some report bothersome side effects, including the grogginess reported by some
26 27 28

1 Marinol users. Still others, whose fellow patients have endorsed marijuana, have been 2 reluctant to try it for legal, social or philosophical reasons. They cite the moral stigma 3 attached to marijuana as an illegal "drug," their concern that others will learn of their "drug" 4 use, and practical concerns about violating the law.

6 10. Means of ingestion is often critical to the efficacy of specific treatments. For 7 example, insulin is far more effective when injected. Many medications are inhaled, while 8 others are administered intravenously or intramuscularly. DDAVP, a synthetic pituitary 9 hormone, is administered through a rhinal tube, through which the patient sniffs the 10 substance.

12 11. Like many substances, the efficacy of Marinol is particularly variable in 13 refractory patients. Clinicians report a range of factors which appear to increase the difficulty 14 of identifying effective treatment. For example, younger cancer patients seem to have more 15 difficulty with the adverse effects of chemotherapy, possibly because they generally have 16 more acute sensory reflexes. Adverse reactions are also more common among patients with 17 co-existing conditions. They may present with more complicated symptom pictures, and their 18 bodies may already be weakened by the effects of pre-existing illness. Emotional and 19 psychiatric disorders, not uncommon in seriously or terminally ill patients, may also render 20 traditional side-effect medications less effective.

22 12. In my practice, the most common treatment-induced symptom reported is 23 nausea, which is fairly subjective, and therefore difficult to measure. Because there has been 24 relatively little research conducted on this subject, I believe that physicians have a duty to 25 provide their suffering patients with all clinical information available. From a moral and 26 humane point of view, my duty increases when the suffering is caused by treatments which I 27 have recommended and administered. When I consider chemotherapy for my patients, I 28

1 factor in the possibility of disabling adverse reactions, as well as my ability to reduce or 2 eradicate unwanted effects. In some instances, the balance between the risks and benefits of a 3 proposed treatment is very close. If the information I provide does not include all possible 4 means of reducing adverse effects, my patients must make decisions with incomplete 5 information. In other words, the balance between the pros and cons of chemotherapy (or any 6 treatment) may be thrown off. The patient's decisions regarding treatment may therefore be 7 ill-informed and medically regrettable. When the treatment (e.g., chemotherapy) is intended 8 to prolong life and cure cancer, the choice to forego potentially life-saving treatment can 9 literally be fatal.

11 13. The balance of risks and benefits is a process which continues throughout 12 treatment. There are patients whose adverse reactions are seemingly intolerable. It is not 13 unusual for those patients to consider terminating therapy; some of them discontinue 14 treatments midway through the therapeutic protocol. For them, the suffering caused by the 15 chemotherapy outweighs the potential long-term benefits of completing the full cycle. In 16 many cases, incomplete therapy is of little use in fighting cancer. The decision to stop 17 treatment can shorten lives. If I believe that marijuana might reduce their suffering and allow 18 them to complete treatment, I must provide that information.

19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28
14. I do not generally initiate discussions about marijuana, but I am ethically bound to answer questions posed by my patients. When asked, I advise my patients about the benefits and risks (both scientific and legal) inherent in the use of marijuana for medicinal purposes. Were it clearly legal, I would include marijuana as one of the medical options available in treating persistent treatment-induced nausea. I have not provided written recommendations for marijuana to my patients, but that decision is not based upon independent clinical judgment. It is colored by political and legal implications, as well as threats of criminal sanctions.

15. There is one additional consideration which must be addressed in this discourse. The medical benefits of marijuana are generally limited to its use in treating cancer patients and late-stage AIDS patients suffering from wasting syndrome. I am aware of no clinical or scientific reports indicating short-term risks posed by marijuana when used in small amounts. Any discussion of adverse consequences appears to focus on the effects of long-term use (e.g., adverse effects on the lungs), and even those concerns are speculative. That fact must be a factor in balancing the risks and benefits. In populations with short life expectancies, the risks become less imminent and the benefits more paramount.

16. Many medications administered to combat cancer and other serious (potentially fatal) illnesses are far more toxic than marijuana. That is a consideration which I, as a healer, must acknowledge in caring for every patient in my practice. It defies common sense and sound medical practice to withhold any information which might minimize the effects of those treatments. The recent government threats to prosecute physicians for recommending, or even advising, their patients regarding marijuana place me in an unacceptable and unethical position: to fulfill my duties as a healer, I make myself vulnerable to legal sanctions which are not grounded in science or the healing arts. The government's recently announced policies jeopardize both the integrity of my practice and the quality of care received by the many patients who depend on me.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct and this declaration was executed this 13th day of February, 1997, in San Francisco, California.

DECLARATION OF STEPHEN ELIOT FOLLANSBEE, M.D.

2 I, Dr. Stephen E. Follansbee, declare as follows:

3 1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California. I graduated 4 cum laude from Pomona College in 1970, and earned a Master's degree from Harvard 5 University in 1972. In 1977, I was awarded a doctorate magna cum laude from the University
6 of Colorado School of Medicine. I subsequently completed an Internship at San Francisco
7 General Hospital (1977-1978), a Residency at the University of California-San Francisco
8 ["UCSF"] (1978-1980), and a Fellowship at UCSF's Division of Infectious Diseases (1980-9 1982). I am board-certified in both Internal Medicine and Infectious Diseases by the 10 American College of Physicians.

11 2. I am currently Chief of Staff at Davies Medical Center in San Francisco. I am 12 also Medical Director of the Institute for HIV Treatment and Research at Davies Medical 13 Center, a position I have held for the past nine years. In 1982 I entered the private practice of 14 infectious diseases in San Francisco. That practice has become Infectious Diseases 15 Associates Medical Group, Inc., and I am a full-time employee of that medical corporation at 16 this time. One year later, in 1983, I became an Attending Physician on Ward 86 (Division of 17 AIDS) at San Francisco General Hospital and in that capacity, a part-time (hourly) employee 18 of the University of California, San Francisco. I am currently on staff at Davies Medical 19 Center, California Pacific Medical Center, St. Luke's Hospital, and San Francisco General
20 Hospital Medical Center. I am also an Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine at UCSF's 21 School of Medicine.

22 3. My work as both a researcher and a physician extends into the larger 23 community, as well. Since 1990, I have been the Assistant Director of the Bay Area 24 Community Consortium, whose primary purpose has been to promote AIDS-education and

EI ER1501

1 research. For more than 10 years, I have served as Medical Adviser to FOCUS - A Guide to 2 AIDS Research and Counseling, a publication of the AIDS Health Project in San Francisco. I 3 am currently a member of the Institutional Review Board of Project Inform.

4 4. I am a member of several professional societies, including the Infectious 5 Diseases Society of America, the Bay Area Infectious Diseases Society, and Bay Area 6 Physicians for Human Rights. I am the author, principle author or co-author of approximately 7 40 articles and research studies on the subjects of respiratory illnesses, opportunistic 8 infections, epidemiology, and the study and treatment of AIDS-related conditions with a 9 range of clinical therapies. These studies have been published in scholarly and professional 10 peer review journals, including the New England Journal of Medicine, Annals of Internal 11 Medicine, Journal of Infectious Diseases, Clinical Infectious Diseases, Annals of Neurology, 12 Annals of Plastic Surgery, Journal of Experimental Medicine, Western Journal of Medicine, 13 Virology, and the Journal of Reconstructive Microsurgery. My colleagues and I have also 14 authored book chapters, research reports, and educational publications. Several additional 15 manuscripts are currently in print.

16 5. For a long time, I resisted going to medical school, largely because I naively 17 regarded doctors as glorified auto-mechanics. I assumed that the practice of medicine 18 involved the rote following of established procedures to fix broken or ailing parts, and that 19 creativity and nuance were neither valued nor necessary. I could not have been more wrong.
20 Medicine, particularly the treatment of the seriously ill, is an art that places a premium on the 21 physician's ability to recognize and respond to each patient as a unique individual. It requires 22 the application of general scientific knowledge to the specific needs and conditions presented 23 in an individual with a unique and complex medical history. I cannot know in advance what 24 will constitute the best treatment for any patient. Rather, I must make educated guesses about
26 27 28

EF ER1502

1 what may work best, then observe the patient closely and, when necessary or appropriate, 2 refine and modify the treatment plan in order to strike or maintain optimal conditions for 3 improvement. Certain treatment options work well in some patients but not others, or the 4 treatment works well, but only for a limited period, after which it loses its efficacy. Some 5 patients tolerate various options equally well, in which case I must assess (and likely re-6 assess) which among them will provide the greatest benefits to my patient.

8 6. When a patient suffers from nausea, retching, or persistent weight loss 9 ("wasting syndrome"), I do not consider medical marijuana as my first treatment option. It 10 has always been my practice to first attempt to identify the cause of the problem, and 11 prescribe the necessary therapy for treatable causes. If there are no directly treatable causes, 12 symptomatic therapy may be necessary. For nausea or retching, I start with anti-nausea 13 medications, of which there are several available by the oral, rectal, or on occasion the 14 intravenous route. For wasting syndrome due to poor appetite, after altering the medications 15 that may be contributing to this problem, I have prescribed Marinol since it was USA-FDA 16 approved for this indication. I begin with Marinol because it is legally available and it is 17 often an effective treatment in relieving these symptoms. However, in my clinical 18 experience, a significant number of patients find that Marinol is not as effective as marijuana; 19 it does not provide the same relief. Because the Marinol capsule is not as quickly or 20 efficiently absorbed, it can be less effective than marijuana. My patients frequently report 21 that Marinol can create a dysphoria that they dislike. As a practical matter, the very 22 symptoms which Marinol is intended to address (e.g., nausea and retching) often make oral 23 ingestion of any medication intolerable or ineffective. Marinol is currently available in 24 capsule form only. Marijuana, on the other hand, can be ingested by inhaling it, eating it in 25 baked goods, or drinking marijuana tincture in a tea. ER1503

1           7.     The federal government's threats against physicians who discuss or 2 recommend medical marijuana can have, and are indeed having, several negative 3 repercussions on the quality of care that physicians can provide their seriously ill patients.

4           8.     Medical students are taught that proper diagnosis and treatment require a 5 detailed and accurate patient history. That chart will follow the patient wherever he or she 6 goes. If properly maintained, it provides critical information to all future health providers 7 Each treating physician necessarily relies on the information contained in that chart in 8 diagnosing and devising a safe course of treatment for that patient.

9           9.     The government's gag on physicians discourages doctors from maintaining a 10 comprehensive written record of the patient and the care she or he receives. I am personally 11 very nervous about creating a detailed record of my patient histories with respect to the use of 12 marijuana, medically or otherwise, for fear of government reprisal against me, my medical 13 practice, or the hospital of which I am Chief of Staff. The government's threats expose me to 14 criminal and civil sanctions, including the loss of my DEA license to prescribe schedule II 15 drugs, without which I could not practice infectious disease medicine. I fear the loss of 16 government research grants, both to myself and to my colleagues and the facilities I am 17 associated with. I also fear that, on the basis of my record-keeping, my patients might be 18 denied coverage under Medicare or MediCal, which is so often the only means for them to 19 receive continued medical treatment for any illness or ailment.

20           10.    Information about a patient's drug use -- licit and illicit -- is an important part 21 of that patient's history (medical, psychiatric and social) that a physician must consider to 22 provide safe, appropriate and effective medical care. It is common practice to learn about a 23 patient's use of tobacco and alcohol, as well his/her history of substance abuse or dependence.
24 That information, which may be embarrassing or shameful or involve illegal behavior, can

1 only be fully disclosed in an atmosphere of trust and safety. That is one very important 2 reason that I spend a great deal of time making my office a safe and confidential place for my 3 patients. I make sure they understand that our discussions are confidential and their files are 4 secure.

6 11. There are many instances in which a conversation about medical marijuana 7 with a seriously ill patient is medically warranted. First, there are possible health risks of 8 ingesting marijuana. The physician must be able to provide that information to a seriously ill 9 patient; s/he must also advise that patient on how s/he might reduce or eliminate those risks.
10 For example, patients with HIV or AIDS may suffer from respiratory problems that may be 11 exacerbated by smoking any substance, whether tobacco or marijuana. I have these concerns 12 with patients suffering from pulmonary aspergillosis, an infection of the lungs seen often 13 among AIDS patients. In such circumstances, the physician might wish to dissuade the 14 patient from smoking marijuana, encouraging the patient to try alternative treatments, 15 including ingesting marijuana as a tincture or in baked form. Providing that advice is part of 16 my duty to treat and prevent unnecessary illness and suffering.

18 12. There may be other risks associated with marijuana. Marijuana sold on the 19 street may contain fungaspores and other impurities that pose little danger to healthy users but 20 can compromise the health of a seriously ill patient, particularly a patient whose immune 21 system is weakened. A physician might wish (quite properly) to dissuade the patient from 22 using marijuana and encourage the patient to try alternative treatments. Failing that, the 23 doctor might encourage the patient to avoid marijuana from unknown street sources, or to 24 bake the marijuana to kill fungaspores before ingesting; or to smoke the marijuana through a 25 water pipe to decrease exposure to impurities.

28

1           13. Finally, a patient who is not accustomed to marijuana, or a patient who 2 habitually ingests more than is medically indicated, may experience adverse effects from 3 THC. The obvious concern is that the over-medicated patient may forget to take his or her 4 other medications. This is true with every drug which causes drowsiness, including many 5 medications used to relieve pain or to treat anxiety, trauma, seizure disorders, allergies, and a 6 range of psychiatric conditions. To assess the risks to a particular patient, the atmosphere of 7 candor and confidentiality must be unquestioned by either doctor or patient. Only then can a 8 physician feel free to ask, and the patient feel comfortable in answering, questions regarding 9 marijuana use. As with any medication, the physician must consider that information in 10 her/his individualized assessment regarding that medication, its dosage, the route of 11 administration, and the possible interactions with other medications. Ultimately, my decision 12 must be explained to the patient -- that, too, is a necessary part of the doctor-patient

 16           14. After candid and thorough discussions with my patients, I have refused to 17 write letters recommending medical marijuana for several patients, generally because I 18 believe that those patients are not proper candidates for this medicine. There are also patients 19 I have counseled not to smoke marijuana when their particular circumstances or conditions 20 pose risks which, in my clinical opinion, outweigh the potential medical benefits. In those 21 situations, I often counsel the patients to try a different means of ingesting the marijuana -- for 22 example, by baking it or using a water pipe.

24           15. Since the government's initial threats in December, my conversations have 25 been curtailed. Because of these threats, I have been reluctant to raise the issue of marijuana, 26 or even use the word, with my seriously ill patients. I feel extremely vulnerable to intrusive 27 actions by the government which will undermine my clinical judgment and the integrity of my 28

1 practice. I am, frankly, fearful that a government agent will masquerade as a patient in an 2 attempt to monitor my practices and, if possible, develop evidence to imply wrongdoing or 3 unethical practice. I am concerned that overzealous officials might seek to prosecute or 4 sanction me as an example to individual physicians and the medical profession. I believe that 5 my concerns are well-founded. Reports of DEA agents appearing in physicians' offices are 6 already spreading through the medical community.

8 16. If I discuss marijuana with a patient (upon the patient's initiative or my own), 9 s/he may well report that marijuana has helped reduce nausea or combat wasting syndrome.
10 Having learned that, I am cast between the Scylla of legal sanctions and the Charybdis of 11 medical care. To acknowledge that the patient's report is not uncommon -- supported by 12 medical research and echoed by the New England Journal of Medicine -- may lead the patient 13 to request that I recommend marijuana as a part of treatment. If I respond honestly, based on 14 my medical knowledge and clinical experience, I may be inclined to recommend marijuana.
15 In doing so, though, I risk sanction by the federal government.

17 17. If I decline to answer the patient's question, I risk losing that patient's trust 18 and confidence, sending the message that there are issues regarding that patient's health that 19 are off-limits; that, at some level, I hold the patient's well-being subordinate to issues of 20 politics. This result stands at odds with my dedication to the art of healing; it results in my 21 refusal to relieve that patient -- already seriously ill and struggling to remain alive -- from 22 additional, unnecessary pain, suffering, and hopelessness.

24 18. It might be suggested that I parrot the views of General Barry McCaffrey and 25 Attorney General Janet Reno, that "smoke is not medicine," and "marijuana has no known 26 medical use but is a highly dangerous drug." To adopt such an obviously ill-informed 27 position would undoubtedly alienate the patient, who through personal experience (and 28

1 perhaps some background research) knows otherwise. Many of my patients use aerosolized 2 medicines and would be right to question why one form of inhalation is efficacious while 3 another is not. If the patient senses that his/her physician has been dishonest or disingenuous 4 or is withholding critical information, s/he may well terminate the relationship and 5 discontinue treatment. Alternatively, patients may try to read my mind and discern my true 6 opinion. No patient should be forced to read a doctor's mind. Alternatively, patients may 7 simply consider me sorely misinformed, and so, with good reason, may question or reject my 8 medical advice on other serious issues. Either way, sound medicine suffers. More 9 importantly, the patient's health is jeopardized. I cannot practice medicine in an ethical and 10 honest manner if ill-informed government policies mandate that I be dishonest with those who 11 seek my help.

14 19. A core tenet of medical practice is to "do no harm." In that spirit, I believe 15 that acts of omission are often as profound (and as potentially damaging) as acts of 16 commission. If a seriously ill patient is suffering severe nausea or chronic loss of appetite as 17 a result of his/her illness or treatment, and such symptoms or side effects compromise his/her 18 ability to tolerate other, traditional therapies, or to withstand a second or third cycle of 19 chemotherapy for lymphoma, or simply to maintain the physical or psychological strength to 20 fight for life, I do significant and inexcusable harm if I fail to counsel and treat that patient in 21 accordance with my best medical judgment.

23 20. My increased reluctance to discuss medical marijuana with seriously ill 24 patients recently led a patient's wife, who was with him in my office, to raise the issue 25 herself. This placed me in an extremely difficult situation. I felt gagged by the government, 26 yet ethically obligated to act as a physician. The patient and his wife, in turn, expressed 27 terrible guilt at having placed me in a moral dilemma. That should never occur in a proper 28

1 clinical setting. No simple question about medical treatment should place a physician in a 2 conflict of that sort; and no patient should ever be dissuaded from requesting reasonable 3 (indeed appropriate) medical information. That is the chilling affect of government 4 interference in clinical practice.

6 21. Adjusting treatment options to best serve a patient's individual needs is what 7 sound medical practice requires. Government officials evince a stunning disregard for the 8 healing arts when they attack medical marijuana with the assertion that patients deserve "the 9 best available medicine." We all want and deserve the best treatment. But in medicine, the 10 best is always a personal best; it is not determined by a simple formula. The government's 11 contention -- that marijuana can never be the best, or even an appropriate medicine -- is 12 simply wrong. This contention fails to recognize that physicians typically value and depend 13 upon a range of medical treatments, that no one medicine is best for all patients. To speak of 14 the best medicine makes little sense unless viewed in the context of treatment options. For 15 some seriously ill patients suffering extreme nausea, Marinol may be the best treatment 16 available for them. But that does not make Marinol the "best" medicine for anyone else. The 17 government's references to the "best" medicine are facile and without any clinical or practical 18 meaning. In my experience, Marinol does not work well for all patients. The same applies to 19 virtually any medication, aspirin and penicillin included. For certain seriously ill patients, 20 marijuana may in fact be the best medicine, or the only medicine. The federal government 21 now prohibits me from informing those patients of this fact.

24 22. Even if it were true, as the government contends, that marijuana is not the 25 "best" medicine, the government itself acknowledges that an important role is served by 26 second-, third-, and even fourth-line drugs. Federal regulations require that manufacturers of 27 certain drugs state that they are considered a secondary or tertiary treatment option for certain 28

1 conditions. The treatment of pneumocystis pneumonia with Mepron is one such example 2 Nonetheless, these medications are not proscribed or criminalized because they are not 3 generally (or even usually) the "best" medications available. The government instead relies 4 on the informed judgment of physicians to determine whether, when, and how to dispense 5 these drugs.

7 23. Marijuana, by history and for clinically sound reasons, is one of these so-called 8 second or third-line medications. To proscribe any potentially-effective treatment, including 9 marijuana, as a treatment option, flies in the face of longstanding government policy and 10 medical practice. It also deprives the healer of the full clinical armamentarium -- i.e., the 11 entire range of treatment options available in the practice of medicine. The federal 12 government has in place detailed procedures for authorizing the use of experimental drugs.
13 Many experimental drugs, including retrovirals and growth hormone, have been licensed by 14 the Food and Drug Administration having had much less information than the medical 15 profession has about marijuana.

17 24. A large percentage of my patients are infected by the HIV virus; a significant 18 number suffer from conditions and opportunistic infections which have come to define AIDS.
19 I have provided care for a population that, until very recently, was considered hopeless. They 20 were perceived as suffering from a terminal illness that progressively and painfully destroyed 21 the immune system, rendering them thoroughly disabled -- blind, demented, incontinent, and 22 unable to attend to their most basic needs. The physical agony and mental anguish that often 23 accompanies AIDS results in some patients' desire to die. I know of no physician who 24 relishes the thought of a patient dying. Indeed, as a doctor, I work daily to stave off death and 25 to provide my patients with the means to control their pain and maintain their autonomy and dignity. As our knowledge and treatments become refined and more plentiful, the certain death we saw only a few years ago is no longer an accepted fate for my patients.

25. Patients who seek my advice regarding the benefits of medical marijuana are evidence that there is hope. They have a very strong desire to survive their illness and to function as normally and productively as possible. Some of the medications that have led to this renewed optimism and have recently been licensed by the USA-FDA produce side effects (nausea and vomiting) that can be alleviated by the medical use of marijuana, and may not respond to other first-line or second-line agents. These patients ask me about marijuana not because they want to get high, but because they are fighting for their lives, which includes an honest search for the best available means to do so. Government threats against the physicians who struggle with these patients will inevitably thwart the patients' efforts. They may, in fact, remove their doctors from the healing process when vulnerable individuals are most in need of their counsel. Denying information and treatment advice to a seriously ill patient, when that medicine could promote and facilitate critical medical treatment, may needlessly hasten the patient's death.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, and that this declaration was executed this 13 day of February, 1997 in San Francisco, California.

DECLARATION OF STEPHEN O'BRIEN, M.D.

I, DR. STEPHEN O'BRIEN, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California and currently practicing medicine at the East Bay AIDS Center in Berkeley, California.

2. I received my B.A. and B.S. from the University of Washington at Seattle in 1986. I graduated from the University of Washington Medical School in 1990 and did a residency in internal medicine at the University of California at San Francisco ("UCSF") from 1990-93.

3. After completing my residency, I was employed at UCSF as a Clinical Instructor in Medicine from 1993-94 and an Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine from 1994-95. From 1993-95 I was Co-Director for UCSF HIV Managed Care.

4. I am board certified in internal medicine. I currently maintain a private medical practice which is devoted almost solely to treating AIDS patients. I specialize in the treatment of patients in the advanced stages of AIDS. I have approximately 200 patients, about 70 percent of whom have T-Cell counts below 100. T-Cells are one measure of the strength of the immune system. A normal T-Cell count is 500-1,500. One measure of AIDS is having a T-Cell count below 200. A T-Cell count below 100 usually indicates an advanced stage of AIDS during which the patient is most at risk for opportunistic infections.

5. Many patients with advanced AIDS experience nausea, wasting syndrome, and severe pain. My usual protocol is to prescribe Compazine, Marinol, or Reglan for nausea; Megace or Marinol to stimulate appetite; and pain medication ranging from Tylenol and Tylenol with Codeine to Morphine. For most patients, these medications are at least partially effective.

1           6.       In some cases, prescription drugs are ineffective in reducing nausea, wasting 2 syndrome, or severe pain. This failure can result from a number of factors, including a 3 patient's inability to effectively absorb a drug or to swallow a pill.

4           7.       I estimate that use of medical marijuana is a medically appropriate, and 5 sometimes preferable, form of treatment as a last resort for 25 percent of my patients for 6 persistent nausea, as an appetite stimulant to combat wasting syndrome, and for adjunctive 7 pain control. I have seen medical marijuana be clinically effective in diminishing nausea and 8 increasing appetite, thereby keeping patients alive. The recent introduction of the most 9 promising new AIDS drugs, known as "protease inhibitors," presents a further opportunity for 10 the use of medical marijuana because most of the toxicity from these drugs is abdominal and 11 creates nausea and other gastrointestinal problems. The use of medical marijuana can make it 12 possible for patients to tolerate the protease inhibitors and remain alive. For some patients, 13 medical marijuana is the only effective medicine for nausea and wasting syndrome.

15           8.       It is difficult to make clinical assessments about the efficacy of marijuana in 16 controlling pain, largely because of the subjective judgment involved in quantifying any form 17 of pain. A number of patients have informed me that although prescription drugs for pain 18 make them drowsy and they sometimes forget about the pain, medical marijuana numbs the 19 pain without seriously impairing their ability to continue functioning. I have observed 20 patients become more functional after switching from prescription pain medication to medical
22

23           9.       It would be irresponsible of me in my role as a physician to deny to patients 24 for whom no other drug is effective information about the potential benefits, as well as the 25 risks, of marijuana use. Because so many of my patients are in the advanced stages of a life-

27       ///

1 threatening illness, information I can provide about medical marijuana can mean the 2 difference between life and death.

3 10. I have also found that many of my patients began using marijuana prior to 4 starting treatment with me. For those patients, it is critical that I engage in a frank and open 5 dialogue about medical marijuana. This informs my determination of treatment options. For 6 instance, patients with asthma often should not be smoking marijuana. I must also be able to 7 provide my patients with information about the risks and benefits of continued use so that 8 they can make an informed decisions.

10 11. I am aware of threats by federal officials against physicians who counsel 11 patients regarding the medical use of marijuana. Due to fear caused by these threats, I feel 12 compelled and coerced to withhold information, recommendations, and advice to patients 13 regarding use of medical marijuana. Because of these threats I have withheld such 14 information, recommendations, and advice. I am fearful and reluctant to engage in even 15 limited communications regarding medical marijuana.

17 12. The atmosphere of fear promoted by federal officials has affected the 18 relationship between me and some of my patients. A number of patients are concerned that I 19 may be limiting my discussions and that our communication now involves less than full 20 disclosure on my part. This is particularly disturbing because of the nature of advanced AIDS 21 care, which requires the active participation of patients and the strong, unyielding support of 22 physicians.

24 13. The use of medical marijuana for AIDS patients is particularly appropriate 25 because the Food and Drug Administration has relaxed its traditionally strict approval 26 procedures for many AIDS drugs. Although the FDA typically requires many clinical studies 27 before approval, AIDS drugs have sometimes been approved on the basis of a single study or

1 less rigorous scientific evidence than is the norm. Indeed, at least one drug, ddC, was 2 released and subsequently withdrawn from its original indication after later studies cast doubt 3 on its effectiveness. Because AIDS is a life-threatening illness, it is appropriate to allow the 4 use of drugs that have not undergone traditional FDA approval.

RICHARD W. WIEKING
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DECLARATION OF DONALD W. NORTHFELT, M.D.

I, DR. DONALD W. NORTHFELT, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California, an Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of California, San Diego, and an AIDS oncologist and AIDS primary care physician at the Pacific Oaks Medical Group in Palm Springs, California.

2. I received a B.S. in geology with high distinction from the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis in 1978. I then attended the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, and received an M.S. in geochemistry in 1980. I received my medical degree from the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis in 1985. I completed an Internship and Residency at the University of California, Los Angeles in 1988. I then did a fellowship in hematology and oncology at the University of California, San Francisco from 1988 through 1991.

3. Among other positions I have held since receiving my M.D., I was an Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of California, San Francisco, from 1991-95. During my eight years in San Francisco, I specialized in the treatment of AIDS.

4. I am the author or co-author of over 35 peer-reviewed publications, 16 book chapters, and 18 other publications on the treatment of AIDS. I also frequently lecture on specialized AIDS care. I am a member of a number of professional societies, including the American Society of Clinical Oncology, and a Fellow in the American College of Physicians.

5. My current practice focuses on care for AIDS patients and, in particular, AIDS patients suffering from cancer. I presently provide treatment for approximately 200 cancer patients and 300 AIDS patients.

1           6.       I frequently prescribe chemotherapy for my cancer patients, which often 2 provokes severe nausea and vomiting. Although many patients respond to prescription anti-3 nausea drugs like Compazine or Reglan, these drugs are not effective for some patients.
4 Approximately 10 percent of my patients currently undergoing chemotherapy experience 5 severe nausea despite aggressive standard antiemetic therapy. On a few occasions where 6 prescription drugs are unable to control the nausea and vomiting, patients have discontinued 7 chemotherapy, even at the risk of death from progressive cancer. I believe that medical 8 marijuana may be appropriate for some cancer patients who cannot obtain relief from the 9 antiemetics and appetite stimulants that are currently available by prescription.
10

11           7.       In my AIDS practice, I prescribe aggressive treatments combining several 12 different drugs -- a so-called cocktail -- that are recently emerging as the first effective 13 treatment for AIDS. These drugs often cause severe nausea and vomiting. These side effects 14 are even more serious when the patient is suffering from AIDS wasting syndrome, which 15 causes a steady, uncontrolled weight loss. With these new treatments, nausea and vomiting 16 pose a particular risk, since failing to ingest even a small number of doses can lead to 17 resurgence of a resistant strain of the HIV virus, thus jeopardizing the entire treatment. For 18 many patients, traditional anti-nausea drugs and appetite stimulants like Megace and Marinol 19 are effective, but for a few, medical marijuana proves to be the only viable treatment option.
20

21           8.       I currently treat at least twelve patients for whom I believe marijuana could be 22 a medically appropriate form of treatment for nausea and vomiting caused by chemotherapy 23 or for nausea and loss of appetite in AIDS patients.
24

25           9.       I am aware of threats by federal government officials against physicians who 26 provide information to patients regarding the potential risks or benefits of the medical use of 27 marijuana. The government's threats against doctors have made it difficult for me to discuss

1 the topic candidly with my patients. Many patients in my practice present questions about the 2 appropriateness of marijuana use for their illnesses (AIDS and cancer). Because the 3 government's threats have been rather vague as to what might constitute grounds for 4 revocation of DEA certification, I have felt uncomfortable in providing any specific 5 information about the benefits or the risks of marijuana in response to these patients' 6 inquiries. I am fearful to engage in any discussion of the topic because of my concern over 7 loss of certification. The threats have thus interfered with my ethical obligation to provide 8 full and accurate clinical information regarding a therapeutic option to a patient who requests 9 it.

11 10. As a result, the government's threats have impeded progress in treatment of my 12 patients with AIDS and cancer by denying them the possibility of having their suffering 13 relieved by marijuana. In addition, those with nausea and poor appetite not afforded the 14 possibility of improvement through marijuana use are more likely to become malnourished 15 and suffer additional debility and illness as a result.

17 11. I am also concerned that the atmosphere surrounding this issue has interfered 18 with the ability of patients to be completely candid. A comprehensive and accurate medical 19 history of a patient is important as the cornerstone of the physician's understanding of that 20 patient's health status. The history provides the basis for evaluating the patient's overall 21 health as well as determining the diagnosis of any illness that the patient may be suffering.
22 The history provides direction for the physical examination and any subsequent laboratory 23 testing. Trust between patient and physician is important to the therapeutic process in order 24 to allow for free exchange of information vital to an understanding of the patient's illness and 25 to confidence in the judgment and advice imparted by the physician in evaluation and 26 treatment of that illness. Full disclosure from the patient about his/her health and habits is

ER1522

1 important because information about these topics may contribute substantially to the 2 physician's understanding of the patient's condition, confirm a specific diagnosis, and 3 therefore indicate the prognosis and therapy for the disorder in question. When such 4 information is withheld from the physician, the result may be delay or failure of appropriate 5 diagnosis and treatment with potentially catastrophic consequences for the patient.

7 12. Significant deleterious medical outcomes may result if patients are unable or 8 unwilling to disclose to the treating physician basic facts of their lifestyle. For example, 9 marijuana use by an AIDS patient may result in development of a life-threatening 10 disseminated fungal infection (aspergillosis). Disclosure of the marijuana use to the physician 11 would permit information to be provided which could reduce the risk of this infection.
12 Conversely, failure to disclose marijuana use might lead to delay in diagnosis and treatment 13 of aspergillosis due to the physician's lack of recognition that the patient is at risk for the 14 infection.

16 13. The government's threats have also instilled fear and guilt in seriously, 17 chronically, and terminally ill patients in my AIDS and cancer practices. This has caused 18 them to become demoralized and experience feelings of hopelessness, which impairs their 19 desire and ability to comply with recommendations and treatments intended to improve their 20 health. As a result, their health status has not improved or has actually declined.

22 14. The medical ethical tenet of beneficence obligates physicians to recommend 23 those treatments most likely to produce the desired results in the individual patient under their 24 care. In my view, this obligation is even more imperative in the situation where the treatment 25 is intended to alleviate suffering. Patients in my AIDS and cancer practices may suffer

DECLARATION OF VIRGINIA I. CAFARO, M.D.

I, DR. VIRGINIA I. CAFARO, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California and State of New York, an Attending Physician at the Conant Medical Group, a Clinical Instructor at the University of California at San Francisco ("UCSF"), and an Attending Physician at UCSF Mount Zion Medical Center.

2. I received my B.S. from Wagner College in Staten Island, New York, in 1977. I received an M.S. in physiology from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. in 1982. I graduated from the Medical College of Virginia in 1986. From 1986-89 I was a resident in internal medicine at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City. I completed a fellowship in infectious diseases at UCSF/Mount Zion from 1990-92.

3. After completing my residency, I was employed at UCSF as a Clinical Instructor in Medicine from 1993-94 and an Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine from 1994-95. From 1993-95 I was Co-Director for the Mount Zion HIV Clinic. In 1996, I was appointed to the Mayor's HIV Health Service Planning Council.

4. I currently treat approximately 1,000 patients, the vast majority of whom (90-95%) have AIDS or HIV-related conditions. In addition to my direct care responsibilities, I am conducting research into a number of issues related to infectious diseases, including the role of antiretroviral agents and other therapies in the cure of HIV.

5. A number of my AIDS patients use medical marijuana as part of their treatment. Many of these individuals have been ill for many years, some of them their entire adult lives. They have tried countless therapies -- some traditional and others experimental -- to relieve their pain, reduce disabling symptoms caused by repeated infections, and regain the strength and the hope they had prior to exposure to this virus.

6. To properly treat a patient, a physician must obtain a reliable and complete medical history. Such information, which includes the patient's drug history, is essential to prompt and proper diagnoses and medical intervention. To obtain it, it is my duty to create an atmosphere of candor and absolute confidentiality. This atmosphere has generally enabled me to obtain frank information from my patients and to provide honest and complete medical advice. In my practice, I have never been prohibited, by the federal government or anyone else, from providing my clinical knowledge to patients who might benefit as a result. In the past months, that has changed. I am now aware of threats by federal officials to sanction and even criminally prosecute physicians who counsel their patients about the risks and benefits of medical marijuana.

7. Marijuana, when ingested in proper doses, has proven to be effective in the treatment of nausea and retching. It is also effective as an appetite stimulant, which is critical for patients suffering from wasting syndrome. One of the active ingredients in marijuana, THC, is legally available as a pill called Marinol. In some patients, Marinol provides relief from nausea and enables patients to eat, regain weight and muscle mass, and improve their general health. Other medications can also be prescribed for nausea and retching. Some patients, however, do not respond to any such prescription drugs, but have successfully treated their nausea and loss of appetite by ingesting marijuana. Although Marinol is related to marijuana and contains one of its key ingredients, it is not the same substance and is often less effective clinically than marijuana itself. The reasons for this are not fully understood, but one factor is likely the means of ingestion. Marinol is currently available in pill form only. Many patients cannot tolerate medications taken orally. Moreover, the absorption and efficacy of Marinol is unreliable and unpredictable. By contrast, inhaled marijuana is easier to control and absorption rates may be more consistent.

1           8.       These are just some of the factors to be considered in the discourse on medical 2 marijuana. Prior to the government's recent threats, they were part of the ongoing dialogue 3 between doctor and patient. That dialogue has now been effectively curbed. In treating and 4 advising new patients, for example, I do not provide as broad a view of their treatment
5 options as I used to. Since the threats by federal officials, I have avoided directly broaching 6 the subject of medical marijuana even with patients who could, in my clinical judgment, 7 obtain marked relief with the use of marijuana. When the discussion does take place, it is 8 now limited to providing clinical and scientific data. Further, my patients are fearful of 9 placing me at risk, which is not a concern any patient should have.

11           9.       My patients' health is my paramount concern. The federal government has 12 evidently chosen to subordinate health needs to political expediency. As a physician, if 13 anything, this increases my duty to work with my patients to maintain trust and identify 14 effective interventions. I also feel duty-bound to challenge the federal policy through the 15 courts in the interests of my patients.

17           I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of 18 my knowledge.

19           Executed at San Francisco, California, this 4 day of February, 1997.

DECLARATION OF ROBERT C. SCOTT, III, M.D.

I, DR. ROBERT C. SCOTT, III, declare as follows:

1. I am a physician licensed to practice in the State of California and have been practicing medicine for 20 years in Oakland, California.

2. I received a B.S. from Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa, in 1963. I received an M.S. in 1965 and an M.Ed. in 1968, both from the University of Illinois at Urbana. I earned my medical degree from the University of California at San Francisco Medical School in 1974. I completed an Internship in medicine at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, the following year. I then did a Residency in internal medicine at Stanford University Hospitals from 1975-77.

3. I am on the medical staff of the Alta Bates Medical Center and the Summit Medical Center. I am a member of a number of local, state, and national organizations of physicians, including the American College of Physicians, American Association of Internal Medicine, National Medical Association, Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Association, and HIV Clinical Trials Researchers. I was a founding member of Bay Area Physicians for Human Rights.

4. I practice internal medicine and have over 2,000 patients. My practice is located in a poor city, and most of my patients are indigent, retired, and on fixed incomes.

5. Approximately 350 of my patients are infected with HIV. Many of them suffer from severe nausea, progressive anorexia, or chronic pain. I generally prescribe drugs such as Marinol, Compazine, or Tigan for nausea; Megace or Marinol for anorexia; and Vicadin, Demorol, or Duragesic for pain.

ER1532

6. In my experience, one or more of these drugs is often effective in alleviating these symptoms in most patients. I have found, however, that in some patients these

1 conventional prescription drugs are inappropriate either because patients cannot tolerate them
2 or because the drugs are ineffective in reaching the central nervous system. Patients 3 frequently complain that Marinol causes haziness or a sense of dizziness or vertigo, among 4 other undesirable side effects. Some of these patients are able to titrate (adjust the quantity)
5 marijuana to obtain relief without the potential negative side effects. I also have patients 6 taking "protease inhibitors" who successfully use marijuana to alleviate the gastrointestinal 7 side effects of these drugs, such as nausea, diarrhea, and bloating. I currently treat at least 75
8 patients for whom I believe medical marijuana is a medically appropriate form of treatment 9 for nausea, anorexia, or pain. For some patients, I believe that medical marijuana may be the 10 only effective medicine. I believe it is my duty as a doctor to provide information about 11 potential medical benefits, as well as risks, of marijuana use for patients for whom it is 12 medically appropriate.

15 7. Because of the nature of my patient population, the expense of drugs such as 16 Marinol is also a relevant issue. Most of my patients are uninsured or underinsured.
17 Medicare does not pay for drugs, and MediCal provides only limited payment.

19 8. Many of my patients used marijuana prior to consulting me. It is important to 20 my evaluation of their conditions that I discuss their use of marijuana, or any other substances 21 that potentially affect their medical history or current conditions. It is also important to 22 patients' personal decisions about medical marijuana use that I discuss with them the risks 23 and benefits of medical marijuana.

25 9. In all aspects of my practice, a secure physician-patient relationship is critical 26 to providing high quality medical care. I depend on my patients to provide me with all 27 information that might have an affect on their health. They depend on me to provide full 28 information about treatment options so that they can make informed choices.

1           10. I am aware of threats by federal officials against physicians who provide 2 information to patients regarding the potential risks or benefits of the medical use of 3 marijuana. Due to fear caused by these threats, I feel compelled and coerced to withhold 4 information, recommendations, and advice to patients regarding use of medical marijuana. I 5 am particularly fearful that the federal government might send in someone posing as a patient 6 in an attempt to gather evidence against me, even though I always act in my best medical 7 judgment. Because of this fear, I have instituted an application procedure for new patients 8 Any patient who desires to consult with me must fill out a form with relevant information. I 9 then decide whether to treat this patient. Since instituting this application procedure, I have 10 turned away a couple of prospective patients because I was suspicious of their motives. In 11 general, I am much more careful in my discussions with new and longstanding patients, and 12 am fearful and reluctant to engage in even limited communications regarding medical

16           I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and 17 the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge

18           Executed at Oakland, California, this 14 day of February, 1997.

1 testify competently to them if called on by the Court to do
2 so.

3       2. I am 44 years old. I have fibromyalgia and multiple 4 sclerosis. I was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in June 5 1998. Both of these conditions cause me to experience severe 6 muscle spasms which are very painful.

7       3. The pain caused by these conditions changes, 8 depending on other stressors in my environment. For example, 9 warm weather causes me to experience more muscle spasms. For 10 the last six months, I have experienced pain from muscle 11 spasms on a daily basis. The pain can be continuous at times.
12 Recently, I have been experiencing tingling in my arms and 13 hands, and the pain has been very intense particularly in my 14 right hand.

15       4. I have tried many traditional medicines to alleviate 16 the pain caused by these severe muscle spasms, but none of 17 them has worked effectively. For example, I have tried 18 baclofen, which caused my legs to become very weak. While 19 using baclofen, I was not able to walk. I have tried other 20 conventional medicines, none of which has worked effectively 21 to alleviate my pain. I have also had allergic reactions and 22 developed over time a hypersensitivity to many traditional 23 medicines. On one occasion, I went into anaphylactic shock 24 and nearly died as a result of an allergic reaction to a 25 conventional drug.

26       5. Because of these harmful, painful and life-27 threatening experiences, I do not want to continue risking my 28 life by trying new conventional medicines. I am afraid to try

1 new medicines because of the violent allergic reactions and 2 side effects I have experienced in the past.

3       6. My doctor gave me a written recommendation for the 4 use of cannabis to alleviate the pain caused by the muscle 5 spasms. I have used cannabis, and it helps me tremendously.
6 The cannabis is the only medicine which effectively and safely 7 alleviates the pain caused by the muscle spasms. The use of 8 cannabis is a medical necessity for me. No other conventional 9 medicine effectively manages the pain I experience from the 10 muscle spasms.

11       7. I understand that the federal government has 12 threatened to prosecute doctors who recommend the use of 13 cannabis to patients. For this reason, I have been hesitant 14 to discuss with my doctors the use of cannabis to treat my 15 condition. I have only felt comfortable discussing the use of 16 cannabis with two of my doctors. One of these two doctors 17 told me that she believes that cannabis is the safest drug she 18 could ever give to me. As a result of my experience with 19 traditional medicines and cannabis, I agree with my doctor 20 that cannabis is the safest drug she can give me to alleviate 21 my pain.

22       8. I have been a member of the Marin Alliance since 23 December 1997, and I visit it every ten (10) days. For this 24 reason, I know that I visited the Marin Alliance several times 25 during the period of May to June 1998. If the Marin Alliance 26 and the other defendant clubs are closed, I will 27

ER1538

1 suffer immediate harm because I will have nowhere legally to 2 obtain cannabis.

3 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing
4 is true and correct.

1 testify competently to them if called on by the Court to do
2 so.

3 2. I am 48 years old. In March 1998, I was diagnosed 4 with squamous cell cancer. My doctor found a cancerous
5 tumor in my pelvic area and cancerous spots in my lungs. I 6 am in stage four of the cancer, and my doctors have told me 7 that with treatment I may have a year to a year and a half 8 to live. I underwent radiation treatments and am now being 9 treated with chemotherapy.

10 3. In or about March 1998, my doctor gave me a 11 written recommendation for cannabis. The chemotherapy 12 caused me to experience nausea, and it has made it almost 13 impossible for me to taste food. I use cannabis to 14 stimulate my appetite. I am a small person, approximately 15 four feet eleven inches tall, and I weigh approximately 87 16 pounds. It is therefore crucial that I maintain my weight.
17 The cannabis is very effective at stimulating my appetite.
18 Without cannabis, I would not want to and I would not be 19 able to eat the amount of food that is necessary to maintain 20 my health. For this reason, the use of cannabis is a 21 medical necessity for me. I do not know of any traditional 22 medicines that would stimulate my appetite effectively, and 23 my doctor has not tried to prescribe any drug for this 24 reason other than cannabis.

25 4. In addition, the cannabis helps me get through the 26 day. Without cannabis, my days would drag on and be a lot 27 harder and longer. The cannabis relaxes me and helps me be 28 more productive.

21 AND RELATED ACTIONS )

22

23 I, EDWARD NEIL BRUNDRIDGE, declare as follows:

24 1. I am a member of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers'
25 Cooperative in Oakland, California (the "Oakland Club"). I 26 am submitting this declaration in support of the motion for 27 leave to intervene in this action. Except where stated on 28 information and belief, I have personal knowledge of the

1 matters set forth in this declaration and could and would 2 testify competently to them if called on by the Court to 3 do so.

4 2. I am 58 years old. I had Hepatitis C which 5 caused damage to my liver. As a result, I am not able to 6 take many traditional medications.

7 3. I have severe arthritis in my right knee. The 8 arthritis is so extensive that I have had to use a cane 9 for the past year. My doctor wanted to prescribe 10 ibuprofen to relieve the swelling caused by the 11 arthritis, but I am allergic to ibuprofen. I understand 12 that ibuprofen is what my doctor generally recommends to 13 alleviate the swelling associated with arthritis. To 14 alleviate the pain caused by the arthritis, I have tried 15 other traditional medicines. These medicines were not 16 effective in relieving that pain. I was either allergic 17 to the traditional medications or they did not alleviate 18 my pain.

19 4. I have successfully used cannabis, however, to 20 alleviate this pain. In addition, cannabis also allows 21 me to be alert, which many of the traditional medicines 22 do not. Cannabis is the only medicine I have used which 23 effectively alleviates the pain caused by the arthritis.

24 5. The traditional medicines I have tried either 25 do not work or are so strong that I cannot participate in 26 the activities that I need to do every day. These 27 necessary daily activities include driving, taking my dog 28 out for walks, shopping, talking to other people, taking

1 care of my finances, riding public transportation, doing 2 the dishes, cleaning my house, reading and answering the 3 telephone. Cannabis, however, alleviates the pain 4 without preventing me from functioning in my daily life.

5 6. I also suffer from insomnia. The cannabis 6 helps me sleep and relieves my anxiety. Without 7 cannabis, I would not be able to sleep. Conventional 8 sleeping pills are highly addictive, and, for that 9 reason, I am not able to take them. I cannot handle 10 conventional sleeping medications and my doctor will not 11 prescribe them for me.

12 7. My doctor told me that I will need to enter the 13 liver institute very soon, which will put me in line for 14 a liver transplant in the next several years. This news 15 has caused me to suffer from anxiety and extreme 16 depression. I am presently seeing a therapist for 17 treatment for these conditions. As a result of my 18 anxiety and depression, I no longer had an appetite. I 19 use cannabis to relieve the stress of my depression and 20 to give me an appetite. I once went without cannabis, 21 and I lost 30 pounds in three weeks. I am presently 22 taking Prozac, which helps alleviate my anxiety and 23 depression, but it does nothing to stimulate my appetite.

24 8. Cannabis is the only drug that effectively 25 gives me an appetite. Without using cannabis, I believe 26 I would not be alive today. For this reason, the use of 27 cannabis is a medical necessity for me. There is no drug 28 other than cannabis that alleviates my pain and

ER1547

1 depression and gives me the appetite I need to stay 2 alive. I have tried many traditional drugs, none of 3 which is effective in alleviating my pain and stimulating 4 my appetite. Many of these traditional drugs were not 5 effective because I was allergic to them.

6 9. There is another reason that I cannot take many 7 traditional medicines. I am a recovering drug abuser and 8 alcoholic. I cannot take many traditional pain relievers 9 because of these addictions. I become easily addicted to 10 traditional pain killers.

11 10. My doctor recommended that I use cannabis, but 12 he was afraid to give me a written recommendation for 13 fear of prosecution by the government and therefore would 14 not give me a written recommendation for cannabis.
15 Nevertheless, he telephoned the Oakland Club and gave it 16 an oral recommendation for cannabis for me. I feel that 17 my private relationship with my doctor has been damaged 18 because of the government's threat of prosecution and the 19 fear it has caused in my doctor to treat me with the only 20 effective medicine for alleviating my pain and 21 stimulating my appetite: cannabis. Because of this 22 fear, I feel that my doctor has been reluctant to discuss 23 cannabis as a possible treatment and he has been 24 reluctant to prescribe it.

25 11. In addition, I feel that my privacy rights have 26 been violated as a result of plaintiff's action to close the 27 Oakland Club and the other defendant clubs to prevent the 28

1 medicinal use of cannabis. I live in constant fear that I 2 will be prosecuted concerning my use of cannabis and that my 3 doctor will be prosecuted for recommending that I use 4 cannabis. I also fear that my private conversations with my 5 physician and my medical records will be made public as a 6 result of the relief sought by plaintiff. If the Oakland 7 Club and the other defendant clubs are closed, I will suffer 8 immediate harm since I will not be able legally to obtain 9 cannabis, which is the only effective treatment available to 10 alleviate my pain and stimulate my appetite.

11 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing
12 is true and correct.

22 I, IMA CARTER, declare as follows:

23 1. I am a member of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers'
24 Cooperative in Oakland, California (the "Oakland Club"). I 25 am submitting this declaration in support of the motion for 26 leave to intervene in this action. Except where stated on 27 information and belief, I have personal knowledge of the 28

1 matters set forth in this declaration and could and would 2 testify competently to them if called on by the Court to do
3 so.

4       2. I am 55 years old. I suffer from several 5 different conditions and injuries which cause me significant 6 and constant pain. I use cannabis for several of these 7 conditions: congenital scoliosis, fibromyalgia and cervical
8 nerve damage which I suffered as a result of being involved 9 in several car accidents in which I was rear-ended. These 10 conditions which include cervical nerve damage in C4 through 11 C7 of my spine, cause me enormous pain in my back. This 12 pain is marked by frequent muscle spasms, and a recurring 13 shooting pain in my head. Cannabis is the only drug in my 14 experience that has effectively treated this pain.

15       3. I have tried numerous traditional medicines for 16 these conditions, none of which was effective. For example, 17 I took steroids and anti-inflammatory drugs. These drugs 18 have caused me to bleed internally.

19       4. I have also tried rhizotomy, which is a laser 20 treatment. During this treatment, a laser beam was burned 21 into the cervical nerves to create scar tissue. The 22 treatment required that I be awake during it and it was 23 excruciatingly painful. It is my understanding that 24 physicians have now discontinued prescribing rhizotomy 25 treatments because they are unbearably painful and useless.
26 The rhizotomy treatments did not relieve my back pain. This 27 pain feels like a hot burning pain going down my left arm 28 into my hand.

1           5.    In addition, I underwent breast reduction surgery to 2 relieve the scoliosis pain in my back. I also tried many 3 different forms of physical therapy, including various 4 exercises, ultrasound, ice packs, jacuzzi treatments and 5 others. None of these even touched the recurring shooting 6 pain I experience in my head.

7           6.    I also have a therapeutic electrical neuro-8 stimulator (a "TENS") unit that controls some of my pain from 9 the cervical nerve damage and scoliosis. However, the TENS 10 unit does not stop or dull in any way the shooting pain that 11 occurs in my head at frequent intervals. I am presently 12 taking morphine as prescribed by my doctor, but it--like the 13 TENS unit--does not stop or dull in any way the frequent pain 14 in my head.

15          7.    I first tried cannabis on the recommendation of my 16 nutritionist, and it is the only drug that I have used that 17 has dulled or stopped the pain. I was once forced to go 18 without cannabis. During this period of time, the pain was 19 completely disabling and prevented me from being able to 20 function. During this time, I could not leave my bedroom due 21 to the pain that recurred every few minutes, and therefore I 22 could not do any of my regular daily activities, such as 23 answering the phone, doing the dishes, running errands, 24 watching television, reading and taking care of my finances.

25          8.    I was afraid to ask my doctor for a recommendation 26 for cannabis. I was afraid of alienating him by asking him 27 for a drug which I understood the government was threatening 28 to prosecute doctors for prescribing. When I asked him, I

1 was nervous and upset. Nevertheless, I asked my doctor to 2 give me a written recommendation for cannabis and he agreed.
3 My doctor monitors my use of cannabis by seeing me 4 frequently and discussing my treatment. In addition, he 5 renews my letter of referral every few months. I feel that 6 my private relationship with my doctor is endangered because 7 of the government's threat of prosecution. The fear it has 8 caused me makes me unable to speak freely with my doctor 9 about my condition and my medical needs when a nurse or 10 assistant is present. Because of this fear I had been 11 reluctant to discuss openly and extensively with my doctor 12 the possibility of using cannabis to treat my condition.

13 9. In addition, I feel that my privacy rights have 14 been violated as a result of plaintiff's action to close the 15 Oakland Club and the other defendant clubs to prevent the 16 medicinal use of cannabis. I live in constant fear that I
17 will be prosecuted for my use of cannabis and that my doctor 18 will be prosecuted for recommending that I use cannabis. I 19 also fear that my private conversations with my physician 20 and my medical records will be made public as a result of 21 the relief sought by plaintiff. If the Oakland Club is 22 closed, I will not be able legally to obtain cannabis, which 23 is the only effective treatment available to alleviate my 24 pain and frequent muscle spasms associated with congenital 25 scoliosis, fibromyalgia and nerve damage.

26 10. As described above, I have previously gone without 27 using cannabis. If the Oakland Club and other defendant 28

1 clubs are shut down or I am in some other way prohibited
2 from obtaining cannabis, I will suffer immediate harm.
3 Using cannabis is a medical necessity for me. When I am not 4 using cannabis, I am completely incapacitated and cannot 5 leave my room. Without cannabis, I experience intense 6 intervals of pain in my head that occur every few minutes.
7 There is no drug other than cannabis that alleviates these 8 shooting pains. I have tried many traditional drugs, 9 including morphine, steroids, rhizotomy treatments and 10 breast reduction surgery, none of which has alleviated the 11 shooting pains.

12 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing
13 is true and correct.

14 Executed this 4th day of August, 1998 at Oakland, 15 California.

NOTICE OF MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on September 28, 1998, at 2:30 p.m., in the United States Courthouse at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, in the courtroom normally occupied by the Honorable Charles R. Breyer, plaintiff, the United States of America, will move in limine to exclude the defendants, the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative ("OCBC") and Jeffrey Jones in Case No. C 98-0088 CRB (collectively the "OCBC defendants"); and defendants Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana ("Marin Alliance") and Lynnette Shaw in Case No. C 98-0086 CRB (collectively the "Marin Alliance defendants"), from presenting evidence regarding the affirmative defenses of medical necessity, substantive due process, or joint users. As is demonstrated below, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to present any competent evidence regarding these affirmative defenses that is sufficient to present to a jury and, in any event, they fail as a matter of law. The Court should therefore hold these defendants in civil contempt of the May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Orders and grant the relief sought by the United States.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

From the time this Court entered its Preliminary Injunction Orders on May 19, 1998, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have publicly announced that they would defy these injunctions, and the record now reveals their widespread, open, and notorious violations of the Courts's lawful decrees. While the Orders to Show Cause entered by the Court on September 3, 1998, focus on two specific days, it is obvious from the numbers of distributions of marijuana conducted on these days, as well as the nature of the defenses asserted by the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants, that the transactions for which these defendants have been called to account for are merely the tip of a very large iceberg. For example, only two days after the Court entered the Preliminary Injunction Orders on May 19, nearly two hundred persons "visited" the OCBC, and the OCBC defendants do not contest that they distributed marijuana to these persons on that date. Instead, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants raise affirmative defenses which, as we

1 demonstrate below, fail as a matter of fact and law. Under these circumstances, the time has come
2 for the Court to vindicate its authority, reject the affirmative defenses put forward by the OCBC 3 and Marin Alliance defendants, and grant the relief sought by the United States.

4 ARGUMENT

5 I. STANDARDS

6 Absent a stay, "all orders and judgments of courts must be complied with promptly."
7 Maness v. Meyers, 419 U.S. 449, 458 (1975). The Ninth Circuit's rule regarding contempt 8 therefore "has long been whether defendants have performed 'all reasonable steps within their 9 power to insure compliance' with the court's orders." Stone v. City and County of San Francisco, 10 968 F.2d 850, 856 (9th Cir. 1992) (quoting Sekaquaptewa v. MacDonald, 544 F.2d 396, 404 (9th 11 Cir. 1976), cert. denied, 430 U.S. 931 (1977)), cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1081 (1993). Once the 12 moving party has met its initial burden of establishing a prima facie case by clear and convincing 13 evidence that the contemnors violated a specific and definite order of the court, the burden of 14 production shifts to the non-moving party to prove either substantial compliance with the court's 15 order or inability to comply. United States v. Rylander, 460 U.S. 752, 757 (1983). To satisfy this 16 burden, the non-moving party must show "categorically and in detail" either substantial 17 compliance or inability to comply. See Donovan v. Mazzola, 716 F.2d 1226, 1240 (9th Cir.
18 1983), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 1040 (1984).

19 A parties' subjective intent is irrelevant in civil contempt proceedings. See, e.g., In re 20 Crystal Palace Gambling Hall, Inc., 817 F.2d 1361, 1365 (9th Cir. 1987). The sole question is 21 whether a party complied with the district court's order. See, e.g., McComb v. Jacksonville Paper 22 Co., 336 U.S. 187, 191 (1949). In assessing whether an alleged contemnor took "every reasonable 23 step" to comply with the terms of an injunction, a district court can consider (1) a history of 24 noncompliance and (2) a failure to comply despite the pendency of the contempt motion. Stone, 25 968 F.2d at 857. A district court has "wide latitude in determining whether there has been a 26 contemptuous defiance of its order." Gifford v. Heckler, 741 F.2d 263, 266 (9th Cir.1984).

1 II. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS' FAILURE TO CONTEST
2 THAT THEY DISTRIBUTED MARIJUANA, AND USED THEIR PREMISES FOR 3 THE PURPOSE OF DISTRIBUTING MARIJUANA, ON MAY 21 AND 27, 1998, 4 CONSTITUTES AN EVIDENTIARY ADMISSION

5 In their responses to the Court's Show Cause Orders, neither the OCBC nor Marin 6 Alliance defendants deny that they distributed marijuana, and used their respective premises for 7 the purpose of distributing marijuana, on May 21 and 27, 1998, respectively. Rather, they strain 8 to avoid acknowledging these facts by referring, for example, to "alleged" distributions of 9 marijuana and "visits" to the OCBC, as opposed to actual distributions and use of marijuana on 10 their premises. OCBC Response to Show Cause Order in Case No. C 98-0088 CRB ("OCBC 11 Resp.") at 1, 4.<sup>1</sup> While these circumlocutions may represent an attempt to avoid admissions for 12 criminal law purposes, they do not suffice as denials in these civil contempt proceedings. As set 13 forth above, the non-moving party in contempt proceedings must prove "categorically and in 14 detail" substantial compliance or inability to comply with a court's order. Donovan, 716 F.2d at 15 1240.

16 Moreover, the Supreme Court has often stated that, in civil cases, the "[f]ailure to contest 17 an assertion * * * is considered evidence of acquiescence * * * if it would have been natural under 18 the circumstances to object to the assertion in question." Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 19 319 (1976) (quoting United States v. Hale, 422 U.S. 171, 176 (1975)). This is because, as Justice 20 Brandeis explained, "[c]onduct which forms a basis for inference is evidence. Silence is often 21 evidence of the most persuasive character." United States ex rel. Bilokumsky v. Tod, 263 U.S.
22 149, 153-54 (1923). See also 3A J. Wigmore, Evidence s 1042 (Chadbourn rev. 1970) ("A failure 23 to assert a fact, when it would have been natural to assert it, amounts in effect to an assertion of

24 <sup>1</sup> Indeed, the only possible inference that can be drawn from defendants' declarations and 25 other evidence is that they are engaged in the distribution of marijuana. Thus, the OCBC 26 defendants state, for example, that their evidence "establishes that "that OCBC is a professional 27 and well-managed organization which provides a safe place for seriously ill persons to receive 28 physician-approved medical cannabis * * * * Its mission is to provide seriously ill patients with a safe and reliable source of medical cannabis products and plants." OCBC Resp. at 7.

1 the non-existence of the fact.”) (cited with approval in Baxter, 425 U.S. at 319 n.3). Courts 2 therefore have followed the “well recognized” principle that “adverse inferences may properly be 3 drawn from silence by parties in civil cases.” Watson v. Perry, 918 F. Supp. 1403, 1415-16 (W.D.
4 Wash. 1996), affd, 124 F.3d 1124 (9th Cir. 1997).

5 Here, where the Court has ordered the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants to show 6 cause why they should not be held in contempt for distributing marijuana and using their 7 respective premises for this purpose, on May 21 and 27, 1998, respectively, there can be no debate 8 that it would have been “natural under the circumstances” for the defendants to deny these 9 allegations, if they were able to do so. But the OCBC and Marin Alliance have made no such 10 denials in their responses, and have never taken issue, as a factual matter, with the United States’ 11 evidence that they have distributed marijuana and maintained their respective premises for this 12 purpose following the entry of the May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Orders. Under these 13 circumstances, the defendants’ failure to contest these facts may properly be “considered evidence 14 of acquiescence.” Baxter, 425 U.S. at 319; Hale, 422 U.S. at 176.

16 defenses of medical necessity, substantive due process, and joint users in responding to the 17 Court’s Show Cause Orders. As we demonstrate below, none of these alleged defenses, both as a 18 matter of fact and law, can withstand scrutiny.

19 III. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO 20 OFFER EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT TO GO TO A JURY ON THEIR DEFENSE OF 21 MEDICAL NECESSITY, AND THE DEFENSE IS UNAVAILABLE TO THEM AS 22 A MATTER OF LAW

23 The OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to offer any competent evidence 24 establishing that each and every person to whom they distributed marijuana on May 21 and 27, 25 1998, respectively, could establish the defense of medical necessity, and that the defendants were 26 aware of the circumstances of their conditions when they sold them marijuana. In its May 13, 27 1998 Memorandum and Order, the Court made clear what kind of evidentiary showing would be 28 necessary for the defendants to maintain a defense of medical necessity. Borrowing the Court’s

1 language, “for the defense to be available here, defendants would have to prove that each and 2 every patient to whom it provide[d] marijuana [on May 21, 1998] is in danger of imminent harm;
3 that cannabis will alleviate the harm for that patient; and that the patient had no other alternatives, 4 for example, that no other legal drug could have reasonably averted the harm.” United States v.
5 Cannabis Cultivators Club, 5 F. Supp.2d 1086, 1102 (N.D. Cal. 1998) (emphasis supplied). This 6 is because, the Court held, “the defense of necessity has never been allowed to exempt a 7 defendant from the criminal laws on a blanket basis.” Id.

8 The OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to make this required evidentiary 9 showing. The OCBC defendants, for example, have submitted declarations from Kenneth Estes, 10 Ima Carter, David Sanders, and Yvonne Westbrook, who were listed in the press conference 11 statement issued by the OCBC, see OCBC Resp. at 3-4, as well as three other patients of the 12 OCBC, Robert T. Bonardi, Albert Dunham, and Harold Sweet, and two officials of the club who 13 also are customers, Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., and Laura Galli, R.N. Id. Under these 14 circumstances, the Court may properly assume that, with the exception of Mr. Sanders,<sup>2</sup> the 15 OCBC distributed marijuana to these individuals on May 21.<sup>3</sup> Yet, with the exception of the 16 declaration of Dr. Alcalay, none of these proffered declarations is accompanied by competent 17 medical testimony regarding whether there alternative, legal drugs that are available to treat the 18 symptoms in question.

19 Moreover, the OCBC defendants have offered no evidence whatsoever regarding the 20 medical conditions and treatments of the remaining 175-plus persons to whom (it is safe to 21 assume) they distributed marijuana on May 21, with the exception of the chart attached to the 22 declaration of Dr. Alcalay. Instead, the OCBC defendants simply submit declarations from Dr.

24 <sup>2</sup> Mr. Sanders declares that he was not present at the OCBC on May 21. Declaration of David 25 Sanders ¶ 3.

26 <sup>3</sup> The OCBC defendants attempt to have it both ways insofar as none of these individuals 27 expressly states that they were provided marijuana by the OCBC on May 21.

1 Alcalay and James D. McClelland, the Chief Financial Officer of the OCBC,<sup>4</sup> who purport to 2 describe the medical conditions and necessities of OCBC members. For example, Dr. Alcalay 3 states that:

4       Although every patient's experience is unique, some general comments apply to many 5 patients. Some Cooperative members have tried other legal medications to alleviate their 6 conditions, but these other medications do not work for them. For other members, other 7 medications have intolerable negative side effects they have chosen not to endure. Some 8 members' experiences with other legal medications is that, while they are somewhat 9 effective, they are not nearly as effective at relieving their symptoms as medical cannabis.

10 Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D. ("Alcalay Dec.") ¶ 20 (emphasis supplied).<sup>5</sup> Likewise, 11 Mr. McClelland states that "many patient-members of the Cooperative have no reasonable legal 12 alternative to obtaining medical cannabis from the Cooperative." Declaration of James D.
13 McClelland ("McClelland Dec.") ¶ 12 (emphasis supplied).

14       This Court has already ruled, however, that such generalized statements are insufficient to 15 establish the medical necessity defense for the defendants. In pertinent part, the Court held that 16 similar statements made at the preliminary injunction stage, to the effect that "for many" people, 17 legal drugs are not effective, "is not the same as saying that for each and every person to whom 18 [the OCBC] provide[s] * * * marijuana, legal drugs are not effective such that marijuana is a 19 necessity." 5 F. Supp.2d at 1102.

20       And the OCBC defendants' submission of declarations from several physician's fails for 21 the same reason. Almost exclusively, these doctors make generalized statements regarding the

22       <sup>4</sup> Mr. McClelland's declaration should be stricken to the extent he is put forward as an expert 23 under Fed. R. Evid. 702. Mr. McClelland has no medical degree or training, and is not 24 competent to offer medical opinions regarding the OCBC's customers.

25       <sup>5</sup> The OCBC defendants make much of Dr. Alcalay's calculation that 66% of the patients who 26 "came" to the OCBC on May 21, 1998 suffered from HIV and/or AIDS; 4% suffered from 27 cancer; 2% suffered from glaucoma; 1% suffered from multiple sclerosis; and "almost" 20% 28 suffered from disorders involving chronic pain. OCBC Resp. at 8-9; Alcalay Dec. ¶ 23. But 66% + 4% + 1% + 2% + 20% does not equal 100% (and, indeed, there may be some overlap in the categories). The OCBC defendants apparently do not wish to highlight that among the persons to whom they distributed marijuana on that day included persons suffering from "general anxiety disorder," rotator cuff syndrome, stress, and headaches.

1 | alleged medical efficacy of marijuana, but none discusses the particular medical condition of a
2 | person to whom the OCBC distributed marijuana on May 21, or any other day. Nor have the
3 | OCBC defendants established that they had knowledge of the alleged medical necessity for any 4 | specific "patient-member" based a review of these individuals' medical records at the time they
5 | distributed marijuana to them.

6 |         At bottom, none of the evidence offered by the OCBC defendants discusses the specific
7 | medical conditions and circumstances of each and every of the 191 persons who "visited" the club
8 | on May 21, including whether each and every of these customers was facing an "imminent harm,"
9 | and whether each and every person had tried alternative, legal medications. These evidentiary
10 | omissions are fatal to the OCBC defendants' invocations of the medical necessity defense.

11 |         The evidence submitted by the Marin Alliance defendants is even weaker. The only
12 | evidence offered by these defendants is the declaration of defendant Lynnette Shaw, who states
13 | simply that "[e]ach of the members [of the Marin Alliance] has presented documentation
14 | establishing that they suffer from one or more serious medical conditions for which their
15 | physician has recommended or approved the use of medicinal cannabis." Declaration of Lynnette
16 | Shaw ¶ 10. No competent medical testimony is provided by the Marin Alliance defendants. Here
17 | again, sweeping, nonspecific statements of the sort made by Ms. Shaw "[are] not the same as 18 | saying that for each and every person to whom [the OCBC] provide[s] * * * marijuana, legal
19 | drugs are not effective such that marijuana is a necessity." 5 F. Supp.2d at 1102. Accordingly,
20 | the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to demonstrate there is sufficient evidence
21 | to go to a jury on this issue.

22 |         In addition, as we have demonstrated in our prior pleadings, the defendants' invocation of
23 | the medical necessity defense, regardless of any factual showing that they might make, fails as a
24 | matter of law. While we will not repeat each of these arguments here, we briefly address three of 25 | them.

1           First, the statutory scheme of the Controlled Substances Act abrogates any defense of 2 medical necessity for marijuana, or any other substance in Schedule I. As we have demonstrated 3 in our prior pleadings, Congress itself placed marijuana in Schedule I,<sup>6</sup> which means that the 4 substance has "no currently accepted medical use in treatment in the United States," and "a lack of 5 accepted safety for use * * * under medical supervision." 21 U.S.C. § 812(b)(1). Congress also 6 prevented practitioners from prescribing substances in Schedule I, id. §§ 829(a)-(c); indicated that 7 the only legitimate medical or scientific use for a substance in Schedule I is in the context of a 8 controlled research project approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services and 9 registered with the DEA, id. § 823(f); and established an exclusive statutory framework wherein 10 controlled substances that have been placed in Schedule I (or any other schedule) may be 11 rescheduled, or removed from the five schedules, in recognition of the fact that the schedules may 12 sometimes need to be modified to reflect changes in scientific knowledge and patterns of abuse of 13 particular drugs. Id. § 811(a). Under these circumstances, Congress has abrogated any possibility 14 of a defense of medical necessity here. See generally 1 Walter LaFave & Austin W. Scott, Jr., 15 Substantive Criminal Law § 5.4, at 631 (1986).<sup>7</sup>

16           Indeed, the medical testimony submitted by the OCBC defendants actually serves to 17 underscore this point. A cursory review of this evidence demonstrates that, at a trial, the OCBC 18 defendants would attempt to prove, as a general matter, the medical efficacy of marijuana.

20           <sup>6</sup> See 21 U.S.C. § 812 Schedule I(c)(10).

21           <sup>7</sup> In addition, just this past week, the House of Representatives passed a Joint Resolution 22 (House Joint Resolution 117), in which it was resolved that "Congress continues to support the 23 existing Federal legal process for determining the safety and efficacy of drugs and opposes 24 efforts to circumvent this process by legalizing marijuana, and other Schedule I drugs, for 25 medical use without valid scientific evidence and the approval of the Food and Drug 26 Administration * * * *." 144 Cong. Rec. H7719-01 (September 15, 1998); 144 Cong. Rec.
27 H7783-02 (September 15, 1998). This Joint Resolution further underscores Congress's binding 28 legislative determination that marijuana currently has no medical value, and that the only avenue to change marijuana's placement as a Schedule I controlled substance is through the section 811 rescheduling process.

1 Congress, however, has reserved any such determination to the Drug Enforcement Administration 2 ("DEA") and Secretary of Health and Human Services, see 21 U.S.C. § 811(a), with review in the 3 court of appeals, 21 U.S.C. § 877. Based on this statutory scheme, every court of appeals to have 4 considered the issue has held that this is the exclusive avenue by which to challenge the 5 placement of a drug in Schedule I (or any other schedule, for that matter). See, e.g., United States 6 v. Burton, 894 F.2d 188, 192 (6th Cir.); cert. denied, 498 U.S. 857 (1990); United States v.
7 Greene, 892 F.2d 453, 455 (6th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 495 U.S. 935 (1990); United States v.
8 Fry, 787 F.2d 903, 905 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 861 (1986); United States v. Wables, 731
9 F.2d 440, 450 (7th Cir. 1984); United States v. Fogarty, 692 F.2d 542, 548 & n.4 (8th Cir. 1982), 10 cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1040 (1983); United States v. Middleton, 690 F.2d 820, 823 (11th Cir.
11 1982), cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1051 (1983); United States v. Kiffer, 477 F.2d 349, 356-57 (2d Cir.
12 1972), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 831 (1973).

13 Second, during the August 31, 1998 hearing, the Court indicated that it considered the 14 Ninth Circuit's decision in United States v. Aguilar, 883 F.2d 662 (9th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 15 498 U.S. 1046 (1991), to be the "most instructive * * * in the context of the medical necessity 16 defense." August 31, 1998 Transcript of Proceedings at 44. Aguilar is not only instructive, it is 17 controlling here. In that case, the defendants had been convicted of violating various provisions of 18 the immigration laws for their participation in the "sanctuary movement," which was aimed at 19 smuggling, transporting, and harboring refugees from Central America. On appeal, the defendants 20 contended that they were entitled to an instruction on necessity at trial because the Immigration 21 and Naturalization Service ("INS") had continually frustrated the ability of these individuals to 22 obtain refugee status.

23 The Ninth Circuit rejected this contention, holding that the defendants had failed to avail 24 themselves of reasonable, legal alternatives to their actions. Aguilar, at 693-94. In particular, the 25 Ninth Circuit found that the defendants had "failed to appeal to the judiciary to correct any alleged 26 improprieties by the INS and the immigration court." Id. at 693. In addition, the court rejected

1 the defendants' claim that this alternative was unavailable to them because "newly arriving 2 refugees needed immediate help," determining that they could have pursued a provisional remedy 3 in the courts, or initiated an action on behalf of the aliens, seeking initial provisional relief and 4 ultimate permanent relief. Id. at 694. The Ninth Circuit concluded that "this legal alternative 5 nullifies the existence of necessity for all the underlying crimes stated * * * *." Id.

6 Similarly here, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants had the right to appeal from the 7 Court's Preliminary Injunction Orders. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1). Moreover, to the extent they 8 believed that immediate relief was necessary, these defendants could have moved to modify the 9 Preliminary Injunction Orders to allow for the distribution of marijuana in particular 10 circumstances or cases. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).<sup>8</sup> And if these defendants believed an 11 emergency was present, they could have sought expedited relief from the Court under the Local 12 Rules. See Local Rule 7-10 (allowing for expedited motions); Local Rule 13 7-11 (allowing for ex parte motions).

14 These legal alternatives foreclose, as a matter of law, the OCBC and Marin Alliance 15 defendants' invocation of the medical necessity defense. Their sole attempt to meet this prong of 16 the necessity test is to argue that, generally, their members had no other legal or safe method of 17 acquiring marijuana from other sources. This is manifestly not the test for medical necessity. To 18 the extent these defendants had legal alternatives to violating the Preliminary Injunction Orders 19 through the court process, their invocation of the defense of necessity cannot stand. See Aguilar, 20 883 F.2d at 693-94. See also United States v. Dorell, 758 F.2d 427, 431 (9th Cir. 1985) (holding 21 that, while "[t]hose who wish to protest in an unlawful manner frequently are impatient with less 22 visible and more time-consuming alternatives," such impatience "does not constitute the 23 'necessity' that the defense of necessity requires.").

25
26 <sup>8</sup> The United States does not concede, of course, that any such modification of the Preliminary 27 Injunction Orders would be appropriate under the Controlled Substances Act.

1        Third, as we have demonstrated previously, we are aware of no case in which a court has 2 offered a medical necessity instruction in the context of distribution, rather than mere possession, 3 and the defendants have cited to none. On the contrary, the majority in People v. Peron, 59 Cal.
4 App. 4th 1383, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (1997), review denied (Feb. 25, 1998), expressly declined to 5 adopt the notion that distribution is a "necessary antecedent" to possession. Id. at 1390-1396, 70 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d at 25-28 (holding that sale or distribution of marijuana remains illegal under 7 California law even following the passage of Proposition 215). This same result should be 8 reached here.

9        For all these reasons, the Court should grant the United States' motion in limine preventing 10 the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants from presenting any evidence regarding the defense of 11 medical necessity.

12 IV. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO 13 OFFER EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT TO GO TO A JURY ON THEIR DEFENSE OF 14 SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS

15        For the same reasons, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to offer any 16 competent evidence establishing that each and every person to whom they distributed marijuana
17 on May 21 and May 27, 1998, respectively, could establish a claim based on substantive due 18 process. Again, in its May 13, 1998 Memorandum and Order, the Court made clear what kind of 19 evidentiary showing would be necessary for the defendants to maintain a defense of substantive 20 due process. Borrowing the Court's language, "[i]n order for the Court to conclude that 21 defendants have a substantive due process defense to [civil contempt], the Court would have to 22 find that the substantive due process right of each and every patient to whom the defendants 23 [distributed marijuana on May 21 or May 27, 1998 was] violated if the government prevents 24 defendants from doing so." 5 F. Supp.2d at 1103 (emphasis supplied). Thus, although this Court 25 noted that a defense based on substantive due process "may be available in a contempt proceeding 26 where the trier of fact is presented with a particular transaction to a particular patient under a

1 particular set of facts," the Court made clear that such a defense "is not available, however, to 2 exempt generally the distribution of marijuana from the federal drug laws." Id.

3 The OCBC and Marin Alliance fall far short of making this required evidentiary showing.
4 Thus, although the OCBC defendants admit that 191 persons "visited" the club on May 21, and 5 provide a chart which merely lists the medical diagnoses for these individuals, they offer no
6 evidence regarding the specific medical circumstances and conditions of these patients. OCBC 7 Resp. at 12 (simply asserting that "[a]ll of the patients have medical conditions which require the 8 use of cannabis"). The Marin Alliance defendants, on the other hand, offer no evidence 9 whatsoever regarding those persons to whom they distributed marijuana on May 27. Response of 10 Defendants Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana and Lynnette Shaw to Order to Show Cause in 11 Case No. C 98-0086 CRB ("Marin Resp.") at 3 ("[Marin Alliance] and Shaw contend that each 12 patient/member of the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana has a serious medical condition for 13 which cannabis provides relief." (emphasis supplied)).

14 These bare, unsupported assertions fail to satisfy the burden required of the defendants in 15 responding to the Court's Show Cause Orders. Rather than provide specific, detailed evidence 16 regarding each and every person to whom they distributed marijuana on May 21 and 27, 1998, the 17 OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants once again rely upon generalized statements concerning the 18 alleged medical efficacy of marijuana. The OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants thus have 19 failed to demonstrate there is sufficient evidence to go to a jury on this issue.<sup>9</sup>

20 Furthermore, as we have demonstrated in our prior pleadings, the OCBC and Marin 21 Alliance, as a matter of law, cannot establish that the use of marijuana for medical purposes is "so 22

23 <sup>9</sup> These defendants also have failed to demonstrate that they have standing to raise this claim 24 on behalf of their patients. See, e.g., Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 499 (1975) (a party "must 25 assert his own legal rights and interests, and cannot rest his claim to relief on the legal rights or 26 interests of third parties"). Although in Singleton v. Wulff, 428 U.S. 106 (1976), the Supreme 27 Court held that a physician could assert the privacy rights of female patients in abortion cases, this narrow exception to the general rule of standing should not be extended to the instant cases, where the defendants are not physicians.

1 | rooted in the traditions and conscience of our people as to be ranked as fundamental."
2 | Washington v. Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 2268 (1997). In Carnohan v. United States, 616 F.2d
3 | 1120 (9th Cir. 1980), a controlling case which the OCBC defendants once again fail to address,
4 | the Ninth Circuit held that a patient does not have a substantive due process right to any particular
5 | form of treatment. In pertinent part, the court held that the "[c]onstitutional rights of privacy and
6 | personal liberty do not give individuals the right to obtain laetrile free of the lawful exercise of the 7 | government's police power." Id. at 1122. The Ninth Circuit's decision in Carnohan, which
8 | constitutes binding precedent here, is consistent with that of every other court of appeals to have
9 | considered the issue. See, e.g., Sammon v. New Jersey Bd. of Medical Examiners, 66 F.3d 639,
10 | 645 n.10 (3d Cir. 1995) ("In the absence of extraordinary circumstances, state restrictions on a
11 | patient's choice of a particular treatment also have been found to warrant only rational basis
12 | review."); Mitchell v. Clayton, 995 F.2d 772, 775-76 (7th Cir. 1993) ("[A] patient does not have a
13 | constitutional right to obtain a particular type of treatment or to obtain treatment from a particular
14 | provider if the government has reasonably prohibited that type of treatment or provider");
15 | Rutherford v. United States, 616 F.2d 455, 457 (10th Cir.) ("[T]he decision by the patient whether
16 | to have a treatment or not is a protected right, but his selection of a particular treatment, or at least
17 | a medication, is within the area of governmental interest in protecting public health."), cert.
18 | denied, 449 U.S. 937 (1980). See also Smith v. Shalala, 954 F. Supp. 1, 3 (D.D.C. 1996) (quoting
19 | Carnohan for proposition that there was no substantive due process right "to obtain unapproved
20 | drugs free of the lawful exercise of government police power.").<sup>10</sup>

23 | <sup>10</sup> The defendants did contend during the March 24, 1998 hearing that the right in question is 24 | "not a constitutional right to select medicine, but a constitutional right to select the effective
25 | medicine that's been presented." March 24, 1998 Transcript of Proceedings at 84. This is a
26 | distinction without a difference. Certainly the advocate of laetrile in Carnohan, or the plaintiff
27 | suffering from advanced stage Hodgkin's lymphoma in Smith, believed the drugs which they 28 | wished to use was the only effective medicine to treat their respective cancers. The Ninth Circuit and other courts nonetheless rejected, as a matter of law, the substantive due process arguments raised by the plaintiffs in those cases.

1 The Marin Alliance defendants attempt to meet this issue by arguing that the government 2 does not have a rational basis for the restriction on the distribution of marijuana for medical use.
3 Marin Resp. at 4. Assuming this contention is properly before the Court, section 841(a)(1)'s 4 prohibition on the distribution of marijuana easily passes this standard.

5 The Supreme Court has made clear that, "[w]hen Congress undertakes to act in areas 6 fraught with medical and scientific uncertainties, legislative options must be especially broad and 7 courts should be cautious not to rewrite legislation, even assuming, arguendo, that judges with 8 more direct exposure to the problem might make wiser choices." Jones v. United States, 463 U.S.
9 354, 370 (1983) (quoting Marshall v. United States, 414 U.S. 417, 427 (1974)). When it enacted 10 the Controlled Substances Act in 1970, Congress placed marijuana in Schedule I, where it 11 remains today. 21 U.S.C. § 812 Schedule I(c)(10). In addition, recognizing that the schedules 12 may sometimes need to be modified to reflect changes in scientific knowledge and patterns of 13 abuse of particular drugs, Congress established a statutory framework under which controlled 14 substances that have been placed in Schedule I (or any other schedule) may be rescheduled, or 15 removed from the five schedules. Id. § 811(a). Under this statutory and regulatory framework, 16 any interested party they can file a petition to have marijuana rescheduled, see id.; 21 C.F.R. §§
17 1308.44(a), with review in a court of appeals. See 21 U.S.C. § 877. Thus, for example, the DEA
18 Administrator's 1992 decision not to reschedule marijuana, based on his finding that the record 19 demonstrated that marijuana had "no currently accepted medical use in treatment in the United 20 States," and had to remain in Schedule I, 57 Fed. Reg. 10,499 (Mar. 26, 1992), was upheld by a 21 unanimous panel of the D.C. Circuit. Alliance for Cannabis Therapeutics v. Drug Enforcement 22 Admin., 15 F.3d 1131 (D.C. Cir. 1994). In pertinent part, that court held that the Administrator's 23 findings were "consistent with the view that only rigorous scientific proof can satisfy the 24 [Controlled Substances Act's] 'currently accepted medical use requirement.'" Id. at 1137.<sup>11</sup>

26
27 <sup>11</sup> The petitioners did not seek Supreme Court review.

1 Given this statutory framework, Congress' placement of marijuana in Schedule I satisfies 2 the rational basis test. As the Second Circuit has held, "[t]he very existence of the statutory 3 scheme indicates that, in dealing with the 'drug' problem, Congress intended flexibility and 4 receptivity to the latest scientific information to be the hallmarks of its approach. This * * * is the 5 very antithesis of the irrationality [defendants] attribute[] to Congress." Kiffer, 477 F.2d at 357.
6 Accord National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws v. Bell, 488 F. Supp. 123, 142
7 (D.D.C. 1980) (three-judge panel) (same).

8 Nor does the Marin Alliance's "expert" testimony in any way alter this conclusion. In his 9 declaration, Christopher P.M. Conrad merely states that, "[b]ased upon my research and review of 10 scientific studies and relevant evidence, it is my opinion that there is virtually no scientific basis 11 for the placement of cannabis in Schedule I." Declaration of Christopher P.M. Conrad ("Conrad 12 Dec.") ¶ 11.<sup>12</sup> This bare assertion cannot in any way undermine the considered judgment of 13 Congress in placing marijuana in Schedule I. As the Sixth Circuit has made clear, a section 811 14 petition, "and not the judiciary, is the appropriate means by which defendant should challenge 15 Congress's classification of marijuana as a Schedule I drug." Greene, 892 F.2d at 456.

16 For all these reasons, the Court should grant the United States' motion in limine preventing 17 the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants from presenting any evidence regarding the defense of 18 substantive due process.

19 V. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO
21 JOINT USERS

21 Nor have the OCBC or Marin Alliance defendants offered any competent evidence 22 supporting their continued invocation of the defense of "joint users." The defendants contend they 23 have submitted evidence "that as to the transactions alleged, the patient-members are joint users 24

25 <sup>12</sup> Mr. Conrad's declaration should be stricken to the extent he is put forward as an expert 26 under Fed. R. Evid. 702. Mr. Conrad offers only general statements regarding his background, 27 does not provide any academic credentials, and does not identify the "scientific studies and relevant evidence" which he has considered.

1 within the meaning of [United States v. Swiderski, 548 F.2d 445 (2d Cir. 1977)]." OCBC Resp.
2 at 12. Even assuming arguendo that Swiderski is good law in the Ninth Circuit, which is an open 3 question, see United States v. Wright, 593 F.2d 105, 108 (9th Cir.1979), a close examination of 4 the "evidence" submitted by the defendants reveals that it falls far short of the specific, factual
5 showing required by the Second Circuit in Swiderski.

6 As a preliminary matter, the Marin Alliance defendants have offered no evidence 7 whatsoever in support of this alleged defense. Instead, they merely refer the Court to pages 17-19 8 of the Defendants' Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Show Cause, and for 9 Summary Judgment, filed August 14, 1998. See Marin Resp. at 6. Yet this memorandum itself 10 was bereft of any evidentiary showing regarding the joint user defense. The Marin Alliance 11 defendants therefore have failed to provide the Court with "sworn declarations outlining the 12 factual basis for any affirmative defenses which they wish to offer," as this Court required in its 13 September 3, 1998 Order to Show Cause.

14 The OCBC defendants' evidentiary showing, while marginally stronger, also is 15 insufficient as a matter of fact and law. The OCBC defendants point the Court to two 16 declarations, submitted by Dr. Alcalay, the club's Medical Director, and Mr. McClelland, the 17 Chief Financial Officer of the OCBC, who state, in identical language, that:

18 The patient-members of the Cooperative are joint participants in a cooperative effort to 19 obtain and sell medical cannabis. Patient-members of the Cooperative jointly acquire 20 marijuana for medical purposes to be shared among themselves and not with anyone else.
21 No third persons are involved other than "primary caregivers" who are responsible for the 22 housing, health, or safety of the patient. Any payment made to the Cooperative constitutes 23 reimbursement for administrative expenses and operations which all patient-members who 24 utilize the services of the Cooperative agree to share.

22 Alcalay Dec. ¶ 30; McClelland Dec. ¶ 18. The OCBC defendants also note that all members of 23 the club agree to a "Statement of Conditions," which states, inter alia, that "[a]s a Member of the 24 Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative, you are a joint participant in a cooperative effort to 25 obtain and share medical cannabis. Each transaction in which you participate is not a 'sale' or 26 'distribution,' but a sharing of jointly obtained medical cannabis." McClelland Dec. ¶¶ 18-19 &

1 Exhibit 4. The OCBC defendants assert that these statements establish that "[n]o 'distribution' 2 takes place because the Cooperative and its patient-members jointly acquire the cannabis for 3 medical purposes to be shared among themselves and not with anyone else." OCBC Resp. at 13.

4 These conclusory assertions do not come close to the factual showing required by 5 Swiderski. In that case, the factual record revealed that a man and woman had simultaneously and 6 jointly purchased cocaine in a hotel room with the intent of sharing it only between themselves.
7 548 F.2d at 448. Under this narrow set of facts, the Second Circuit held that:

8 [W]here two individuals simultaneously and jointly acquire possession of a drug for their 9 own use, intending only to share it together, their only crime is personal drug abuse simple 10 joint possession, without any intent to distribute the drug further. Since both acquire 11 possession from the outset and neither intends to distribute the drug to a third person, 12 neither serves as a link in the chain of distribution.

13 Id. at 450. The Second Circuit was careful to caution, however, that "[o]ur holding here is limited 14 to the passing of a drug between joint possessors who simultaneously acquired possession at the 15 outset for their own use." Id. at 450-51 (emphasis supplied).

16 The Ninth Circuit has refused to extend the scope of the Swiderski ruling to cases which 17 do not involve joint and simultaneous acquisition. In Wright, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a district 18 court's denial of a Swiderski instruction in a case in which two individuals had allegedly intended 19 to purchase and use heroin jointly, but only one of the two individuals -- the defendant -- had 20 actually procured the heroin. In pertinent part, the Ninth Circuit held that, even assuming that 21 Swiderski was good law,<sup>13</sup> "[t]his is not a case in which two individuals proceeded together to a 22 place where they simultaneously purchased a controlled substance for their personal use. Here 23 Wright operated as the link between the person with whom he intended to share the heroin and the 24 drug itself." 593 F.2d at 108 (emphasis supplied). Therefore, because the defendant had not

24 <sup>13</sup> As we note above, the Wright court expressly declined to express an opinion as to whether 25 Swiderski was good law in the Ninth Circuit. 593 F.2d at 108. Other circuits have also declined 26 to adopt the reasoning of Swiderski. See United States v. Speer, 30 F.3d 605, 608 (5th Cir.
27 1994) ("This Circuit has not adopted the Swiderski doctrine nor have we found that any other 28 circuit has done so."), cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1028 (1994), 513 U.S. 1098 (1995).

1 "simultaneously and joint acquire[d] possession" of the heroin, "[h]is actions exceeded the scope
2 of the rule propounded in Swiderski." Id.

3 Here, neither the OCBC or Marin Alliance defendants offer a scintilla of evidence that 4 they and their customers simultaneously acquired marijuana, as Swiderski and Wright require.
5 This evidentiary failure is fatal to their invocation of the joint user defense. As this Court held in 6 granting the government's motions for preliminary injunctions:

7 Swiderski involved a simultaneous purchase by a husband and wife who testified they 8 intended to use the controlled substance immediately. Applying Swiderski to a medical 9 marijuana cooperative would extend Swiderski to a situation in which the controlled 10 substance is not literally purchased simultaneously for immediate consumption. In light of 11 the fact that Swiderski has never been so extended, and in light of the fact that it has not 12 been adopted by the Ninth Circuit, the Court concludes that it is reasonably likely that 13 such a defense would not prevail at a trial addressing whether injunctive relief should be 14 granted.

15 5 F. Supp.2d at 1101. See also United States v. Washington, 41 F.3d 917, 920 (4th Cir. 1994)
16 (affirming district court's denial of Swiderski instruction because "[a] defendant who purchases a 17 drug and shares it with a friend has 'distributed' the drug even though the purchase was part of a 18 joint venture to use drugs"). The OCBC defendants have offered no factual evidence which in 19 any way alters this conclusion.<sup>14</sup>

20 Moreover, the sheer volume of customers at the OCBC on May 21, 1998 -- 191 -- dictates 21 rejection of the joint user defense. In order to satisfactorily establish such a defense, the OCBC 22 defendants would have to show that the club and all 191 members who obtained marijuana from 23 the club on May 21, 1998, simultaneously purchased and jointly acquired the marijuana.
24 Common sense reveals the absurdity of any such assertion, and those courts which have 25 considered similar attempts to extend Swiderski have rejected them. See, e.g., United States v.

26 <sup>14</sup> The OCBC defendants also fail to satisfy the requirement that the drug not be distributed to 27 third parties. See, e.g., Wright, 593 F.2d at 108; Swiderski, 548 F.2d at 450. Putting aside the 28 absurdity of the OCBC defendants' apparent assertion that they do not distribute to third parties because all 1300-plus club members "jointly acquire" marijuana, these defendants admit they distribute marijuana to "primary caregivers," who have not "jointly acquired" the drug with the club. OCBC Resp. at 14; Alcalay Dec. ¶ 30. Based on this fact alone, the joint user defense is unavailable to these defendants.

1 Rush, 738 F.2d 497, 514 (1st Cir. 1984) (declining to extend Swiderski "to situations where more 2 than a couple of defendants and a small quantity of drugs are involved."), cert. denied, 470 U.S.
3 1004 (1985); United States v. Taylor, 683 F.2d 18, 21 (1st Cir.) (finding Swiderski inapplicable to 4 complex marijuana distribution organization), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 945 (1982). What the 5 defendants are urging is to transform an extremely narrow defense applicable to a handful of 6 small-time buyers into a gaping exemption that major distributors of controlled substances (which 7 the defendants are) could use to their advantage. This cannot have been the intention of the 8 Swiderski court.

9       The OCBC defendants also make the argument that "Swiderski's rationale applies with 10 equal force to the use of medical cannabis in compliance with state and local laws," and that 11 "[j]udicial resistance to expansion of the Swiderski doctrine clearly has been based on concerns 12 about its possible use as a 'cover' for illicit drugs." OCBC Resp. at 13. The OCBC defendants 13 cite no authority in support of this assertion and, not surprisingly, there is none. In essence, the 14 OCBC defendants are arguing that, because they are allegedly complying with Proposition 215 15 and Oakland Ordinance No. 12706,<sup>15</sup> Swiderski should provide them with immunity from the 16 requirements federal law. But there is nothing in the text of Swiderski (or any other authority for 17 that matter) that in any way hinges on application of state or local law. And even if there were, 18 this Court has already ruled that "[a] state law which purports to legalize the distribution of 19 marijuana for any purpose, however, even a laudable one, nonetheless directly conflicts with 20 federal law, 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1)." 5 F. Supp.2d at 1100.

24       <sup>15</sup> While not necessary for the Court to resolve this issue, we note that the California Court of 25 Appeal in Peron held that Proposition 215 did not legalize the distribution of marijuana under 26 state law, and that a cannabis distribution organization similar to the defendants here did not 27 meet Proposition 215' definition of a "primary caregiver." 59 Cal. App. 4th at 1390-96, 70 Cal.
Rptr. 2d at 25-28.

1 For all these reasons, the Court should grant the United States' motion in limine preventing 2 the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants from presenting any evidence regarding the defense of 3 joint users.

4 VI. THE DEFENDANTS' OBJECTIONS TO THE COURT'S SHOW CAUSE
5 ORDERS AND CONTEMPT PROCEDURES ARE WITHOUT FOUNDATION

6 Finally, the OCBC defendants raise a number of objections to the Court's Show Cause 7 Orders and contempt procedures. As we demonstrate below, none of these objections has merit.

8 A. The Court's Show Cause Orders Provide the OCBC and Marin Alliance
9 Defendants With Ample Notice of The Alleged Violations of The May 19, 1998
10 Preliminary Injunction Orders

11 The OCBC defendants first contend that the government's evidentiary showing "does not 12 provide specific notice or evidence of the charges, thereby impairing defendants' ability to 13 respond to the specific charges and to present evidence concerning their defenses." OCBC Resp.
14 at 3. For example, the OCBC defendants assert that, "[g]iven the vagueness of these allegations 15 and the government's failure to identify the individuals to whom it is alleged cannabis was 16 distributed, defendants lack sufficient information to admit or deny these specific allegations." Id.
17 at 3 n.2. See also id. at 4 ("Because many patients visited the Cooperative on [May 21, 1998], 18 defendants cannot identify the specific persons to whom Agent Ott alleges cannabis was 19 distributed.").

20 These contentions fundamentally misapprehend the procedure employed in civil contempt 21 proceedings and the plain language of this Court's Show Cause Orders. It is the Show Cause 22 Orders, and not the initial evidentiary showing made by the United States, to which the defendants 23 must respond in these contempt proceedings. And the Show Cause Orders entered by the Court 24 could not be more clear. In granting the government's motion for an order to show cause against 25 the OCBC defendants, the Court determined that the United States had made a prima facie case 26 that the OCBC defendants were in violation of the Court's Preliminary Injunction Order, and 27 therefore ordered the OCBC defendants "to show cause why they should not be held in civil 28 contempt of the Court's May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Order by distributing marijuana and

1 by using the premises of 1755 Broadway Avenue, Oakland, California, for the purpose of 2 distributing marijuana, on May 21, 1998 * * * *.” Order to Show Cause in Case No. C 98-0088 3 CRB at 4. Likewise, in granting the government’s motion for an order to show cause against the 4 Marin Alliance defendants, the Court determined that the United States had made a prima facie
5 case that the Marin Alliance defendants were in violation of the Court’s Preliminary Injunction 6 Order, and therefore ordered the Marin Alliance defendants “to show cause why they should not 7 be held in contempt of the Court’s May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Order by distributing 8 marijuana and by using the premises of 6 School Street Plaza, Fairfax, California, for the purpose 9 of distributing marijuana, on May 27, 1998 * * * *.” Order to Show Cause in Case No. C 98-10 0086 CRB at 3.

11       The Show Cause Orders thus provided the defendants with ample notice of the alleged 12 contemptuous actions; namely, that on May 21 and 27, 1998, respectively, the OCBC and Marin 13 Alliance defendants had distributed marijuana, and used their respective premises for the purpose 14 of distributing marijuana, in violation of the Court’s May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Orders.
15 In other words, the Court’s Show Cause Orders did not carve out a subset of the defendants’ 16 marijuana distributions on the May 21 and 27, 1998, but rather require the OCBC and Marin 17 Alliance defendants to justify any and all such distributions on these respective dates. All of this 18 information is in the possession of the defendants. Consequently, there is no merit to the 19 defendants’ somewhat ironic suggestion that, because they cannot determine which of the 20 numerous distributions of marijuana in which they engaged on the dates in question are the 21 subject of the Court’s Show Cause Orders.

24
25 26
27

1 B. The Contempt Procedures Adopted by the Court are Consistent With Ninth Circuit
2 Precedent

3 The OCBC defendants next appear to challenge the Court's determination that their right 4 to a jury trial is subject to a motion in limine by the United States, arguing that, "[i]f the Court 5 determines that it should proceed, the defendants are entitled to a jury trial." OCBC Resp. at 6.

6 This argument ignores established Ninth Circuit precedent. In Peterson v. Highland 7 Music, Inc., 140 F.3d 1313 (9th Cir. 1998), the Ninth Circuit reaffirmed that "[a] trial court may 8 in a contempt proceeding narrow the issues by requiring that affidavits on file be controverted by 9 counter-affidavits and may thereafter treat as true the facts set forth in uncontroverted affidavits."
10 Id. at 1324 (quoting Hoffman v. Beer Drivers & Salesmen's Local Union No. 888, 536 F.2d 1268, 11 1277 (9th Cir. 1976)). Moreover, where the affidavits offered in support of a finding of contempt 12 are uncontroverted, a district court's decision not to hold a full-blown evidentiary hearing does not 13 violate due process. Id. The contempt procedures adopted by the Court here is fully consistent 14 with this precedent.

15 C. There is No Basis for Immunity in these Cases

16 Finally, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants complain that the instant contempt 17 proceedings infringe upon their customers' Fifth Amendment rights, and request that the Court 18 provide immunity "to witnesses willing to come forward with * * * evidence." OCBC Resp. at 3.
19 As we have demonstrated in our prior pleadings, "[a] defendant has no absolute right not to be 20 forced to choose between testifying in a civil matter and asserting his Fifth Amendment 21 privilege." Keating v. Office of Thrift Supervision, 45 F.3d 322, 326 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 516 22 U.S. 827 (1995). It therefore is "permissible for the trier of fact to draw adverse inferences from 23 the invocation of the Fifth Amendment in a civil proceeding." Id. (citing Baxter, 425 U.S. at 318).
24 Furthermore, a district court lacks authority to itself grant immunity under the federal immunity 25 statute, 18 U.S.C. § 6003. See United States v. Doe, 465 U.S. 605, 616-17 (1984). Accordingly, 26 there is no basis for immunity in these actions.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, the Court should grant the United States' motion in limine to exclude the affirmative defenses offered by the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants, hold defendants in civil contempt of the May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Orders, and enter the relief proposed by the United States.

I. THE GOVERNMENT MISCHARACTERIZES THE SCOPE OF THE PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION AND THE TYPE OF ACTIVITY THAT WOULD CONSTITUTE A VIOLATION.

In its Motions in Limine, the government fails to recognize the scope of the Court's Preliminary Injunction. The government argues as if the Preliminary Injunction enjoined these defendants from distributing marijuana, and ignores the additional directive of the Preliminary Injunction that defendants are enjoined from distributing marijuana in violation of the Controlled Substances Act. For example, the government states that Shaw and MAMM "have publicly announced that they would defy these injunctions..." Government Motion, at 1:17). Yet the declarations submitted by the government fail to support this allegation. The government offered the following evidence against MAMM and SHAW:

1. A recorded telephone message stated that MAMM was still open under the medical necessity defense;
2. An unidentified female answered a telephone stating "Marin Alliance" and informed an undercover DEA agent of the requirements to become a member of the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana;
3. MAMM maintained a web site which provided information about how to become a member and information about Proposition 215;
4. Defendant SHAW stated that the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana was open and expressed her belief that a jury would understand the idea of the medically necessary use of marijuana; and

1           5.    An undercover DEA agent observed 14 people
2 between the ages of "late teens/early twenties to elderly" enter 3 the premises of the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana over a 4 2 1/2 hour period, some of whom rolled and smoked what appeared 5 to be marijuana cigarettes outside the office.<sup>1</sup>

6           None of this evidence supports the government's 7 characterization of 'public announcements of defiance' and 8 "widespread, open, and notorious violations of the Court's 9 lawful decrees". Government Motion, at 1:18. Rather it helps 10 to illustrate the essential schism between the government's and 11 the defendants' respective positions. The government believes 12 that all distribution of marijuana is always in violation of the 13 Controlled Substances Act, while the defendants, without 14 admitting that any distribution has taken place, (see section 15 II, below), submit that marijuana may be distributed for medical 16 purposes without violating the Controlled Substances Act and 17 that, in fact, in order for the Controlled Substances Act to 18 lawfully proscribe medical marijuana, the government must 19 establish a rational basis for its total restriction, (see 20 section III, below).

26           <sup>1</sup>This last contention by the government is a further example of its propensity for mischaracterization.
27 In his investigation report, Agent Nyfeler wrote that he observed "several people exit the club, roll their own 28 cigarettes, and smoke them in the area directly [sic] outside the club". (See Nyfeler DEA-6 Report of Investigation, attached hereto as Exhibit A). Nowhere in the actual report does it indicate in any way that the cigarettes appeared to be marijuana, smelled like marijuana, or were smoked like marijuana as opposed to tobacco.

1 II. THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED 2 TO BENEFIT FROM ITS OWN FAILURE TO 3 IDENTIFY SPECIFIC TRANSACTIONS

4 In the Court's May 13, 1998, Memorandum and Order, the 5 Court anticipated that "if the federal government alleges that 6 defendants have violated the injunction, there will be specific 7 facts and circumstances before the Court from which the Court 8 can determine if the jury should be given a necessity 9 instruction as a defense to the alleged violation of the 10 injunction." Memorandum and Order, at 21:5. The Court further 11 noted, in addressing the Substantive Due Process argument that 12 "[s]uch a defense may be available in a contempt proceeding 13 where the trier of fact is presented with a particular 14 transaction to a particular patient under a particular set of 15 facts." Memorandum and Order, at 23:3.

16 The government has failed to present the Court or MAMM 17 and SHAW with any allegation of a specific transaction under a 18 specific set of facts. Rather, the government has merely 19 alleged that 14 people in the age group of "late teens/early 20 twenties to elderly" entered the Marin Alliance for Medical 21 Marijuana office and some of them, (defendants have no idea how 22 many or of which ages), later exited and rolled and smoked 23 cigarettes. (Exhibit A, attached hereto).

24 The government tries to overcome this obvious factual
25 insufficiency by arguing that MAMM and SHAW have admitted 26 distribution of marijuana on May 27, 1998, by failing to deny 27 it. Government Motion, Argument II, at 3:1. A review of MAMM 28 and SHAW's Response to the Order to Show Cause reveals that the government again mischaracterizes the defense submission. The

1 Response specifically states that MAMM and SHAW do not admit 2 that the government has established that any distribution of 3 marijuana has taken place. Response, at 2:3. Furthermore, in 4 her Declaration SHAW specifically denied that marijuana was 5 smoked outside the MAMM office on May 27, 1998, or at any time.
6 Declaration of Lynnette Shaw in Support of Response to Order to 7 Show Cause, para. 9.

8           The government's position essentially is that because 9 MAMM and SHAW are unable to ascertain the identity of particular 10 persons based on the inarguably vague "descriptions" provided by 11 the government, the defendants should be precluded from 12 presenting a defense. The Court should not allow the government 13 to play such games when the health and well being of sick and 14 dying individuals is at stake.

16                   III.           THE GOVERNMENT MUST SHOW A 17                                   RATIONAL BASIS FOR DENYING 18                                   ACCESS TO MEDICAL MARIJUANA

19           In its effort to preclude SHAW and MAMM from 20 presenting a Substantive Due Process argument, the government 21 relies on a circular argument, essentially maintaining that the 22 fact that Congress placed marijuana in Schedule I establishes 23 proof that it had a rational basis to do so. MAMM and SHAW 24 admit that the "rational basis" standard is a fairly easy one to 25 meet. However it is a standard that must be met if the 26 government is to lawfully deny medical marijuana to any patient.
27 See Euclid v. Ambler Realty Co., 272 U.S. 365, 395 (1926); Patel
28 v. Penman, 103 F.3d 868, 874 (9th Cir. 1996); Bateson v. Geisse, 857 F.2d 1300, 1303 (9th Cir.1988); Carnohan v. United States,

3 v. Privitera, 23 C.3d 697, 707-708, cert. denied, 444 U.S. 949 4 (1979).

5           For all of its protestations regarding the framework 6 developed by Congress and the petitioning process, the 7 government has glaringly failed to submit any scientific 8 evidence to support its contention that a rational basis exists 9 to ban medical marijuana. It is not surprising that the 10 government is employing a strategy to avoid, at all costs, an 11 open and fair review of the scientific evidence. SHAW and MAMM 12 herein make an offer of proof that should this Court or any 13 impartial jury review the evidence they will reach the same 14 conclusion of virtually every previous comprehensive study, and 15 will find, in the words of Judge Francis L. Young, that 16 "marihuana, in its natural form, is one of the safest 17 therapeutically active substances known to man.... One must 18 reasonably conclude that there is accepted safety for use of 19 marihuana under medical supervision. To conclude otherwise, on 20 the record, would be unreasonable, arbitrary, and capricious."

1 IV. THE COURT SHOULD NOT STRIKE THE 2 DECLARATION OF CHRISTOPHER P. M. CONRAD

3 The government asks this Court to strike the 4 Declaration of Christopher P. M. Conrad because, the government 5 argues, "Mr. Conrad offers only general statements regarding his 6 background, does not provide any academic credentials, and does 7 not identify the 'scientific studies and relevant evidence' 8 which he considered". Government Motion, at 15, n.12.

9 A review of Mr. Conrad's Declaration reveals that he 10 has provided substantially more than "general statements 11 regarding his background", including the authorship of two books 12 relevant to the issues in this case, testimony before the 13 National Academy of Science Institute of Medicine hearings on 14 medical marijuana, and his recognition as an expert by numerous 15 courts in California. The fact that he has gained his expertise 16 through investigation, observation, research, and self education, 17 rather than attending a university program in medical marijuana, 18 (assuming such a program even exists), does not preclude him 19 from qualifying as an expert.

20 Rule 702 of the Federal Rules of Evidence provides as 21 follows:

22 If scientific, technical, or other
23 specialized knowledge will assist the trier 24 of fact to understand the evidence or to 25 determine a fact in issue, a witness
26 qualified as an expert by knowledge, skill, 27 experience, training, or education, may 28 testify thereto in the form of an opinion or otherwise.

27 There is no requirement that a qualifying expert must 28 provide academic credentials. The Rule recognizes that one may 1 gain expertise "by knowledge, skill, experience, training, or 2 education".

3           There is also no requirement that an expert must state 4 all materials he or she has assimilated in gaining expertise or 5 in helping to form opinions. If the government questions 6 Mr. Conrad's credentials or the studies and other evidence he 7 has reviewed in forming his opinion, the appropriate procedure 8 is for the government to make the inquiry in the form of cross-9 examination. Rule 705 of the Federal Rules of Evidence 10 anticipates this issue in providing as follows:

11           The expert may testify in terms of opinion
12 or inference and give reasons therefor 13 without first testifying to the underlying 14 facts or data, unless the court requires 15 otherwise. The expert may in any event be 16 required to disclose the underlying facts or 17 data on cross-examination.

18           V.                           CONCLUSION

19           Defendants MAMM and SHAW should be allowed to present 20 the defenses as stated in their Response to the Order to Show 21 Cause. Additionally, the government should bear the burden of 22 establishing a rational basis for its total ban on the medicinal 23 use of marijuana.

DETAILS

- On May 27, 1998, at approximately 9:30 AM, surveillance was established by S/A Bill Nyfeler at the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana (MAMM), 6 Old School Street Plaza, Suite 210, Fairfax, CA.
- At approximately 9:54 AM, S/A Nyfeler observed the first person enter the MAMM. Over the next two hours, 13 more people (14 total) entered the MAMM. These people varied in age from late teens/early twenties to elderly. S/A Nyfeler observed several people exit the club, roll their own cigarettes, and smoke them in the area directly outside the club.
- Surveillance was terminated at approximately 12:01 PM.

1 TO ALL PARTIES HEREIN AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 In anticipation of trial on the government's allegations that defendants are in contempt of this 3 Court's Preliminary Injunction Order, defendants Jeffrey Jones and the Oakland Cannabis Buyers'
4 Cooperative ("defendants") bring this Application For Use Immunity For Statements Or Testimony 5 Of Defendant And Defense Witnesses In Case No. C 98-0088 CRB. This request for use immunity is 6 based upon two related grounds. First, as to defendant Jeffrey Jones, use immunity is necessary to 7 protect both his right of liberty from civil incarceration, "the most fundamental of all constitutional 8 rights," and his Fifth Amendment privilege not to incriminate himself. Second, defendants request 9 that this Court grant use immunity for any statements or testimony offered by defense witnesses 10 because this testimony may be necessary to avoid a distortion of the fact-finding process and thus to 11 safeguard defendants' due process right to a fair trial.

12 This application is necessary because at oral argument on August 31, 1998, in response to the 13 Court's request, the government announced its intention not to grant use immunity for any testimony 14 which may be offered by defendant or defense witnesses. This Court has the discretion to grant use 15 immunity to defendant and to defense witnesses to avoid any distortion of the fact-finding process in 16 the show cause proceedings and to ensure that defendants receive a fair trial.

1 INTRODUCTION

2 On August 31, 1998, the government asserted in open court that it would refuse to immunize 3 from use in any possible subsequent criminal proceedings any statements or testimony which may be 4 offered by defense witnesses in these show cause proceedings. As a direct result, many patients who 5 may have obtained cannabis from the cooperative after May 19, 1998 (the date of the Preliminary 6 Injunction Order) are afraid to come forward to offer testimony in these show cause proceedings.
7 Similarly, some of these patients' doctors are also unwilling to offer testimony in these proceedings 8 without immunity. The government has asserted in its moving papers, however, that the medical 9 necessity defense and other defenses should not be available to the defendant cannabis buyers' 10 cooperatives unless they can establish the applicability of these defenses to each and every member 11 who obtained cannabis from a cooperative on a given day. The government also has argued that 12 "competent medical testimony," over and above what has already been provided, is necessary to 13 defendants' defenses. Should the government continue to assert such arguments in these 14 proceedings, and should the Court be receptive to these arguments, use immunity for defense 15 witnesses' statements or testimony will be necessary to avert any distortion of the fact-finding 16 process and thus to safeguard defendants' due process right to a fair trial.

17 STATEMENT OF FACTS

18 On August 31, 1998, at oral argument this Court asked the government whether it would 19 provide use immunity for statements or testimony of any defense witness. See Transcript of 20 Proceedings of August 31, 1998 at 85. The government replied that it would not do so. Id.

21 Defendants recognize that this Court issued an Order to Show Cause why they should not be 22 held in contempt for allegations of marijuana distributions which may have occurred in violation of 23 the Controlled Substances Act on May 21, 1998, two days after this Court's Preliminary Injunction 24 Order issued. See Declaration of Andrew A. Steckler ("Steckler Decl.") at ¶ 2. In light of this Order, 25 defendants have diligently attempted to obtain sworn declarations of patient-members who came to 26 the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative (the "Cooperative") on May 21, 1998 and of their 27 referring doctors. Steckler Decl. at ¶ 3; Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H. ("Alcalay 28 Decl.") at ¶ 26. Many of these patients and their doctors, however, are afraid, or are unwilling, to

1 sign any declaration as a result of the federal government’s announced intention not to immunize any 2 such declarations or testimony offered in this proceeding from use in any possible subsequent 3 criminal proceedings. Steckler Decl. at ¶ 4. Alcalay Decl. at ¶ 26. If these statements and testimony 4 were immunized from use in any possible future criminal prosecution many of these patients and 5 their doctors would sign declarations or testify detailing for the Court their medical conditions and 6 their dire need for medical cannabis to alleviate their conditions. Id.

7 The government has asserted in its moving papers that defendants are obligated “to present 8 ‘specific facts’ which either controverts the evidence submitted by the United States or supports their 9 alleged defenses of medical necessity, substantive due process, and joint users with respect to each 10 and every individual to whom they distributed marijuana after May 19, 1998.” Plaintiff’s 11 Consolidated Replies In Support Of Motion To Show Cause Why Non-Compliant Defendants Should 12 Not Be Held In Contempt at 9-10 (emphasis in original). The government has given no indication it 13 intends to abandon this argument. Indeed, in its most recent filing in this case, the government has 14 made the fact of the defendants’ alleged failure to present specific evidence as to each and every 15 patient who visited the Cooperative on May 21, 1998, the very centerpiece of its argument.
16 Plaintiff’s Motions In Limine To Exclude Defendants’ Affirmative Defenses (“Gov’t’s In Limine 17 Mot.”) at 4-7, 11, 12, 21. The government has also argued that defendants have not submitted 18 sufficient “competent medical testimony.” Gov’t’s In Limine Mot. at 5.

19 ARGUMENT

20 This Court has the power to grant use immunity covering all statements or testimony offered 21 by defendant and defense witnesses in any show cause proceedings, and to ensure that any such 22 statements or testimony may not be used in any possible subsequent criminal proceedings. The 23 Court’s authority to grant this immunity is based on two separate, but related, lines of authority—24 both of which are rooted in defendants’ due process right to a fair trial. Each is discussed in turn 25 below.

27
28

1 I. THIS COURT SHOULD GRANT USE IMMUNITY TO STATEMENTS OR 2 TESTIMONY BY DEFENDANT JEFFREY JONES IN ORDER TO PROTECT 3 BOTH HIS PRIVILEGE AGAINST SELF-INCRIMINATION AND HIS 4 CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT TO BE FREE FROM CIVIL INCARCERATION.

5 Courts have the power and the discretion to confer use immunity to statements or testimony 6 by a defendant or a party when he would otherwise be forced to choose between two conflicting 7 constitutional rights and to wholly abandon one of these rights. This judicial power exists not only 8 despite, but precisely because, the government has failed to confer such immunity.

9 In Simmons v. United States, 390 U.S. 377 (1968), the Supreme Court considered the situation 10 in which a criminal defendant was faced with a choice between two constitutional rights. The 11 defendant in Simmons confronted the following dilemma: whether to testify at a pre-trial evidentiary 12 suppression hearing in order to establish the requisite standing requirement to bring a Fourth 13 Amendment motion to suppress illegally obtained evidence (thereby waiving his Fifth Amendment 14 privilege against self-incrimination), or whether to exercise his Fifth Amendment right not to testify 15 at the suppression hearing (thereby foregoing his Fourth Amendment right to challenge illegally 16 obtained evidence). The Supreme Court concluded that:

17 In these circumstances, we find it intolerable that one constitutional right 18 should have to be surrendered in order to assert another. We therefore hold 19 that when a defendant testifies in support of a motion to suppress evidence on 20 Fourth Amendment grounds, his testimony may not thereafter be admitted 21 against him at trial on the issue of guilt unless he makes no objection.

22 Id. at 394. Subsequent courts have applied this judicial use immunity doctrine to immunize from use 23 in future proceedings testimony that is predicate to a Speech and Debate Clause defense, In re Grand 24 Jury Investigation, 587 F. 2d 589, 597 (3d Cir. 1978), as well as testimony predicate to a double 25 jeopardy defense. United States v. Inmon, 568 F.2d 326, 332-33 (3d Cir. 1977), cert. denied, 26 444 U.S. 859 (1979).

27 The Third Circuit also applied the Simmons judicial use immunity in a case directly 28 analogous to that presented here. In United States v. Perry, 788 F.2d 100 (3rd Cir.), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 864 (1986), the criminal defendant confronted the dilemma of whether (1) to offer favorable testimony at his bail hearing, which testimony was required as a result of the presumption of dangerousness arising under the Bail Reform Act, or (2) to safeguard his Fifth Amendment right

1 not to testify at all. The Perry Court first noted that “[t]he absence of statutory authority to grant 2 use-fruits immunity is not dispositive, however, because the Supreme Court has long recognized that 3 the courts may prevent the use at trial of testimony by a defendant that was necessary for the 4 vindication of a constitutional right.” Id. at 115 (citing Simmons, 390 U.S. at 393-94, Government of 5 the Virgin Islands v. Smith, 615 F.2d 964, 969-70 (3d Cir. 1980) (discussed infra), and United 6 States v. Herman, 589 F.2d 1191, 1196, 1203-04 (3d Cir. 1978), cert. denied, 441 U.S. 913 (1979)
7 (discussed infra)). The Court found that the trial court should have granted use immunity even over 8 the objection of the prosecution, reasoning as follows:

9 Under the Bail Reform Act the defendant’s testimony may be necessary to 10 vindicate the most fundamental of all constitutional rights, the right of liberty
11 from civil incarceration. The availability of a judicial grant of use-fruits 12 immunity with respect to a defendant’s testimony in rebutting the presumption 13 is both appropriate, and in this case necessary to avoid holding that [the Bail 14 Reform Act] violates the fifth amendment.

15 Perry, 788 F.2d at 116 (emphasis added). The granting of judicial use immunity in Perry enabled the 16 defendant there to avoid the dilemma of “suffering a grave invasion of a constitutional right or 17 risking self-incrimination by attempting to vindicate that right.” Id.

18 The same dilemma confronts defendant Jeffrey Jones in this case. At a minimum Jeffrey 19 Jones faces potential monetary fines if this Court were to find him in civil contempt. International 20 Union, UMWA v. Bagwell, 512 U.S. 821, 828 (1994). But Jeffrey Jones also faces in civil contempt 21 proceedings the risk of civil incarceration. Id. This is precisely the same risk the Perry Court 22 concluded was sufficient to warrant the Court’s granting use immunity so that the defendant would 23 not be forced to abandon his privilege not to offer any statements which may be used against him in 24 any possible subsequent criminal proceedings. Here, this Court too should provide immunity to 25 defendants’ testimony in order to “vindicate the most fundamental of all constitutional rights, [his] 26 right of liberty from civil incarceration.” Perry, 788 F.2d at 116.

27 II. THIS COURT SHOULD GRANT USE IMMUNITY TO STATEMENTS OR 28 TESTIMONY BY DEFENSE WITNESSES TO PROTECT DEFENDANTS’
RIGHT TO DUE PROCESS AND A FAIR TRIAL.

Many courts have recognized the fact that the government alone cannot be relied upon to decide when and under what circumstances use immunity should be conferred to protect a

1 defendant's right to due process and a fair trial. The government is an adversary seeking a particular 2 result, and it is with that result in mind that the government decides whether to grant or to refuse use
3 immunity. Courts, unlike the government, must be relied upon to protect the defendants' due process
4 rights to a fair trial. See, e.g., United States v. Alessio, 528 F.2d 1079, 1082 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 5 426 U.S. 948 (1976). ("Of course, whatever power the government possesses may not be exercised 6 in a manner which denies the defendant the due process guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment").

7 In United States v. Herman, 589 F.2d 1191 (3d Cir. 1978), cert. denied, 441 U.S. 913 (1979) 8 the Court recognized that in certain cases a court may exercise its "inherent authority to effectuate the 9 defendant's compulsory process right by conferring a judicially fashioned immunity upon a witness 10 whose testimony is essential to an effective defense." Herman, 589 F.2d at 1204. The Court also 11 recognized that the due process clause might compel a court's granting use immunity to defense 12 witnesses where government actions denying use immunity to defense witnesses were undertaken 13 with the "deliberate intention of distorting the judicial fact finding process." Id. The Court stated in 14 Herman: "It would seem that a case in which clearly exculpatory testimony would be excluded 15 because of a witness's assertion of the fifth amendment privilege would present an even more 16 compelling justification for such a grant [of judicial immunity] than that accepted in Simmons itself." 17 Id. at 1204. A year later, in Government of the Virgin Islands v. Smith, 615 F.2d 964, 969-70 (3d Cir.
18 1980), the Third Circuit found sufficient evidence in the case before it to constitute a prima facie 19 showing, under either of the Herman due process theories, that judicial use immunity was required to 20 safeguard the defendant's right to a fair trial. Id. at 973-74. The Court held that "a court has inherent 21 authority to immunize a witness capable of providing clearly exculpatory evidence on behalf of a 22 defendant . . ." Id.

23 The Ninth Circuit similarly has recognized and approved the Court's inherent power to grant 24 use immunity to defense witnesses when necessary to protect a defendant's due process right to a fair 25 trial. See, e.g., United States v. Lord, 711 F.2d 887, 890-92 (9th Cir. 1983); United States v.
26 Westerdahl, 945 F.2d 1083, 1085-87 (9th Cir. 1991). In Lord, the Court applied the reasoning and 27 logic of Herman and Smith to find on the facts before it that the defendant may have been denied a 28 fair trial as a result of the failure to provide use immunity to the testimony of a defense witness. The

1 Court determined that the defendant had established a prima facie showing that the defense witness's 2 testimony was relevant. Lord, 711 F.2d at 891. The Court also determined that “[t]he record [could] 3 also be read to suggest that prosecutorial misconduct caused [the defense witness] to invoke his fifth 4 amendment privilege against self-incrimination.” Id. In Lord, the evidence suggested that the 5 prosecutor had told the defense witness that whether he was prosecuted depended on his testimony
6 and that the prosecutor had told the witness about the self-incrimination privilege. Id. The Court 7 found that “an un rebutted prima facie showing of prosecutorial misconduct that could have prevented 8 a defense witness from giving relevant testimony justifies remand for an evidentiary hearing . . . on 9 whether the prosecutor intentionally distorted the fact-finding process by deliberately causing [the 10 defense witness] to invoke his fifth amendment privilege.” Id. Although the Court relied upon the 11 possibility of the prosecutor’s distortion of the fact-finding process, it also stated that “the key issue 12 in the analysis of defense use immunity is whether the defendant was denied a fair trial.” Lord, 711 13 F.2d at 892.

14 Subsequent cases have applied the same analysis. In Westerdahl, the Ninth Circuit found that 15 the defendant had satisfied both elements of what has become known as the Lord test—(1) that the 16 evidence sought from the nonimmunized witness was relevant and (2) that the government distorted 17 the judicial fact-finding process by denying immunity to the potential witness. Westerdahl, 945 F.2d 18 at 1086. In Westerdahl, the nonimmunized defense witness would have testified that the defendant 19 had not committed the robbery that was at issue in the case; his testimony was therefore clearly 20 relevant. Id. In its discussion of the second part of the Lord test, the Court stated that 21 “[prosecutorial] misconduct is not confined solely to situations in which the government 22 affirmatively induces a witness not to testify in favor of a defendant.” Id. at 1087. In Westerdahl, the 23 government had granted use immunity to two witnesses who testified that the defendant had 24 committed the crime, but had refused to grant such immunity to the defendant’s witness. Id. The 25 Court stated that this “is the type of fact-finding distortion we intended to prevent in Lord.” Id.
26 Because the defendant therefore had satisfied both parts of the Lord test, the Court ruled that “an 27 evidentiary hearing should have been held to determine whether the government intentionally 28 distorted the fact-finding process.” Id.

1 Here, defendants satisfy both parts of the Lord test. First, the testimony of patient-members 2 who came to the Cooperative on May 21, 1998, and their doctors is directly relevant to whether these 3 patients had a medical necessity and/or a constitutionally protected fundamental right to medical 4 cannabis. As the Court stated in Westerdahl, “[t]his evidence is clearly relevant to the fact-finding 5 process.” Westerdahl, 945 F.2d at 1086. Second, the government repeatedly argues that, in order for 6 their defenses to be available to them, defendants must show that cannabis is medically necessary for 7 each and every patient-member who came to the Cooperative after May 19, 1998, and that each and 8 every member has a fundamental right to this medicine. However, as is plain from the evidence 9 already submitted to this Court, many of these patients and their doctors will not come forward and 10 provide testimony unless their statements or testimony is immunized. The government has refused to 11 grant use immunity to these defense witnesses. Therefore, if the government intends to continue to 12 argue that defendants have a burden to come forward with evidence concerning each and every 13 member, and to come forward with an even stronger showing of “competent medical testimony,” 14 then this constitutes at least a prima facie showing of the government’s intentional distortion of the 15 fact-finding process. Under Lord and its progeny, judicially conferred use immunity for defense 16 witnesses is therefore required.<sup>1</sup>

17 For the foregoing reasons, this Court should grant use immunity to defense witnesses. In the 18 alternative, at the least this Court should conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine the extent to 19 which the government has attempted and is attempting to distort the fact-finding process by not 20 granting use immunity to defense witnesses.

21 CONCLUSION

22 For all of the foregoing reasons, defendants respectfully request this Court to grant defendant 23 Jeffrey Jones and the defense witnesses use immunity for any relevant testimony they are prepared to 24 provide the Court in these proceedings. In the alternative, defendants respectfully request that this 26 <sup>1</sup> The government here is doing far more than simply asking for an adverse inference from the 27 invocation of the Fifth Amendment in a civil proceeding. See Gov’t’s In Limine Mot. at 22. It has 28 made this invocation the very centerpiece of its arguments.

1 Court conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine the extent to which the government has attempted 2 to distort the fact-finding process in these proceedings.

1 I, ANDREW A. STECKLER, declare:

2 1. I am a member of the bar of the State of California, and an associate at the law firm of 3 Morrison & Foerster LLP, and represent defendants Jeffrey Jones and the Oakland Cannabis Buyers'
4 Cooperative in this matter. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein, and if called as a 5 witness, I could and would testify competently as to them.

6 2. On September 3, 1998, this Court issued an Order To Show Cause why defendants 7 should not be held in contempt for allegations of marijuana distribution which may have occurred in 8 violation of the Controlled Substances Act on May 21, 1998, two days after this Court's Preliminary 9 Injunction Order issued.

10 3. In light of this Show Cause Order, defendants and their counsel have diligently 11 attempted to obtain sworn declarations of patient-members who came to the Oakland Cannabis 12 Buyers' Cooperative on May 21, 1998 and of their referring doctors.

13 4. Many of these patients and their doctors are afraid to, or will not, sign any declaration 14 in light of the federal government's announced intention not to immunize their declarations or 15 testimony from use in any possible subsequent criminal proceedings. Many of these same witnesses 16 would provide testimony in these proceedings if their statements or testimony were immunized from 17 use in any possible future proceedings.

18 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing
19 is true and correct.

20 Executed this 25th day of September, 1998, at San Francisco, California.

2 In their Response To Show Cause Order In Case No. C 98-0088 CRB (“Response To Show
3 Cause Order”), defendants have set forth detailed and specific evidence establishing that they are not 4 in contempt of this Court’s Preliminary Injunction Order (“Order”). This evidence establishes that 5 defendants have taken all reasonable steps to comply with the Order. Defendants’ evidence also 6 establishes each element of defendants’ defenses—medical necessity, substantive due process, and 7 the joint users’ defenses. At a minimum, defendants have presented sufficient evidence in response 8 to the order to show cause such that the allegations of contempt must be resolved by a jury trial.

9 The government, by contrast, has failed to introduce a scintilla of evidence which addresses, 10 let alone controverts, any of the defendants’ evidence. For example, the government has not offered 11 any evidence that cannabis does not alleviate imminent and serious medical conditions associated 12 with cancer and AIDS. The government has not even attempted to claim that defendants’ medical 13 declarants are wrong on the science. Instead, the government mistakenly takes the position that 14 defendants must be found in contempt because they have failed to introduce declarations from each 15 and every member of the Cooperative. Ninth Circuit precedent clearly holds, however, that 16 (1) substantial compliance with a court order is a defense to civil contempt, and (2) the plaintiff has 17 the burden to establish by clear and convincing evidence that defendants are not in substantial 18 compliance with the order.

19 The government has failed even to address, by argument, many of the specific facts 20 establishing the defendants’ defenses. For example, the government simply ignores at least eight 21 specific patient declarations that establish that medical cannabis is the only effective medicine for 22 these patients and that they face serious imminent harm if they do not receive it. This evidence is 23 compelling, and the government simply fails to acknowledge it. Meanwhile, the government asks 24 this Court to preclude the defendants’ opportunity to present this abundant evidence and their 25 defenses to a jury. The government fails to show why this Court should take that drastic step, 26 especially in light of the fact that this Court has already stated defendants would have a right to a jury 27 trial in any contempt proceedings.

1 Because the defendants have set forth specific facts that establish each and every element of 2 all of their defenses, and because the government has failed to introduce any evidence in response, or 3 to adequately address these facts, this Court should deny the government's motions in limine.

4 ARGUMENT

5 I. THIS COURT SHOULD DENY THE GOVERNMENT'S MOTION TO 6 PRECLUDE DEFENDANTS' DEFENSES BECAUSE DEFENDANTS HAVE 7 SET FORTH DETAILED AND SPECIFIC FACTS THAT ESTABLISH EACH 8 ELEMENT OF ALL OF THEIR DEFENSES.

9 Only under extraordinary circumstances may a court rule in limine to preclude a defendant's 10 ability to present its defenses at trial. In fact, a district court may preclude a defense by a motion in 11 limine only where the evidence is insufficient as a matter of law to support the proffered defense.
12 United States v. Aguilar, 883 F.2d 662, 692-95 (9th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1046 (1991).
13 In United States v. Contento-Pachon, 723 F.2d 691 (9th Cir. 1984), the Ninth Circuit reversed a 14 lower court's decision to exclude evidence of a defendant's duress defense. Id. at 693. The Court 15 started with the premise that "[f]act-finding is usually a function of the jury, and the trial court rarely 16 rules on a defense as a matter of law." Id. The Ninth Circuit stated that only if the evidence is 17 insufficient as a matter of law to support the defense should the court exclude that evidence. Id. The 18 Court found that, because the defendant had presented evidence sufficient to raise triable issues of 19 fact on all elements of the duress defense, the district court erred in precluding this defense by pre-20 trial motion. Id. at 695. The Court stated that "the trier of fact should have been allowed to consider 21 the credibility of the proffered evidence" establishing defendant's duress defense. Id.<sup>1</sup> Here, as in 22 Contento-Pachon, defendants have presented evidence sufficient to raise triable issues of fact on all 23 of their defenses.

24
25 <sup>1</sup> The trial court had erred when it rejected, as a matter of law, the sufficiency of the 26 defendant's offer of proof, which attempted to establish that he smuggled cocaine because his life and 27 the lives of his family had been threatened, and that he had no reasonable means of escape because he 28 believed the Colombian police were corrupt. Id. at 694.

1 In this circuit, the quantum of evidence sufficient to support a jury instruction on a defense is 2 quite low.<sup>2</sup> “In general, ‘[a] defendant is entitled to have the judge instruct the jury on his theory of 3 defense, provided that it is supported by law and has some foundation in the evidence.’” United 4 States v. Duran, 59 F.3d 938, 941 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 116 S. Ct. 535 (1995) (emphasis added)
5 (citing United States v. Mason, 902 F.2d 1434, 1438 (9th Cir. 1990)). Although the evidence 6 constituting all of defendants’ affirmative defenses here is abundant and it remains unrebutted by the 7 government, “[a] defendant is entitled to jury instructions on any defense providing a legal defense to 8 the charges against him and which has some foundation in the evidence, even though the evidence 9 may be weak, insufficient, inconsistent, or of doubtful credibility.” People of the Territory of 10 Guam v. Agualo, 948 F.2d 1116, 1117 (9th Cir. 1991) (quotations and citations omitted). In fact, 11 failure to give such an instruction when some evidence supports it is reversible error. Id.<sup>3</sup>

12 As set forth more fully below, defendants’ evidence establishes triable issues of fact on each 13 of their defenses. Accordingly, defendants are entitled to present their evidence to a jury.<sup>4</sup> Contento- 14 Pachon, 723 F.2d at 695. Because a reasonable jury could rule in defendants’ favor on the basis of 15 the proffered evidence, it would be inappropriate to preclude any of defendants’ defenses prior to a 16 plenary trial. See Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986).

18 <sup>2</sup> The same showing applies to a court’s decision whether to instruct a jury on a defense or to 19 permit or exclude in limine the presentation of evidence constituting a defense. See United States v.
20 Chesney, 10 F.3d. 641, 644 n.2 (9th Cir. 1993), cert. denied, 114 S. Ct. 1414 (1994).

21 <sup>3</sup> “Where the accused asserts an affirmative defense, sanctioned by the law as justification or 22 excuse for the criminal act charged, and offers some credible evidence in support thereof, the existence of such matter of defense is generally for the determination of the jury.” 75 Am. Jur. 2D Trial § 829 (1991).

23 <sup>4</sup> The right to present an adequate defense is safeguarded by the Fifth and Fourteenth 24 Amendments. Chambers v. Mississippi, 410 U.S. 284, 302 (1973) (defendant’s Fourteenth 25 Amendment due process rights were violated by court’s refusal to allow him to cross-examine his 26 own hostile witness or to present three key witnesses). See also Crane v. Kentucky, 106 S. Ct. 2142, 27 2146 (1986) (blanket exclusion of proffered testimony deprived defendant of fair trial). In Crane, the court added that it was “break[ing] no new ground in observing that an essential component of procedural fairness is an opportunity to be heard. That opportunity would be an empty one if the State were permitted to exclude competent, and reliable evidence . . . central to the defendant’s claim of innocence.” Crane, 106 S. Ct. at 2146-47.

1 II. A TRIAL IS REQUIRED ON DEFENDANTS' DEFENSES BECAUSE 2 DEFENDANTS HAVE DENIED THE ALLEGATIONS OF CONTEMPT, 3 THEY HAVE CONTROVERTED THE GOVERNMENT'S AFFIDAVITS, AND 4 THEY HAVE REQUESTED A CONTEMPT HEARING.

5 On the basis of the detailed declarations and response they filed to the Court's Order to Show 6 Cause ("Show Cause Order"), defendants are entitled to a full trial on the issue of whether they are in 7 contempt.

8 First, in their response to the Show Cause Order, defendants made it abundantly clear that 9 they deny any distributions of marijuana in violation of the Court's Preliminary Injunction Order 10 ("Order"). The government's claim that defendants' response to the Show Cause Order "do[es] not 11 suffice as denials in these civil contempt proceedings[,] Plaintiff's Motions In Limine To Exclude 12 Defendants' Affirmative Defenses ("Government's Motion") at 3, is nonsense. The government 13 simply ignores the fact that defendants have set forth "categorically and in detail" facts establishing 14 their substantial compliance with this Court's Order. Donovan v. Mazzola, 716 F.2d 1226, 1240 (9th 15 Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 1040 (1984).

16 Second, where the affidavits offered in support of a finding of contempt are uncontroverted, a 17 district court's decision not to hold a full-blown evidentiary hearing does not violate due process.
18 Peterson v. Highland Music, Inc., 140 F.3d 1313, 1324 (9th Cir. 1998). Here, however, the 19 government's affidavits are clearly controverted by voluminous factual issues presented in 20 declarations defendants submitted in response to the Show Cause Order. Moreover, unlike here, 21 neither of the parties in Peterson requested a hearing to present live testimony. Peterson, 140 F.3d at 22 1324.<sup>5</sup> See also Thomas, Head and Greisen Employees Trust v. Buster, 95 F.3d 1449, 1458 (9th Cir.
23 1996) (defendants not entitled to contempt hearing because they did not request one nor did they

---

24 <sup>5</sup> The defendants in Peterson did not dispute that they had violated the district court's order to 25 return master sound recordings to the plaintiff. Here, by contrast, defendants seriously dispute any 26 violation of the Court's Order. The defendants in Peterson instead offered a series of excuses and 27 explanations for their contemptuous conduct, some of which were patently contradicted by their 28 subsequent conduct. See Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1323. Here, by contrast, defendants do not offer any excuses. Instead, they rely primarily on affirmative defenses that justify their conduct (see infra).

1 submit admissible evidence to support their claim that they did not violate the court's injunction). In 2 fact, both Peterson and the Ninth Circuit authority upon which it relies reaffirm the general rule that 3 "a district court ordinarily should not impose contempt sanctions solely on the basis of affidavits."
4 Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1324 (citing Hoffman, et al. v. Beer Drivers & Salesmen's, 536 F.2d 1268, 5 1276-77 (9th Cir. 1976)).

6 Other cases similarly have held that a court must hold a contempt hearing where the evidence 7 alleged to constitute contempt is in dispute. See, e.g., Pennwalt Corp. v. Durland Wayland, Inc., 8 708 F.2d 492, 495 (9th Cir. 1983) ("In this circuit a civil contempt proceeding is a trial within the 9 meaning of Fed. R. Civ. P. 43(a) rather than a hearing on a motion within the meaning of Fed. R. Civ.
10 P. 43(e); . . . the issues may not be tried on the basis of affidavits") (citations and quotations omitted); 11 United States v. Alter, 482 F.2d 1016, 1023-24 (9th Cir. 1973) (defendant made showing that the 12 legal issues were not simple and that full resolution of the controversy would require an evidentiary 13 hearing for civil contempt). The Court in Alter relied in part on Cooke v. United States, 267 U.S.
14 517, (1925), in which the Supreme Court stated:

15 Due process of law . . . in the prosecution of contempt . . . requires that the 16 accused should be advised of the charges and have a reasonable opportunity to 17 meet them by way of defense or explanation. We think this includes . . . the right 18 to call witnesses to give testimony, relevant either to the issue of complete 19 exculpation or in extenuation of the offense and in mitigation of the penalty to be 20 imposed.

19 Alter, 482 F.2d at 1024 (citing Cooke, 267 U.S. at 537). Due process requires no less in the current 20 proceedings.<sup>6</sup>

22 <sup>6</sup> Courts in other circuits similarly require plenary trials to determine disputed evidentiary 23 issues in contempt proceedings. See, e.g., Mercer v. Mitchell, 908 F.2d 763, 766-767 (11th Cir.
24 1990) (in civil contempt proceedings defendant must be afforded a hearing at which he can call 25 witnesses and testify in order to show cause why he should not be held in contempt); N.L.R.B. v.
26 Cincinnati Bronze, Inc., 829 F.2d 585, 589 (6th Cir. 1987) (alleged contemnor is entitled to an 27 impartial hearing with an opportunity to present a defense); Washington Metro. Area Transit Auth. v.
28 Amalgamated Transit Union, 531 F.2d 617, 620 (D.C. Cir. 1976) ("full" hearing is required anytime a "civil contemnor . . . asserts a genuine issue of material fact"); Sanders v. Monsanto Co., 574 F.2d 198, 199-200 (5th Cir. 1978) (a court must hold a hearing on a civil contempt motion because it is highly factual, approximating a trial on the merits).

1 III. A JURY MUST DETERMINE THE SHARPLY CONTESTED FACTUAL 2 ISSUES SURROUNDING THE CONTEMPT ALLEGATIONS.

3 Defendants have based their conduct since May 19, 1998, on their good faith and reasonable 4 reliance on this Court's Preliminary Injunction Order. This Order promised a jury trial in any 5 proceeding in which it is alleged defendants have violated the Order. The Order also provided for the 6 availability of their several defenses. At a minimum, defendants have presented evidence sufficient 7 to raise a doubt as to whether they have substantially complied with the Order. Therefore, a jury 8 should determine whether they are in fact in contempt.

9 A. This Court Has Already Determined And Stated That A Jury Trial Would 10 Be Afforded To Determine Any Allegations Of Contempt.

11 The Preliminary Injunction Order at issue in these proceedings incorporated by reference this 12 Court's Memorandum and Order dated May 13, 1998. See Order at 1. The Memorandum and Order 13 explicitly contemplated both a jury trial in the event of contempt allegations, and the availability of 14 several defenses at this jury trial. The Court stated: "[i]f the Court issues an injunction, defendants 15 have a right to a jury in any proceeding in which it is alleged that they have violated the injunction." 16 Memorandum and Order dated May 13, 1998 ("Mem. Op. & Order") at 24 (emphasis added). As to a 17 medical necessity defense, the Court stated:

18 The Court is not ruling, however, that the defense of necessity is wholly 19 inapplicable to these lawsuits. If a preliminary or permanent injunction is 20 granted, and the federal government alleges that defendants have violated the 21 injunction, there will be specific facts and circumstances before the Court from 22 which the Court can determine if the jury should be given a necessity instruction as a defense to the alleged violation of the injunction. As such facts are not presently before the Court, it is premature for the Court to decide whether such a defense is available.

23 Id. at 21 (emphasis added). As set forth in their Response To Show Cause Order and below, 24 defendants now have presented the specific facts and circumstances that support their assertion of a 25 medical necessity defense.

26 This Court further recognized that a substantive due process defense might be available "in a 27 contempt proceeding where the trier of fact is presented with a particular transaction to a particular 28 patient under a particular set of facts." Id. at 23 (emphasis added). Defendants similarly have

1 presented facts supporting this instruction. Finally, the Court cautioned “that it is not ruling that 2 defendants are not entitled to [a joint users] defense at trial or in a contempt proceeding for violation
3 of a preliminary or permanent injunction . . . .” Id. at 18-19. Defendants’ evidence raises triable 4 issues of fact with regard to whether their patient-members are actually joint possessors as opposed to 5 “participants [in] the web of drug abuse.” United States v. Swiderski, 548 F.2d 445, 450 (2d Cir.
6 1977).

7 B. Defendants Have In Good Faith Reasonably Relied On The Court’s 8 Preliminary Injunction Order In Conjunction With Its Memorandum
9 And Order.

10 The parties to the prior proceedings that resulted in the Preliminary Injunction Order were 11 obligated to comply with that Order which incorporated the Memorandum and Order. These parties 12 had every reason, therefore, to rely on the unequivocal statements in the Memorandum and Order to 13 the effect that: (1) they would be entitled to a jury trial in any proceeding in which it is alleged that 14 they have violated the injunction; and (2) that the defenses specifically left open by the Court in its 15 Memorandum could be available to them at that trial. Defendants’ good faith and substantial 16 compliance with the Order, therefore, was founded upon their reasonable reliance on the Court’s 17 Order. Therefore, this Court should find that defendants are not in contempt.

18 A district court has “wide latitude in determining whether there has been a contemptuous 19 defiance of its order.” Gifford v. Heckler, 741 F.2d 263, 266 (9th Cir. 1984). The contempt 20 determination must be based on a full hearing and presentation of all relevant evidence. “Prior to 21 issuing a coercive civil contempt order, a court should weigh all the evidence properly . . . .” Falstaff
22 Brewing Corp. v. Miller Brewing Co., 702 F.2d 770, 781 n. 6 (9th Cir. 1983). Moreover, “[p]rocess 23 of contempt is a severe remedy, and should not be resorted to where there is fair ground of doubt as 24 to the wrongfulness of the defendant’s conduct.” KSM Fastening Sys., Inc., v. H.A. Jones Co., Inc., 25 776 F.2d 1522, 1525 (Fed. Cir. 1985) (citations and quotations omitted). Here, at a minimum, there 26 are substantial grounds for doubt as to the wrongfulness of defendants’ conduct—specifically as 27 defined by the Order they are alleged to have violated. Therefore, defendants are entitled to present 28 their evidence and defenses to a jury for determination as to the contempt allegations.

1 C. The Government Has Failed To Prove By Clear And Convincing Evidence 2 That Defendants Are Not In Good Faith And Substantial Compliance
3 With The Preliminary Injunction Order.

4 “[A] party should not be held in contempt if its action appears to be based on a good faith and 5 reasonable interpretation of the court’s order. The moving party must demonstrate by clear and 6 convincing evidence that the contemnor violated the court’s order.” Prince of Peace Enter., Inc. v.
7 Kwok Shing Import-Export, Inc., 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14125, *11 (N.D. Cal. 1997) (citations 8 omitted) (no showing of clear and convincing evidence that respondents violated the court order); see 9 also Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1323 (burden on movant by clear and convincing evidence standard).
10 Moreover, in order to succeed on a motion for civil contempt, a plaintiff must show by clear and 11 convincing evidence that the defendant has not substantially complied with a court order. Wolfard
12 Glassblowing Co. v. Vanbragt, 118 F.3d. 1320, 1322 (9th Cir. 1997); see also National Advertising 13 Co. v. City of Orange, 861 F.2d 246, 250 (9th Cir. 1988) (substantial compliance with court’s 14 injunction is a defense to civil contempt, and a finding of contempt is inappropriate where the party 15 has taken all reasonable steps to comply). Hence, the burden remains on the government to introduce 16 admissible evidence to prove that defendants are not in substantial compliance with the Court’s Order 17 and that any violation was not based on a good faith reasonable interpretation of the Court’s Order.

18 Despite the fact that the burden of proof remains on the government, defendants have 19 presented detailed and specific evidence demonstrating that, under a good faith and reasonable 20 interpretation of the Court’s Order, they are in substantial compliance with the Order. See Response 21 To Show Cause Order at 6-14. In addition to their affirmative defenses (discussed infra at 9-19), 22 defendants have presented specific evidence concerning the stringency of their admission criteria—23 both upon initial application to the Cooperative and at each subsequent visit. See, e.g., Declaration of 24 Laura A. Galli, R.N. (“Galli Decl.”) at ¶¶ 4-9; Declaration of James D. McClelland (“McClelland 25 Decl.”) at ¶¶ 3-11, Exhibits 1-3. The government nowhere addresses any of this evidence.

26 Instead of responding in any meaningful way to the evidence defendants have submitted, the 27 government merely argues that defendants cannot prove that their defenses apply to each and every 28 member of the Cooperative. The government asks this Court to treat these proceedings as an all-or-nothing proposition—if defendants cannot establish that each and every patient who came to the

1 Cooperative on May 21, 1998 had a medical necessity for cannabis, then defendants must be held in 2 contempt. However, the law is clear in this circuit that substantial compliance with a court order is a 3 complete defense to civil contempt allegations. See Vertex Distribution, Inc. v. Falcon Foam
4 Plastics, Inc., 689 F.2d 885, 891 (9th Cir. 1982). In Vertex, the district court refused to hold 5 defendants in contempt when they had substantially complied with a consent judgment. The original 6 consent judgment required defendants to include a perched bird on the 'F' in "Falcon" whenever 7 possible and practical. Vertex, 689 F.2d at 890. In support of its motion for contempt, plaintiff 8 submitted evidence of several of defendants' ads which did not contain the perched bird. Id.
9 Defendant submitted evidence that they had included the perched bird on many more advertisements, 10 forms, and signs. Id. at 891. The Ninth Circuit agreed with the district court's refusal to hold 11 defendants in contempt because defendants had substantially complied with the consent judgment.
12 Id. The Court held that this substantial compliance was a valid defense to the contempt charge. Id.
13 See also In re Dual-Deck Video Cassette Recorder Antitrust Litig. Go-Video, Inc., v. The Motion
14 Picture Ass'n of America, et al., 10 F.3d 693, 695 (9th Cir. 1993) (holding that the party alleging 15 contempt "failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence that under a good faith, reasonable 16 interpretation of the protective order, [defendant] did not substantially comply with the order").

17 Similarly, here the government has "failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence that 18 under a good faith, reasonable interpretation of the [Order, defendants] did not substantially comply 19 with the order." Go-Video, Inc., 10 F.3d at 695. Therefore, this Court should find that defendants are 20 not in contempt. At a minimum, defendants are entitled to a trial on these issues.

21 IV. DEFENDANTS HAVE SET FORTH FACTS THAT ESTABLISH EACH 22 ELEMENT OF THEIR DEFENSES.

23 Defendants have submitted detailed declarations which set forth each element of their 24 defenses specifically left open by this Court. The government has presented no evidence whatsoever 25 to controvert the defendants' evidence. Moreover, the government fails to address many of the facts 26 set forth in defendants' evidence. Finally, the government has failed to show that no reasonable jury 27 can find in defendants' favor based on the facts they have presented. Therefore, defendants are 28 entitled to a trial on their defenses. See Matsushita, 475 U.S. at 587.

1           A.     Defendants Have Set Forth Specific Evidence Establishing That Any 2                   Cannabis They Distributed On May 21, 1998 Was A Medical Necessity To 3                   Their Members.

4           As set forth in detail in their Response To Show Cause Order at 7-11, defendants have 5           presented specific evidence with regard to each element of their medical necessity defense. First, 6           defendants' evidence establishes that they are faced with a choice of evils. Response to Show Cause 7           Order at 7-9. Second, the declarations submitted confirm that defendants have acted to prevent 8           imminent harm to their patient-members. Id. at 9-10. Third, defendants' evidence establishes a 9           direct causal relationship between defendants' supplying medical cannabis and the harms they seek to 10          avert. Id. at 10. Fourth, the evidence proves that there are no legal alternatives to the distribution of 11          medical cannabis to these members. Id.

12          The government fails to provide this Court any evidence whatsoever that contradicts the 13          medical necessity evidence presented by defendants. Moreover, the government wholly fails to 14          address the factual issues raised by the defendants' evidence. The government merely asserts, for 15          instance, that "with the exception of the declaration of Dr. Alcalay, none of these proffered 16          declarations is accompanied by competent medical testimony regarding whether there [are] 17          alternative, legal drugs that are available to treat the symptoms in question." Government's Motion 18          at 5. This assertion fails in several respects. First, the government cites to no authority (and 19          defendants are not aware of any) which holds that, in order to present a medical necessity defense at 20          trial, a defendant must offer "competent medical testimony" from a physician. In fact, a patient is 21          competent to testify and discuss her own medical condition; this type of evidence is routinely
22          received. See Fed. R. Evid. 701; Dallis v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 768 F.2d 1303, 1306 (11th Cir. 1985) 23          (lay witnesses may testify as to the general nature of their own physical condition or the state of their 24          own health). Second, in any event, defendants have offered many detailed declarations from medical 25          doctors (some of whom have referred patients to the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative 26          ("OCBC")—a few of whom visited the Cooperative on May 21) concerning the necessity of cannabis 27          for many medical conditions. The government has not even attempted to claim that defendants'

1 medical declarants are wrong on the science.<sup>7</sup> In fact, the government has failed to present this Court
2 with any medical testimony whatsoever. Defendants' medical testimony remains completely 3 unchallenged by the government. Third, defendants expect to be able to offer even more medical 4 evidence at trial, especially if and when defense witnesses are granted immunity for their testimony.<sup>8</sup>

5 The government's oft-repeated claim that the defendants' failure to file 191 declarations 6 somehow precludes their ability to assert the medical necessity defense also fails. See Government's 7 Motion at 5, 7. First, the government offers no authority for this proposition. Indeed, defendants are 8 not required to make such a showing in order to be entitled to present evidence of this defense at trial.
9 See, e.g., Aguayo, 948 F.2d at 1117 (instruction on defense required when some foundation in the 10 evidence); Go-Video, Inc., 10 F.3d at 695 (substantial compliance with court order is a defense to 11 civil contempt). Second, despite the government's claim, the Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, 12 M.D. ("Alcalay Decl.") at ¶¶ 20-29, and the Declaration of James D. McClelland at ¶¶ 12-17, do in 13 fact establish triable issues of fact with regard to all elements of the medical necessity defense for 14 patient-members of the Cooperative. Third, the government's contention that this Court has already 15 ruled that "such generalized statements [regarding many Cooperative members] are insufficient to 16 establish the medical necessity defense" (Government's Motion at 6) in order to present this defense 17 at trial is simply mistaken. The government lifts the Court's language from a very different 18 context—a discussion of whether the federal government is likely to prevail at trial on its claim that

19 20 <sup>7</sup> Indeed, "[s]ilence is often evidence of the most persuasive character[.]" United States ex rel.
21 Bilokumsky v. Tod, 263 U.S. 149, 153-54 (1923), as the government itself has argued. See 22 Government's Motion at 3.

23 <sup>8</sup> The government has refused to provide use immunity for testimony of defense witnesses in 24 any possible subsequent criminal proceedings. Many patients and doctors who would provide 25 testimony in these contempt proceedings are unwilling to do so in light of the government's refusal to 26 grant use immunity for their testimony. In its in limine motion, the government hinges its arguments 27 on the fact that defendants have failed to present declarations from each and every one of their 28 patient-members and from their doctors. While defendants dispute that such a showing is necessary in these proceedings, and certainly not at this stage of the proceedings, they have separately filed their Application For Use Immunity For Statements Or Testimony Of Defendant And Defense Witnesses. For the reasons stated therein, the government's claims that "a district court lacks authority to itself grant immunity" and that "there is no basis for immunity in these actions[.]" Government's Motion at 22, is simply a misstatement of the law.

1 there is no medical necessity in the context of deciding whether to issue the preliminary injunction.
2 United States v. Cannabis Cultivators Club, 5 F. Supp. 2d 1086, 1102 (N.D. Cal. 1998). The “likely 3 to prevail at trial” standard in the context of deciding whether to grant injunctive relief is manifestly 4 different than the much lower standard that must be met in order for defendants to be able to present a 5 defense at trial.

6 Instead of either addressing the defendants’ specific evidence or submitting its own evidence 7 to controvert it, the government resorts to several well-worn (in this case) legal arguments—8 arguments unconnected in any way to the declarations of Alcalay, McClelland, Bonardi, Westbrook, 9 Estes, Dunham, Sweet, and Galli. These legal arguments also fail.

10 First, the government argues that “the statutory scheme of the Controlled Substances Act 11 abrogates any defense of medical necessity for marijuana, or any other substance in Schedule I.” 12 Government’s Motion at 8. This Court, however, has correctly recognized that United States v.
13 Burton, 894 F.2d 188, 192 (6th Cir.), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 857 (1990), suggests the contrary. See 14 Transcript of Proceedings of August 31 at 51-55. The government’s claim that Congress has 15 abrogated any possibility of a medical necessity defense here is simply wrong. As the Sixth Circuit 16 has explained:

17 [ United States v. Bailey, 444 U.S. 394 (1980),] teaches that Congress’s failure to 18 provide specifically for a common-law defense in drafting a criminal statute does 19 not necessarily preclude a defendant charged with violating that statute from relying on such a defense. This conclusion is unassailable; statutes rarely enumerate the defenses to the crimes they describe . . . .

20 United States v. Newcomb, 6 F.3d 1129, 1134 (6th Cir. 1993) (holding necessity defense available to 21 defendant charged with violations of federal firearm possession statutes). Nothing in the Controlled 22 Substances Act prohibits the medical necessity defense. The government continues to confuse a 23 determination on a petition to reschedule a controlled substance pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 811 with a 24 party’s ability to present a common law necessity defense to a statutory crime. All the cases relied 25 upon by the government simply hold that a court should not determine whether marijuana should be 26 reclassified pursuant to § 811(a). See Government’s Motions at 9. As this Court has correctly 27 recognized, neither Burton nor the other circuit courts cited by the government have held that 28 Congress precluded the medical necessity defense in the context of medical cannabis.

1           Second, the government argues that the factual situation presented in Aguilar is sufficiently 2 similar to the facts here such that this Court should preclude the necessity defense as a matter of law.
3 In Aguilar, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the district court's in limine ruling prohibiting defendants from 4 raising a necessity defense to allegations of smuggling aliens into the country in violation of various 5 immigration statutes. There, the Court ruled that the defendants had failed to establish that there 6 were no legal alternatives to their conduct. Aguilar, 883 F.2d at 693. Specifically, they failed to 7 appeal to the judiciary to correct the INS procedures that had given rise, in part, to their imminent 8 harm. Id. The Court recognized that a lawsuit brought by other refugees had already effected 9 changes in INS procedures, thereby effectively ameliorating the imminent harm those refugees faced.
10 Id. The Court concluded, therefore, that there was a legal alternative that clearly would have 11 prevented the very same imminent harm the Aguilar defendants sought to avoid by breaking the law.
12 The Court ruled as a matter of law that defendants failed to establish all the required elements of a 13 necessity defense. Id.

14           Here, defendants' evidence establishes that no other alternative effectively can prevent the 15 serious and imminent medical harm they seek to avoid. Unlike the defendants in Aguilar, here 16 defendants have presented detailed and specific evidence that they have no alternatives to medical 17 cannabis for relieving their current serious medical conditions. See Alcalay Decl. at ¶ 7 ("To combat
18 the nausea I have tried several prescription drugs including Marinol and Atarax, but none of them 19 have worked for me. Marinol did not work well for me because it was nearly impossible to time its 20 effect or to achieve the right dosage. It would take up to an hour or more to take effect, and I had 21 trouble finding the correct dosage . . . . Atarax was not as effective as cannabis in alleviating my 22 nausea"), ¶ 8 ("Cannabis has been the only medicine that has worked for me to control the nausea
23 and vomiting caused by my AIDS medications"); Declaration of Robert T. Bonardi ("Bonardi Decl.")
24 at ¶ 13 ("Cannabis is . . . the only medicine that has worked for me"); Declaration of Albert Dunham 25 ("Dunham Decl.") at ¶ 4 ("I have tried medicine other than cannabis to combat these [health] 26 problems, but they always had adverse side effects on my body, primarily by inducing vomiting"); 27 Declaration of Kenneth Estes ("Estes Decl.") at ¶ 11 ("I have tried many prescription drugs 28 [including] . . . Valium, Motrin, codeine, Vicodin, Darvocet, and many others. They either did not

1 work, or had side effects that made me not want to use them”); Galli Decl. at ¶ 16 (“Over the years I 2 have tried many medications and treatments to try to alleviate my nausea symptoms, but nothing 3 worked for me”); McClelland Decl. at ¶ 12 (for members of the Cooperative other medications either 4 do not work, or they have intolerable negative side effects, or they are not nearly as effective as 5 cannabis); Declaration of David Sanders (“Sanders Decl.”) at ¶ 2 (“[Cannabis] works when nothing 6 else does work at alleviating some of my symptoms [associated with AIDS]”); Declaration of Harold 7 Sweet (“Sweet Decl.”) at ¶ 8 (“Though I have tried other drugs and treatments for my glaucoma, no 8 other drug or treatment works for me”); Declaration of Yvonne Westbrook (“Westbrook Decl.”) at 9 ¶¶ 4-7 (prescription drugs do not work or have intolerable side effects). Defendants here have made a 10 much stronger showing on each element of their necessity defense, including the no-reasonable-11 alternatives element found lacking in Aguilar.<sup>9</sup>

12 In the face of this mountain of evidence, the government conveniently ignores it, stating: 13 “[Defendants’] sole attempt to meet this [legal alternatives] prong of the necessity test is to argue 14 that, generally, their members had no other legal or safe method of acquiring marijuana from other 15 sources.” Government’s Motion at 10. To the contrary, as set forth above, defendants have 16 introduced detailed and specific evidence that other legal medicines do not work for their members.
17 The government simply ignores these facts.<sup>10</sup>

19 <sup>9</sup> The recent decision in United States v. Diana, Nos. CR-98-068-RHW, CR-98-069-RHW, 20 CR-98-070-RHW, and CR-98-072-RHW (E.D. Wash. Sept. 21, 1998), is similarly distinguishable.
21 There the defendant asserting the medical necessity defense had given up on cannabis alternatives in 22 the early 1970s, and his doctor since 1981 had never prescribed any medication. Defendants’ patient-23 members herein, however, have submitted detailed declarations that explain that they have tried 24 alternative medications and treatments much more recently, but that they do not work to relieve their 25 conditions. Also, the Court in Diana found it significant that defendant there had been found with 26 175 marijuana plants, the equivalent of 17,500 grams. Defendants’ evidence, by contrast, proves that 27 patient-members are permitted a maximum of seven grams of medical cannabis per day (unless the 28 member lives outside the Bay Area and makes no more than one visit to the Cooperative per week) and that defendants “are able to monitor these Members by [their] purchase tracking system.”
McClelland Decl. at ¶ 20, Exhibit 5.

avoid is imminent. See Response To Show Cause Order at 9-10. None of the “legal” alternatives the government suggests, see Government’s Motion at 10, constitute a reasonable alternative in light of the imminent “medical” harm these members face.

1 11-12. At a minimum, defendants are entitled to present this evidence at trial to prove that these 2 patients have fundamental liberty interests to be free from pain and to preserve their lives. See, e.g., 3 Alcalay Decl. at ¶ 6 (“[t]he cannabis kept me alive . . . [;] I have since recovered from a very serious
4 and life-threatening illness”); Bonardi Decl. at ¶ 13 (“I believe that without cannabis I would have 5 continued to starve”).<sup>12</sup> In response, the government has failed to present any evidence that the 6 Controlled Substances Act, as applied to defendants, is “narrowly tailored to serve a compelling 7 [government] interest[,]” as required. Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. at 2268.

8 The laetrile cases relied on by the government are inapposite for at least three reasons. First, 9 defendants do not assert the right to a particular treatment as did the parties in Rutherford v. United 10 States, 616 F.2d 455 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 937 (1980), and Carnohan v. United States, 11 616 F.2d 1120 (9th Cir. 1980). Rather, defendants assert the fundamental liberty interests to be free 12 from unnecessary pain, to receive palliative treatment for painful medical conditions, to care for 13 oneself, and to preserve one’s own life. See, e.g., Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. at 2288, 2303, 2311.

14 Second, in the laetrile cases the government had satisfied the court that laetrile had been 15 found to be a “new drug” which had to be regulated to keep commerce free from deleterious, 16 adulterated and misbranded articles. Carnohan, 616 F.2d at 1121. There the government had made 17 some showing to satisfy even the rational basis standard of review—to show that the regulation was 18 reasonably related to protecting the public health. Here, the government has introduced no evidence 19 concerning the harmfulness of cannabis. Indeed, all the evidence before the Court submitted by 20 defendants suggests that medical cannabis is a very safe medicine. See, e.g., Grinspoon Decl. at ¶¶ 8,

21 (Footnote continued from previous page.)

22 patients who visited the Cooperative on May 21, 1998, is simply false. See Government’s Motion at 23 12.

24 <sup>12</sup> Despite the government’s claim, defendants have standing to assert the claims of their 25 patient-members. See NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415, 428 (1963) (organization has standing to 26 assert the corresponding rights of its members); Hunt v. Washington State Apple Advertising 27 Comm’n, 432 U.S. 333, 343 (1977) (association has standing to bring suit on behalf of its members); 28 California First Amendment Coalition v. Calderon, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 16859, *11 (9th Cir.
1998) (same). The government’s attempt to distinguish Singleton v. Wulff, 428 U.S. 106 (1976), on the basis that defendants are not physicians is unpersuasive.

1 31, 32. This evidence is un rebutted by the government. Thus, defendants have made a strong 2 showing, unlike plaintiff in Carnohan, “that government regulation of [cannabis] bears no reasonable 3 relation to the legitimate state purpose of protecting the public health.” Carnohan, 616 F.2d at 1122.

4 Third, defendants here have introduced evidence, again un rebutted by the government, that 5 medical cannabis has played a role in our “[n]ation’s history, legal traditions and practices[,]” 6 Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. at 2262, at least between 1840 and 1937. See Grinspoon Decl. at ¶¶ 10-13.
7 No such evidence had been introduced regarding laetrile, nor could it have been.

8 Instead of introducing any evidence to justify either a compelling government interest or a 9 rational basis standard of review, the government merely recites its mantra: “When it enacted the 10 Controlled Substances Act in 1970, Congress placed marijuana on Schedule I, where it remains 11 today.” Government’s Motion at 14. Over and over the government asks this Court simply to defer 12 to Congress, without citing any medical evidence whatsoever. But where legislation infringes upon 13 fundamental rights, the courts have a duty to look beyond legislative findings to determine 14 independently whether the infringement is justified under the Constitution. “A legislature 15 appropriately inquires into and may declare the reasons impelling legislative action but the judicial 16 function commands analysis of whether . . . the legislation is consonant with the Constitution.” 17 Landmark Communications, Inc. v. Virginia, 435 U.S. 829, 844 (1978). Furthermore, “courts are 18 obligated to assure that, in formulating its judgments, Congress has drawn reasonable inferences, 19 based on substantial evidence.” California Prolife Council Political Action Committee v. Scully, et 20 al., 989 F. Supp. 1282, 1299 (E.D. Cal. 1998) (quotations and citations omitted) (deference to a 21 legislative finding cannot limit judicial inquiry when constitutional rights are at stake). A court 22 cannot simply defer to Congress when constitutional rights are at stake.

23 Finally, the government wrongly argues that defendants’ evidence is insufficient because it 24 does not establish a fundamental right to medical cannabis for each and every patient-member who 25 visited the Cooperative on May 21, 1998. Again, this is not the quantum of proof required to 26 establish a triable issue of fact in response to an order to show cause. Agualo, 948 F.2d at 1117.
27 Again, the government confuses the Court’s discussion of the showing required to defeat a 28 preliminary injunction with the much lower showing required to establish sufficient evidence to 1 present a defense at trial. Indeed, the government misquotes the Court to make its point. Whereas 2 the Court stated, in the context of the availability of a constitutional defense, “[i]n order for the Court 3 to conclude that defendants have a substantive due process defense to an injunction. . .[.]” Mem.

4 Op. & Order at 22 (emphasis added), the government quoted the Court as stating: “[i]n order for the 5 Court to conclude that defendants have a substantive due process defense to [civil contempt] . . . .”
6 Government’s Motion at 11 (citing Mem. Op. & Order at 22). In the best light, the government 7 mistakes the differing burdens in the different contexts.

8 C. Defendants Have Set Forth Specific Evidence Establishing That Their 9 Patient-Members Are Joint Users Of Medical Cannabis.

10 The government concedes that the OCBC defendants’ have made an evidentiary showing with 11 regard to the joint users defense. Government’s Motion at 16. Indeed, defendants have made a 12 detailed showing supporting this defense as set forth in their Response To Show Cause Order at 12-13 14. See Alcalay Decl. at ¶¶ 23-25, 30-32; McClelland Decl. at ¶¶ 18-20, Exhibits 4 & 5.

14 The government takes pains, however, to restrict the joint user defense to the specific factual
15 situation present in United States v. Swiderski, 548 F.2d 445 (2d Cir. 1977), the joint use of cocaine 16 by a husband and a wife. But the fact that it was a husband and a wife who jointly purchased cocaine 17 in Swiderski, or even that it was only two people who did so, is not necessary to the holding in that 18 case. As the government itself notes, the Second Circuit held in Swiderski that:

19 [W]here two individuals simultaneously and jointly acquire possession of a drug 20 for their own use, intending only to share it together, their only crime is personal 21 drug abuse—simple joint possession, without any intent to distribute the drug 22 further. Since [they] acquire possession from the outset and [they do not] intend[] to distribute the drug to a third person, neither serves as a link in the chain of distribution.

23 Id. at 450. The Swiderski Court emphasized that determining whether the joint users defense applies 24 in a particular case involves a fact-dependent inquiry. Id. Nothing in Swiderski limits its holding to 25 two joint purchasers. Indeed, the Court’s rationale for its holding—that purchasers for joint use do 26 not have the “unwanted effect of drawing additional participants into the web of drug abuse”— 27 suggests that the defense may apply just as convincingly to more than two joint users of a controlled 28 substance, as here. Swiderski, 548 F.2d at 450.

1 Defendants have submitted evidence sufficient to raise a triable fact as to each of the elements
2 of the Swiderski joint user defense. Most significantly, they have submitted evidence that the OCBC 3 defendants are comprised of a cooperative of members (indeed it is a cooperative by definition) in 4 which, legally, the organization consists of all its individual members. See McClelland Decl. at ¶ 4, 5 Exhibit 2 (Bylaws of the OCBC). Whether this evidence in fact is sufficient for defendants to prevail
6 on the joint user defense at trial is a question for the jury to determine.<sup>13</sup> That is not the same 7 question as whether defendants have adduced facts sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact as to this 8 defense. To be entitled to the defense, defendants need only show “some foundation in the 9 evidence.” Duran, 59 F.3d at 941. The evidence of the cooperative structure of defendants’ 10 organization is one of the several facts, discussed above, that presents a triable factual issue under the 11 joint users defense. The government, for its part, fails to address this evidence, other than to note that 12 the Cooperative members are not two members, husband and wife. This distinction is not sufficient 13 to preclude the presentation of the joint users defense to the jury.<sup>14</sup>

14 CONCLUSION

15 Because defendants are in good faith and substantial compliance with the Court’s Order they 16 should not be held in contempt. Moreover, based on the detailed evidence submitted by defendants, 17 at a minimum defendants are entitled to a jury trial on the specific facts and circumstances
19

20 <sup>13</sup> The Court answered this is the same question in the negative in its determination that “it is 21 reasonably likely that such a defense would not prevail at trial . . .” in deciding to issue the 22 preliminary injunction. Mem. Op. & Order at 18. The Court went on to “caution[], however, that it 23 is not ruling that defendants are not entitled to such a defense at trial or in a contempt proceeding for 24 violation of a preliminary or permanent injunction . . . . The Court’s ruling is narrow. Based on 25 defendants’ offer of proof, which does not include any detailed factual allegations, the Court 26 concludes that the federal government is likely to prevail at trial.” Id. at 18-19. Now, of course, not 27 only is the context different such that defendants need only show “some foundation in the evidence” 28 for the defense, Agualo, 948 F.2d at 1117, but defendants have in fact presented detailed factual allegations setting forth this defense.

<sup>14</sup> The Court in United States v. Wright, 593 F.2d 105, 108-09 (9th Cir. 1979), affirmed the district court’s denial of the joint users defense instruction after presentation of the facts to the jury.
Thus, Wright does not support the government’s claim that the entire defense should be precluded outright, before the facts are presented at trial.

1 concerning their alleged contempt, and on the applicability of their defenses to those charges. The 2 government's motions in limine therefore should be denied.

AMENDED DECLARATION OF MICHAEL M. ALCALAY, M.D., M.P.H.

AND RELATED ACTIONS.

1 I. MICHAEL M. ALCALAY, declare:

2 1. I am Medical Director of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative (the 3 "Cooperative" or "OCBC"). As Medical Director I am familiar with the policies and procedures of 4 the OCBC. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein, and if called as a witness, I could 5 and would testify competently as to them.

6 2. I am a Board-certified pediatrician. I graduated from U.C.L.A. medical school in 7 1968. I received a Masters Degree in public health in 1973 from the University of California
8 Berkeley School of Public Health. I practiced as a pediatrician in the Northern California Kaiser 9 Hospitals until 1995 when I became ill.

10 3. In addition to my work as a physician, from 1987 through 1993, I was also an award 11 winning producer of a nationally syndicated weekly medical program entitled "AIDS in Focus".

12 4. As Medical Director of the Cooperative I attend regular board meetings and 13 consortium meetings. Other duties include acting as liaison between the Cooperative and patient-14 members' authorizing physicians. As a result of my duties as Medical Director, I am knowledgeable 15 about many Cooperative patients and their medical conditions. On May 21, 1998, I was present at 16 the Cooperative at the time of the scheduled press conference.

17 5. I am also a patient-member of the Cooperative. I learned I was HIV-positive in 1986.
18 I was first diagnosed with AIDS in 1993. In 1995, I became very seriously ill with an AIDS-related 19 condition called cryptosporidium. I contracted this disease from drinking the local water supply.
20 Cryptosporidium caused me to have constant diarrhea, I experienced a dramatic loss of my appetite, 21 and I also suffered generally from apathy. I rapidly lost thirty pounds as I dropped from weighing 22 165 pounds to 135 pounds. At one point visiting nurses came regularly to my home so that I could be 23 fed intravenously. I was suffering from the classic "wasting syndrome" that is associated with many 24 AIDS patients.

25 6. When I eventually medicated myself with cannabis, I regained my appetite, and I was 26 finally able to regain weight again. The cannabis kept me alive until a therapy could be found to 27 eradicate the microbe from my body. The cannabis also caused a dramatic improvement in my 28 spirits. I have since recovered from a very serious and life-threatening illness.

1           7.     I have been required to take a lot of different medications to treat my AIDS condition.
2 including the drug AZT and a variety of different protease inhibitors. I need these medications in 3 order to live. But these medicines cause nausea and vomiting. To combat the nausea I have tried 4 several prescription drugs including Marinol and Atarax, but none of them have worked for me.
5 Marinol did not work well for me at all because it was nearly impossible to time its effect or to 6 achieve the right dosage. It would take up to an hour or more to take effect, and I had trouble finding 7 the correct dosage as a result of this long lag time in its kicking in. Atarax was not as effective as 8 cannabis in alleviating my nausea.

9           8.     Cannabis has been the only medicine that has worked for me to control the nausea and 10 vomiting caused by my AIDS medications. It starts to provide relief after only a few minutes of 11 inhaling just a little bit.

12           9.     The goal of the Cooperative is to provide seriously ill patients with a safe and reliable 13 source of medical cannabis products and plants. The Cooperative is open to all patients with a 14 verifiable letter of diagnosis and recommendation or approval from a doctor for medical cannabis 15 use. A complete Mission Statement is attached to the Declaration of James D. McClelland as 16 Exhibit 1.

17           10.    The Cooperative consists of one class of patient-members. According to the 18 Cooperative's Bylaws, to qualify for membership an applicant must comply with the Protocols of the 19 Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative. A copy of the OCBC Bylaws and Articles of Incorporation 20 is attached to the Declaration of James D. McClelland as Exhibit 2.

21           11.    Before a patient is accepted for membership into the Cooperative, he or she must 22 complete an extensive screening process. This process is described in detail in the Oakland Cannabis 23 Buyers' Cooperative Protocols ("Protocols"), a copy of which is attached to the Declaration of James 24 D. McClelland as Exhibit 3.

25           12.    According to the stated policies and procedures of the Cooperative, all applicants first 26 must satisfy the threshold requirement of providing authorization from a treating physician assenting 27 to cannabis therapy for one or more medical conditions listed on the Medicinal Cannabis User Initial 28 Questionnaire (Exhibit C to the Protocols). Upon acceptance of the doctor's note by Intake staff, the

1 prospective member undergoes an extensive screening process to determine whether the applicant 2 meets the Medical Admissions Criteria (Exhibit D to the Protocols). Each applicant must fill out and 3 submit the Cooperative Information Form (Exhibit E to the Protocols).

4 13. If, upon screening by the Cooperative Intake staff member the applicant does not 5 qualify for membership, he or she will be denied membership to the Cooperative.

6 14. If the applicant does appear to qualify for membership, a staff nurse must 7 independently verify the physician's approval of cannabis use. It is the OCBC's policy and practice
8 that an applicant not be admitted to membership in the Cooperative unless and until the applicant's 9 physician's approval is verified by the staff nurse.

10 15. The Cooperative schedules a staff nurse to be on duty throughout every weekday 11 business hour of the Cooperative.

12 16. Shortly after an applicant is admitted to membership in the Cooperative, he or she is 13 issued a laminated membership card. A copy of a membership card is attached as Exhibit J to the 14 Protocols. Each time a patient-member comes to the Cooperative he or she must present this 15 membership card along with secondary valid photo identification.

16 17. Each time a patient-member comes to the Cooperative to receive medicine, the 17 patient-member must pass three separate security check-points. At each of the check-points the 18 member must present two forms of identification described in paragraph 17. First, the member must 19 present identification to a security guard at the front door to the Cooperative. Second, a second 20 security guard examines the member's identification at the member room door leading into the sales 21 area of the Cooperative. Finally, a Cooperative staff member always checks the patient-member's 22 identification again at the point of sale.

23 18. I am personally aware that patient-members of the Cooperative suffer from 24 debilitating and often deadly diseases, including HIV and/or AIDS, cancer, arthritis, multiple 25 sclerosis, and glaucoma—to name a few. I have seen and am aware that medical cannabis provides 26 relief to patient-members as a pain reliever, an appetite stimulant, an anti-nauseant, and as relief from 27 spasticity. Medical cannabis relieves intraocular eye pressure in patient-members who suffer from 28 glaucoma.

1           19.     As Medical Director, I have reviewed and am generally familiar with the medical 2 circumstances that have led Cooperative members to seek medical cannabis. Although every 3 patient's experience is unique, some general comments apply to many patients. Some Cooperative 4 members have tried other legal medications to alleviate their conditions, but these other medications
5 do not work for them. For other members, other medications have intolerable negative side effects 6 they have chosen not to endure. Some members' experiences with other legal medications is that, 7 while they are somewhat effective, they are not nearly as effective at relieving their symptoms as 8 medical cannabis.

9           20.     I am aware that Cooperative patient-members suffering from AIDS-related "wasting 10 syndrome" (including myself) and those with cancer undergoing chemotherapy experience nausea 11 and severe appetite deficits. Patients such as myself suffer these same conditions also as a result of 12 having to take multiple medications to treat AIDS, some of them new or experimental. I am aware 13 that medical cannabis relieves these symptoms in patients and enables them to eat. Medical cannabis 14 prolongs some of these patients' lives (including my own). Cannabis enables these patients to take 15 the other medications (in the case of AIDS patients) or to continue to undergo the intensive 16 chemotherapy (in the case of cancer patients) in order to stay alive. For these patients, other 17 medicines either do not work at all (or they are not nearly as effective as medical cannabis) or they 18 cause severe adverse side effects that medical cannabis does not cause. I believe, based on personal 19 experience, that supplying medical cannabis to these patient-members is necessary to avert imminent 20 and often life-threatening harm.

21           21.     I am aware that the patient-members who suffer from multiple sclerosis or 22 quadriplegia experience debilitating spasticity and/or constant pain. Unless medicated these patients 23 will be forced to live with uncontrollable muscular spasticity or to endure debilitating pain 24 throughout every day. For many of these patients, other medications or treatments either do not work 25 at all, they are not nearly as effective as medical cannabis, or they cause severe adverse side effects 26 that medical cannabis does not cause. Thus, many of these patient-members have no reasonable 27 alternative to medical cannabis.

28

1           22.     On May 21, 1998, approximately 191 patients came to the Cooperative. Sixty-six 2 percent of the patients who came to the Cooperative suffered from HIV and/or AIDS. 4 % of patients
3 who came to the Cooperative suffered from cancer, 2 % of patients who came to the Cooperative 4 suffered from glaucoma, 1 % of patients who came to the Cooperative suffered from multiple 5 sclerosis, and almost 20 % of patients who came to the Cooperative suffered from disorders involving 6 chronic pain, such as quadriplegia.

7           23.     For each and every patient-member who came to the Cooperative on May 21, 1998, 8 there exists in the OCBC files written confirmation that a treating California physician acknowledged 9 and assented to cannabis therapy to treat the patient's medical condition or conditions.

10          24.     The OCBC maintains, in the normal course of business, a database which contains 11 information concerning its patient-members, including their diagnosis. I am familiar with the manner 12 in which this information is gathered and entered into the database. Intake workers and volunteers 13 who are qualified to do so, review documents in the patient's file, including personal information 14 provided by the patient, the intake questionnaire containing the patient's diagnosis, and the 15 information confirming that a licensed California doctor has made the diagnosis and has 16 recommended the use of medical cannabis. Information concerning the diagnosis, the IC-9 (a 17 standardized code used by physicians to classify a patient's medical condition), as well as the 18 patient's name and treating physician are entered into the computer. Attached hereto as Exhibit A is 19 a true and correct copy of a printout from OCBC's database concerning the patients who were present 20 at the Cooperative on May 21, 1998. This printout contains the patient's identification number, the 21 patient's specific diagnosis, and the IC-9 code.

22          25.     Numerous attempts have been made to obtain sworn declarations of patient-members 23 who came to the Cooperative on May 21, 1998. Many of these patients, however, are afraid to sign 24 any declaration as a result of the federal government's announced intention not to immunize any such 25 declarations offered in this proceeding from use in any possible subsequent criminal proceedings.
26 Many of these patients would sign declarations detailing for the Court their medical condition and 27 their dire need of medical cannabis to alleviate their condition if these statements were immunized.

28

1           26.     One of the patient-members who came to the Cooperative on May 21, 1998, is now
2 deceased. She died from cancer.

3           27.     I have reviewed and am familiar with the medical records and OCBC files relating to 4 the patients who visited the Cooperative on May 21, 1998. Numerous California physicians have 5 rendered a medical opinion approving cannabis treatment for these patients.

6           28.     Many patient-members' lives may be put in jeopardy if they were forced to try to 7 obtain cannabis from criminal street dealers. This is what would happen if the OCBC were forced to 8 close down. They may be placed in danger both because the act of purchasing from street dealers is 9 inherently dangerous and because impurities in marijuana purchased on the street may be harmful to 10 their fragile health. There is also the danger that this method of obtaining cannabis will certainly lead 11 to exposure to dangerous drugs sold on the street, which may in turn lead to temptations or 12 opportunities which have no place at the OCBC. Some patient-members may choose to forego their 13 medication if they have no choice but to turn to street dealers for cannabis.

14           29.     The patient-members of the Cooperative are joint participants in a cooperative effort 15 to obtain and share medical cannabis. Patient-members of the Cooperative jointly acquire marijuana 16 for medical purposes to be shared among themselves and not with anyone else. No third persons are 17 involved other than "primary caregivers" who are responsible for the housing, health, or safety of the 18 patient. Any payment made to the Cooperative constitutes reimbursement for administrative 19 expenses and operations which all patient-members who utilize the services of the Cooperative agree 20 to share. Attached to the Declaration of James D. McClelland as Exhibit 4 is a true and correct copy 21 of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative Statement Of Conditions under which each and every 22 member agrees to receive his or her medicine.

23           30.     The Cooperative prohibits the smoking of cannabis on its premises; therefore, patient-24 members who smoke medical cannabis cannot immediately consume their medicine in the presence 25 of other patient-members.

26           31.     Last month, the City of Oakland designated the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' 27 Cooperative to administer the City's Medical Cannabis Distribution Program. Attached to the 28 Declaration of James D. McClelland as Exhibit 5 is a true and correct copy of this designation along

1 with supporting documents which helped satisfy the City of Oakland that the Cooperative is a bona 2 fide corporation safely and lawfully engaged in activities benefiting the citizens of Oakland.

3 32. I understand and believe that currently the federal government will not enroll any 4 additional patients in any federal program studying the medical use of cannabis.

5 33. I understand and believe that currently pending are petitions to reschedule medical 6 cannabis from Schedule I to Schedule II of the Controlled Substances Act, but that none of these 7 petitions have yet been granted.

8 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing
9 is true and correct.

1 TO ALL PARTIES HEREIN AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 Defendants Jeffrey Jones and the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative ("Oakland 3 Defendants") bring this motion for a protective order to protect from disclosure and from use for 4 purposes other than those related to this case confidential information arising from the physician-5 patient relationship. This motion for a protective order is based on the ground that this Court has the 6 inherent power to enter a protective order to protect from disclosure confidential and proprietary 7 information. Moreover, this motion for a protective order is made on the further ground that 8 confidential physician-patient information was inadvertently disclosed in the previously filed 9 Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., without the patients' consent.

10 STATEMENT OF FACTS

11 On September 14, 1998, the defendants filed their Response To Show Cause Order In Case 12 No. C 98-0088 CRB, which included the declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H. This 13 declaration set forth some confidential information the Cooperative obtained from its patient-14 members. Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., in Support of Defendants' Motion For 15 Protective Order ("Alcalay Protective Order Decl."), filed herewith, at ¶ 2. This information included 16 the names of many of these patients' treating physicians, and it included other confidential 17 information arising from the physician-patient relationship. Id. The disclosure of this information 18 was inadvertent. Id.

19 No patient of the Cooperative consented to the disclosure of this confidential information.
20 Alcalay Protective Order Decl. at ¶ 3. The information inadvertently disclosed raises serious issues 21 of confidentiality and privacy. Id. at ¶ 4. These issues concern the sanctity of the physician-patient 22 relationship, which may be adversely impacted as a result of this disclosure. Id.

23 Defendants have submitted herewith a Supplemental Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, 24 M.D., M.P.H., which omits the confidential information. The only paragraphs affected by the revised 25 submission are paragraphs 9, 25, and 28, and the only change to Exhibit A to the Alcalay Declaration 26 is the omission of reference to referring physician names.

ARGUMENT

I. DEFENDANTS REQUEST THAT THIS COURT ENTER THEIR PROPOSED PROTECTIVE ORDER SO THAT CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION MAY NOT BE USED FOR PURPOSES OTHER THAN THOSE RELATED TO THIS CASE.

The Oakland Defendants have filed herewith their proposed protective order that mirrors in many respects the protective order currently in place in Conant v. McCaffrey, Case No. C 97-0139 FMS, currently pending in the Northern District of California.<sup>1</sup> The Conant case involves a First Amendment claim brought by physicians against the federal government, and it raises issues of potential disclosure of confidential patient-physician information beyond the litigation of the case itself. There Judge Smith entered a very comprehensive protective order upon request of the plaintiff physicians who were concerned that confidential information obtained during discovery might be used beyond the litigation of the Conant case. The Court, at least implicitly, recognized the sanctity of the confidentiality of the physician-patient relationship in that case.

There is similarly the danger here of potential disclosure of confidential physician-patient information beyond the litigation of this case. This Court should enter the proposed protective order here where there is the potential for disclosure of very sensitive confidential information. The Ninth Circuit has recognized a privacy right in certain medical information. See, e.g., Doe v. Attorney General of the U.S., 941 F.2d 780, 795 (9th Cir. 1991). Moreover, as the Court stated in Norman-Bloodshaw v. Lawrence Berkeley Lab., 135 F.3d 1260, 1269 (9th Cir. 1998), "The constitutionally protected privacy interest in avoiding disclosure of personal matters clearly encompasses medical information and its confidentiality."

This Court has the authority to enter this protective order to protect the patients' and physicians' privacy rights and to prevent the disclosure of the confidential information beyond this case. See, e.g. In re The Knoxville News-Sentinel Co., Inc., 723 F.2d 470, 476 (6th Cir. 1983)

<sup>1</sup> The only effective difference is that defendants' proposed protective order adds paragraph 5 specifically to address the disclosures made by the Alcalay Declaration of September 12, 1998. The other difference is that the defendants' proposed order omits paragraphs unrelated to this case.

1 (approving district court's protecting third party privacy interests by ordering nondisclosure). As the 2 Court recognized in Knoxville, "trial courts have always been afforded the power to seal their records 3 when interests of privacy outweigh the public's right to know." Id. at 474.

4 Therefore, this Court should enter the proposed protective order to protect the significant 5 privacy rights involved. Disclosure of confidential information is likely to chill the relationship 6 between patients and their doctors. This disclosure may also result in annoyance, embarrassment, 7 and harassment of physicians whose names have been inadvertently released.<sup>2</sup>

8 This Court should enter the proposed protective order especially in light of the inadvertence 9 of the disclosure that has already been made. See KL Group v. Case, Kay & Lynch, 829 F.2d 909, 10 919 (9th Cir. 1987) (district court's grant of protective order affirmed where third party confidential 11 information was inadvertently disclosed without consent). Moreover, a protective order is 12 particularly appropriate here because confidential information implicating third parties is involved.
13 See, e.g., Dart Indus. Co. v. Westwood Chem. Co., 649 F.2d 646 (9th Cir. 1980).

14 For the foregoing reasons, this Court should enter the proposed protective order to ensure that 15 confidential information, which may have serious consequences chilling physician-patient 16 relationships, is not used for any purpose beyond the current proceedings in this case.

18 19 <sup>2</sup> Good cause exists for entering a protective order pursuant to Rule 26(c) because the 20 information disclosed involved private and confidential medical information and the disclosure was 21 made without patients' consent. Moreover, it is a basic principle of discovery that "[a] party 22 generally cannot use discovery for purposes unrelated to the lawsuit," and that a "common 23 'unrelated' purpose is to gain information for use in a different action against the same party." 6 24 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.101[1][b], at 26-241 (1998). The Supreme Court has made clear, 25 therefore, that "[l]iberal discovery is provided for the sole purpose of assisting in the preparation and 26 trial, or the settlement, of litigated disputes." Seattle Times Co. v. Rhinehart, 467 U.S. 20, 34 (1984)
27 (emphasis added). The Ninth Circuit has stated that protective orders are designed "as a safeguard 28 for the protection of parties and witnesses in view of the broad discovery rights authorized in Rule 26(b)". United States v. CBS, 666 F.2d 364, 368-69 (9th Cir.), cert. denied 457 U.S. 1118 (1982).
While the confidential and private information at issue here was not obtained through discovery, the Oakland Defendants did, however, file the Alcalay Declaration of September 12, 1998, in response to the Court's Order To Show Cause. The disclosure was made as part of a filing necessary in this case.
Therefore, the same rationale employed by courts to safeguard the use of information obtained during discovery applies with equal force here.

1 Furthermore, the Oakland Defendants respectfully request this Court to grant their request for an 2 order to return inadvertently disclosed confidential information, and to accept the Amended 3 Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., omitting the confidential information.

1 I. MICHAEL M. ALCALAY, declare:

2 1. I am Medical Director of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative (the 3 "Cooperative" or "OCBC"). I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein, and if called as a 4 witness, I could and would testify competently as to them.

5 2. On September 12, 1998, I inadvertently signed a declaration which I understand was 6 filed in court on September 14, 1998. This declaration set forth confidential information the 7 Cooperative had obtained from its patient-members. This information included the names of many of 8 these patients' treating physicians. This disclosure was inadvertent.

9 3. No patient of the Cooperative consented to my disclosure of this confidential 10 information.

11 4. The information inadvertently disclosed raises serious issues of confidentiality and 12 privacy. These issues concern the sanctity of the physician-patient relationship, which may be 13 adversely impacted as a result of this disclosure.

14 5. This confidential information should not have been disclosed. Any disclosure of this 15 confidential information should have been made under seal with the Court so that the information 16 could not be used in relation to any matter beyond the current contempt proceedings in this case.

17 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing
18 is true and correct.

RICHARD W. WIEKING
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT,
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

1 For good cause, the Court hereby orders that a protective order be entered in this action as 2 follows:

3 1. This Protective Order shall govern all documents, writings and testimony in this action
4 designated as "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" together with all information contained 5 therein or derived therefrom, and all copies, portions, excerpts, abstracts or summaries thereof
6 (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Information") arising from individual patient medical care
7 (including but not limited to patients' physician's names or other identifying information; 8 information concerning physician referrals to dispensaries and/or their authorizing or assenting to 9 cannabis treatment; patient medical records or charts; physician status reports; notes made by 10 physicians, nurses, physician assistants or other medical staff, letters or reports from physicians, 11 nurses, physician assistants or other medical staff, reports of physical exams; and reports of medical 12 tests).

13 2. Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall be used solely for 14 conduct of this litigation, and not for any other purpose. Information "COVERED BY 15 PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall not be disclosed to anyone except as provided in this Protective Order.
16 In particular, Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall not be disclosed to any 17 employee or agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or 18 any federal, state or local law enforcement agency unless specifically provided for in this Protective 19 Order.

20 3. Notwithstanding paragraph 2, Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" 21 may be disclosed to the following persons who are participating in the conduct of this action on 22 behalf of the plaintiff after they have signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form attached hereto
23 stating their agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of this Protective Order:

24 United States Department of Justice

25 Frank W. Hunger, Assistant Attorney General
26 Robert S. Mueller III, United States Attorney
27 David J. Anderson
28 Arthur R. Goldberg
Mark T. Quinlivan

1           Defendants' Counsel

2           James J. Brosnahan
3           Annette P. Carnegie
4           Andrew A. Steckler
5           Christina Kirk-Kazhe
6           Robert A. Raich
7           Gerald F. Uelmen

8 Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" may also be disclosed, to the extent 9 reasonably necessary in conducting this litigation, to the secretaries, paralegal assistants, and legal 10 assistants of the above-named persons after they have signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form
11 attached hereto stating their agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of this Protective 12 Order; and to Court officials involved in this litigation (including court reporters, persons operating 13 video recording equipment at depositions, and any special master appointed by the Court). Provided 14 that the individual to whom disclosure is made has signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form
15 attached hereto stating his or her agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of the Protective 16 Order, such Information may also be disclosed to persons noticed for depositions or designated as 17 trial or deposition witnesses to the extent reasonably necessary in preparing to testify; to such other 18 persons agreed to by defendants' counsel in writing in advance of disclosure (such agreement shall 19 not be unreasonably withheld); and to such other persons designated by the Court in the interest of 20 justice.

21           4.       The inadvertent or unintentional disclosure to plaintiff or their counsel by defendants
22 or their counsel of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," regardless of whether the 23 Information was so designated at the time of disclosure, shall not be deemed a waiver in whole or in 24 part of defendants' claim that such Information is covered by this Protective Order. In the event of 25 inadvertent or unintentional disclosure of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," 26 defendants shall give prompt notification to plaintiff after learning of an inadvertent or unintentional
27 disclosure, and shall provide plaintiff with new copies of the inadvertently or unintentionally
28 produced documents, re-marked as "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER." The documents inadvertently or unintentionally produced without such designation shall then be returned promptly to defendants.

1           5.       The Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., along with the Exhibit A
2 attached thereto, filed September 14, 1998, is hereby deemed by the Court to be an inadvertent or 3 unintentional disclosure of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," as described in 4 paragraph 8. As such, this Information shall be returned promptly to the defendants. Plaintiff is 5 hereby ordered to return to defendants the Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H. along
6 with the Exhibit A attached thereto, and it is ordered to return to defendants all copies made of this 7 same Information. Plaintiff is hereby further ordered to prepare and provide to the Court within 8 seven days a log of all copies made of this same Information, and to prepare and maintain a log of all
9 copies that may be made of this same Information in the future. This same Information shall be 10 deemed "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" from and including September 14, 1998, and into 11 the future. The Court will receive, and orders served on plaintiff and all parties, the Amended
12 Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., dated September 30, 1998.

28 Reply in Support of Plaintiff's Motion in Limine/Opposition to Application for Use Immunity
Case Nos. C 98-0086 CRB; C 98-0083 CRB

2 In our opening memorandum, the United States demonstrated that defendants Oakland
3 Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative ("OCBC") and Jeffrey Jones in Case No. C 98-0088 CRB
4 (collectively the "OCBC defendants"); and defendants Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana
5 ("Marin Alliance") and Lynnette Shaw in Case No. C 98-0086 CRB (collectively the "Marin 6 Alliance defendants"), have failed to present any competent evidence regarding their affirmative 7 defenses of medical necessity, substantive due process, and joint users sufficient to present to a 8 jury and that, in any event, each of these defenses fails as a matter of law. In their Opposition to 9 Government's Motion in Limine to Exclude Defendants' Affirmative Defenses in Case No. C 98-10 0088 CRB ("OCBC Opp."), the OCBC defendants have now essentially foresworn any effort to 11 establish that each and every person distribution of marijuana in which they engaged on May 21, 12 1998, was justified by one or more of their affirmative defenses. Instead, the OCBC defendants 13 contend that they are in substantial compliance with the Court's May 19, 1998 Preliminary 14 Injunction Order and, moreover, that their meager evidentiary showing is sufficient to warrant a 15 trial on their affirmative defenses.

16 Similarly, in the Opposition of Defendants Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana and 17 Lynnette Shaw to Plaintiff's Motion in Limine to Exclude Defendants' Affirmative Defenses in 18 Case No. C 98-0086 CRB ("Marin Opp."), the Marin Alliance defendants contend that they are 19 not obligated to provide any information regarding the fourteen or more persons to whom they 20 distributed marijuana on May 27, 1998, because the government has allegedly "failed to present 21 the Court or [the Marin Alliance defendants] with any allegation of a specific transaction under a 22 specific set of facts." Marin Opp. at 4.

23 As we demonstrate below, neither of these arguments has any merit. The OCBC and 24 Marin Alliance defendants, having repeatedly promised the Court that they would produce 25 evidence supporting their asserted affirmative defenses when given the opportunity, have now 26 been exposed. Neither group of defendants, in response to the Court's Show Cause Orders, has

1 offered competent evidence contesting that they engaged in the distribution of marijuana on May 2 21 and 27, 1998, respectively, nor have they provided the Court with competent evidence 3 sufficient to present to a jury that each of the distribution of marijuana in which they engaged on 4 these dates was justified by one or more affirmative defenses. Under these circumstances, the 5 Court should vindicate its authority, reject the affirmative defenses put forward by the OCBC and 6 Marin Alliance defendants, and grant the relief sought by the United States.

7 ARGUMENT

8 I STANDARDS

9 We begin by responding to several of the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants' 10 misunderstandings regarding the standards which govern these civil contempt proceedings.

11 1. Although the OCBC defendants assert that they have disputed engaging in the 12 distribution of marijuana, see OCBC Opp. at 4, and the Marin Alliance defendants state that they 13 are not "admitting that any distribution has taken place," Marin Alliance Opp. at 3, neither group 14 of defendants is, in reality, contesting the fact that they distributed marijuana on May 21 and 27, 15 1998, respectively. Instead of submitting declarations denying that they distributed marijuana to 16 their clientele -- which, of course, would contradict the very legal defenses they assert as well as 17 the evidence they have placed before the Court -- the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants 18 continue to play at word games. For example, the OCBC defendants assert that, in their response 19 to the Court's Show Cause Order, "defendants made it abundantly clear that they deny any 20 distributions of marijuana in violation of the Court's Preliminary Injunction Order." OCBC Opp.
21 at 4 (emphasis supplied). Such a tautology, that defendants' distributions of marijuana are not in 22 violation of the Preliminary Injunction Order because they have raised affirmative defenses, 23 cannot suffice as a factual denial. See generally British Airways Bd. v. The Boeing Co., 585 F.2d 24 946, 952 (9th Cir. 1978) ("[L]egal memoranda and oral argument are not evidence, and they 25 cannot by themselves create a factual dispute sufficient to defeat a summary judgment motion 26 where no dispute otherwise exists."), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 981 (1979).

1 Accordingly, under well-settled principles of law, the defendants' failure to specifically 2 contest that they distributed marijuana and used their respective premises for this purpose should 3 be "considered evidence of acquiescence." Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 319 (1976).
 4 Accord United States v. Hale, 422 U.S. 171, 176 (1975); United States ex rel. Bilokumsky v. Tod, 5 263 U.S. 149, 153-54 (1923) (Brandeis, J.); Watson v. Perry, 918 F. Supp. 1403, 1415-16 (W.D.
 6 Wash. 1996), aff'd, 124 F.2d 1126 (9th Cir. 1997).

7 2. The OCBC defendants' assertion that they need only show that they are in "substantial 8 compliance" with this Court's May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Order, also is wrong in the 9 context of this case. The Ninth Circuit's rule regarding contempt "has long been whether 10 defendants have performed 'all reasonable steps within their power to insure compliance' with the 11 court's orders." Stone v. City and County of San Francisco, 968 F.2d 850, 856 (9th Cir.1992) 12 (quoting Sekaquaptewa v. MacDonald, 544 F.2d 396, 404 (9th Cir.1976), cert. denied, 430 U.S.
 13 931 (1977)), cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1081 (1993). Thus, although substantial compliance with a 14 court order is a defense to an action for civil contempt, and "technical or inadvertent violation of 15 the order will not support a finding of civil contempt," a violating party will be found to have 16 substantially complied with a court order only if it has "taken 'all reasonable steps' to comply with 17 the court order * * * ." General Signal Corp. v. Donnallo, Inc., 787 F.2d 1376, 1379 (9th Cir.
 18 1986) (emphasis supplied) (quoting Vertex Distr. v. Falcon Foam Plastics, Inc., 689 F.2d 885, 19 891-92 (9th Cir. 1982)).

20 In these cases, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have taken no steps to comply 21 with the Court's Preliminary Injunction Orders. Instead, they have essentially continued business 22 as usual, distributing marijuana to their members under the assumption (or hope) that they can 23 ultimately persuade a jury that their affirmative defenses are valid. OCBC Opp. at 1-2; Marin 24 Alliance Opp. at 3. This is not the "substantial compliance" or "technical or inadvertent violation" 25 envisioned by the courts. In Robin Woods Inc. v. Woods, 28 F.3d 396 (3d Cir. 1994), for 26 example, the Third Circuit held that a violation of a court order could not be deemed "technical"

1 or "inadvertent" when the alleged contemnor "consciously chose" to violate injunction, even 2 though the alleged contemnor had acted in good faith and on the advice of counsel. Id. at 399.
3 Indeed, to hold otherwise would be to allow the defendants to continue to violate the Preliminary 4 Injunction Orders by distributing marijuana on a widespread basis and, so long as they can justify 5 some of these distributions under one or more of their affirmative defenses, escape any form of 6 sanction. This Court has previously rejected substantially similar arguments advanced by the 7 defendants. United States v. Cannabis Cultivators Club, 5 F. Supp.2d 1086, 1102 (N.D. Cal.
8 1998) ("[T]he defense of necessity has never been allowed to exempt a defendant from the 9 criminal laws on a blanket basis."); id. at 1103 (defense based on substantive due process "is not 10 available, however, to exempt generally the distribution of marijuana from the federal drug 11 laws."). The Court therefore was quite right in determining that, in order for the defendants to 12 properly invoke these affirmative defenses, they must demonstrate that "each and every" 13 distribution of marijuana was justified by one or more of them.<sup>1</sup>

14 3. The OCBC defendants' related argument, that they acted in good faith in interpreting 15 and relying on the Court's May 13, 1998 Memorandum and Order, see OCBC Opp. at 7, also is 16 unavailing to them. As the Ninth Circuit explained in Stone, "[i]ntent is irrelevant to a finding of 17 civil contempt and, therefore, good faith is not a defense." 968 F.2d at 856. Accord In re Crystal
18 Palace Gambling Hall, Inc., 817 F.2d 1361, 1365 (9th Cir. 1987); Donovan v. Mazzola, 716 F.2d 19 1226, 1240 (9th Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 1040 (1984). The sole question is whether a 20 party complied with the district court's order. See, e.g., McComb v. Jacksonville Paper Co., 336 21 U.S. 187, 191 (1949).

23
24 <sup>1</sup> In any event, the OCBC defendants' submission of declarations from eight individuals out of 25 191, or roughly 4% of the club's customers on May 21, 1998, could not establish "substantial 26 compliance" with the Court's Preliminary Injunction Order even on the merits. Indeed, viewed in 27 this light, the OCBC defendants' "mountain of evidence," OCBC Opp. at 14, is revealed as the 28 proverbial molehill that it is.

1 4. The Marin Alliance defendants' contention that they cannot respond to the Court's 2 Show Cause Order because the government has allegedly "failed to present * * * any allegation of 3 a specific transaction under a specific set of facts," Marin Opp. at 4, also is meritless. The Court's 4 September 3, 1998 Order to Show Cause specifically found that, based on the totality of 5 circumstances, the United States had made a prima facie case that the Marin Alliance defendants 6 had distributed marijuana and used their premises for this purpose on May 27, 1998, and required 7 the Marin Alliance defendants "to show cause why they should not be held in civil contempt of 8 the Court's May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Order by distributing marijuana and by using the 9 premises of 6 School Street Plaza, Fairfax, California, for the purpose of distributing marijuana, 10 on May 27, 1998 * * * ." Hence, the burden of production has shifted to the Marin Alliance 11 defendants to show "categorically and in detail" either substantial compliance or inability to 12 comply. See Donovan, 716 F.2d at 1240. It therefore is no answer for the Marin Alliance 13 defendants to continue to contest the evidentiary showing by the United States; the burden of 14 production is now on their shoulders.

15 Furthermore, the Marin Alliance defendants suggestion that they are unable to determine 16 which of the (apparently) numerous individuals to whom they distributed marijuana on May 27, 17 1998, are the subject of the Court's Show Cause Order cannot be taken seriously. The Show 18 Cause Order did not limit itself to only fourteen individuals or distributions, but is inclusive of 19 any and all distributions which occurred on May 27. Moreover, the Marin Alliance defendants' 20 complaints in this regard ring hollow because, as they do not dispute, all the relevant information 21 is in their possession and control.

22 II. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO 23 ESTABLISH THE DEFENSE OF MEDICAL NECESSITY

24 In our opening memorandum, we showed: (1) that Congress made a determination of 25 values when it passed the Controlled Substances Act and precluded any possibility of a medical 26 necessity defense; (2) that, because the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants did not seek redress

1 before this Court, they cannot establish, as a matter of law, the absence of reasonable, legal 2 alternatives; (3) that, in any event, the medical necessity defense has only been allowed in cases 3 involving possession, not distribution; and (4) that the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have 4 failed to offer competent evidence demonstrating that each and every person to whom they 5 distributed marijuana on May 21 and 27, 1998, respectively, could establish the elements of a 6 necessity defense.

7 1. The OCBC defendants first contend that “[t]he government’s claim that Congress has 8 abrogated any possibility of a medical necessity defense here is simply wrong.” OCBC Opp. at 9 12. On the contrary, the recent decision in United States v. Diana, Nos. CR-98-068-RHW; CR-
 10 98-069-RHW; CR-98-070-RHW; and CR-98-072-RHW (E.D. Wash. Sept. 21, 1998), squarely 11 supports the conclusion that Congress precluded any possibility of a medical necessity defense. In 12 Diana, the lead defendant, who suffered from multiple sclerosis, was arrested with three other 13 individuals for the manufacture and possession of marijuana.<sup>2</sup> Three of the four defendants, 14 including the lead defendant, raised the defense of medical necessity to the federal charges.

15 The district court held that the medical necessity defense was unavailable to the defendants
 16 as a matter of law. Noting that Congress had placed marijuana in Schedule I, see 21 U.S.C. § 812
 17 Schedule I(c)(10), had delegated to the Attorney General the authority to reschedule drugs, id. § 18 811(a), and had provided for research programs to determine whether medical uses might develop 19 for substances in Schedule I, id. § 823(f), the district court held that “Congress was aware of the 20 competing interests in cases such as Defendants’ and addressed them.” Diana, Nos. CR-98-068-
 21 RHW; CR-98-069-RHW; CR-98-070-RHW; and CR-98-072-RHW, slip op. at 5. The district 22 court further noted that, while no published federal decision had yet adopted this analysis, the four 23 state courts which had reached an identical conclusion under state law “were correctly decided.”

24 _____

25 <sup>2</sup> The lead defendant had previously been acquitted in Washington state court of state 26 marijuana possession charges based on the medical necessity defense. See State v. Diana, 24
 Wn. App. 908 (1979).

1 Id. (citing State v. Tate, 102 N.J. 64, 73, 505 A.2d 941, 946 (1986); State v. Hanson, 468 N.W.2d 2 77, 78 (Minn. App. 1991); State v. Cramer, 174 Ariz. 522, 524, 851 P.2d 147, 149 (1992); and 3 Kaufman v. State, 620 So.2d 90, 92-93 (Ala. Crim. App. 1992)).

4 This Court should follow the Diana court's persuasive analysis. Congress's determination 5 that marijuana has "no currently accepted medical use in treatment in the United States," and "a 6 lack of accepted safety for use * * * under medical supervision," 21 U.S.C. § 812(b)(1), as well as 7 its creation of an administrative rescheduling and research process to take into account changes in 8 scientific and medical knowledge, id. §§ 811(a), 823(f), reveals that the Legislative Branch 9 considered and rejected any possible medical necessity defense for marijuana.

10 2. The OCBC defendants also fail to undermine our showing that, because they did not 11 pursue available remedies in the judicial system, their invocation of the medical necessity defense
12 must be rejected under United States v. Aguilar, 883 F.2d 662 (9th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 498 13 U.S. 1046 (1991). In that case, the Ninth Circuit held that, because the defendants could have 14 "appeal[ed] to the judiciary to correct any alleged improprieties by the INS and the immigration 15 court," this available legal alternative "nullifies the existence of necessity for all the underlying 16 crimes stated * * * ." Id. at 694. Similarly here, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants had 17 the right to appeal from the Court's Preliminary Injunction Orders, see 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1), 18 and also could have moved the Court to modify the Preliminary Injunction Orders to allow for the 19 distribution of marijuana in particular circumstances or cases, see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), including 20 seeking expedited relief, if necessary. See Local Rule 7-10 (expedited motions); Local Rule 7-11
21 (ex parte motions). Because the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants failed to pursue available 22 judicial remedies, Aguilar dictates rejection of their medical necessity defense.

23 The OCBC defendants argue, however, that they have met the fourth prong of the 24 necessity test because "no other alternative effectively can prevent the serious and imminent 25 medical harm they seek to avoid." OCBC Opp. at 13. But this argument misses the mark. As 26 Aguilar establishes, the judicial process itself can be a reasonable, legal alternative, see 883 F.2d

1 at 693-94, and the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants were obligated to avail themselves of 2 this alternative.

3 Moreover, the OCBC defendants have failed to offer competent evidence demonstrating 4 that each of the persons to whom they distributed marijuana had no other medical alternative. In 5 Diana, for example, the district court determined that, because the lead defendant had not sought a 6 prescription for Marinol, a Schedule II substance in pill form which contains the THC found in 7 marijuana, or sought to participate in a controlled research project pursuant to section 823(f), the 8 defendant failed the fourth prong of the necessity test. Diana, Nos. CR-98-068-RHW; CR-98-9 069-RHW; CR-98-070-RHW; and CR-98-072-RHW, slip op. at 6-7. Similarly here, with the 10 exception of Dr. Alcalay, none of the declarations submitted by the OCBC defendants establish 11 that those persons had tried Marinol, or sought to participate in a section 823(f) research project.
12 Borrowing the Diana court's language, "there were legal alternatives which work for others, and 13 may have worked for Defendant[s]. [They] did not try them. Failing this fourth prong [of the 14 necessity test], there is no need to address the others." Id. See also Aguilar, 883 F.2d at 692-93 15 ("[I]f defendants' offer of proof is deficient with regard to any of the four elements, the district 16 judge must grant the motion to preclude evidence of necessity.").

17 3. Although they cannot point to a single case in which a medical necessity defense was 18 authorized outside the context of a possession charge, the OCBC defendants continue to argue 19 that they may assert this defense even though these cases involve distribution, not possession.
20 OCBC Opp. at 15. This argument, too, is without foundation. As one judge has observed:

21 If the [medical necessity] defense prevails it serves not only to exculpate defendant of 22 unlawfully using marijuana, but also as an invitation to him and to others to commit a 23 wide range of possessory infractions without hindrance in the future. The amnesty granted 24 is not only for possession immediately incidental to use, but for possession at all other 25 times as well. This follows because the need for therapeutic administration cannot be 26 forecast and defendant would have to have it available at all times for use when the need 27 arises. Furthermore, it would be left to defendant's unsupervised judgment to decide 28 when, under what circumstances and in what dosages it should be used. As the trial judge himself recognized, the substance may not be prescribed for use and it would therefore be impossible for defendant to obtain professional guidance when actually medicating.

* * * *

[T]he defense of necessity * * * should not be available where the alleged necessity is regularly recurrent and the violation evidences a calculated intention to disregard the statutory prohibition. If there is to be a change in the legal status of his drug it should be made by the legislature and not by the courts.

State v. Tate, 198 N.J. Super. 285, 288-89, 486 A.2d 1281, 1283-84 (1984) (Antell, P.J.A.D., dissenting), rev'd, 102 N.J. 64, 505 A.2d 941 (1986). The Court should follow this reasoning.

4. Finally, apparently recognizing their inability to meet the Court's requirement that they produce evidence showing that each and every distribution of marijuana on May 21, 1998, was justified by medical necessity, the OCBC defendants instead point to the alleged "stringency of their admission criteria—both upon initial application to the Cooperative and at each subsequent visit," OCBC Opp. at 8, as proof of their compliance. Any such evidence, however, is legally insufficient, as the Ninth Circuit made clear in Aguilar. In that case, the defendants, who had been convicted of various provisions of the immigration laws for their participation smuggling, transporting, and harboring refugees from Central America, argued on appeal that they were entitled to an instruction on necessity at trial because the Immigration and Naturalization Service ("INS") had continually frustrated the ability of these individuals to obtain refugee status. Although the court rejected this claim on the ground that the defendants had failed to pursue available judicial remedies, the Ninth Circuit was careful to note that:

We also doubt the sufficiency of the proffer to establish imminent harm. The offer fails to specify that the particular aliens assisted were in danger of imminent harm. Instead, it refers to general atrocities committed by Salvadoran, Guatemalan, and Mexican authorities. The only indication that appellants intended to show that the aliens involved in this action faced imminent harm was their proffer that they adopted a process to screen aliens in order to assure themselves that those helped actually were in danger. This allegation fails for lack of specificity. Moreover, even a specific proffer would establish only appellants' deliberative assessment that certain aliens faced imminent harm, and not that these aliens in fact were in danger. In other contexts, perhaps this proffer would be sufficient. In the immigration area, however, allowing this showing to establish a necessity defense essentially would result in sanctioning the creation of religious boards of review to determine asylum status. The executive branch, not appellants, is assigned this task.

883 F.2d 693 n.28 (emphasis supplied).

1 This language makes clear that the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants are obligated to 2 specify that each of their customers could establish a medical necessity defense, and that 3 generalized statements as to admission criteria cannot substitute for such a showing. Because the 4 OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants have failed to offer any evidence that each of the persons to 5 whom they distributed marijuana was in danger of imminent harm, and had no alternative, legal 6 remedies available, their invocation of the medical necessity defense cannot stand.

7 III. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO ESTABLISH THE DEFENSE OF SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS

8 In our opening memorandum, we showed that, under binding Ninth Circuit precedent, the 9 OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants do not have a substantive due process right to use 10 marijuana. In Carnohan v. United States, 616 F.2d 1120 (9th Cir. 1980), the Ninth Circuit, 11 consistent with every other court of appeals to have considered the issue,<sup>3</sup> held that the 12 "[c]onstitutional rights of privacy and personal liberty do not give individuals the right to obtain 13 laetrile free of the lawful exercise of the government's police power." Id. at 1122. We also 14 showed that, in any event, the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants had failed to offer any 15 competent evidence establishing that each and every person to whom they distributed marijuana
 16 on May 21 and 27, 1998, respectively, could establish a violation of their substantive due process 17 rights.

18 In their opposition, the OCBC defendants argue that Carnohan is distinguishable on three 19 grounds. None of these purported distinctions is persuasive. First, the OCBC defendants contend 20 that this case is distinguishable because "defendants do not assert the right to a particular 21 treatment as [in Carnohan]." OCBC Opp. at 16. Rather, the OCBC defendants argue that they are 23 <sup>3</sup> See Sammon v. New Jersey Bd. of Medical Examiners, 66 F.3d 639, 645 n.10 (3d Cir.

 24 1995); Mitchell v. Clayton, 995 F.2d 772, 775-76 (7th Cir. 1993); Rutherford v. United States, 25 616 F.2d 455, 457 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 937 (1980). See also Smith v. Shalala, 954 26 F. Supp. 1, 3 (D.D.C. 1996) (quoting Carnohan for proposition that there was no substantive due process right "to obtain unapproved drugs free of the lawful exercise of government police power.").

1 "assert[ing] the fundamental liberty interest to be free from unnecessary pain, to receive palliative
2 treatment for painful medical conditions, to care for oneself, and to preserve one's life." OCBC 3 Opp. at 16.

4 There is no merit to this assertion. In Washington v. Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. 2258 (1997), 5 the Supreme Court made clear that, in substantive due process cases, "a 'careful description' of 6 the asserted fundamental liberty interest" is a primary feature of substantive due process analysis.
7 Id. at 2268. Here, the OCBC defendants are not merely asserting the right to be free from pain, to 8 receive treatment, to care for oneself, and to preserve one's life in a vacuum. Necessarily, the 9 OCBC defendants are also asserting that, in order to vindicate these rights, they must be allowed 10 to use marijuana. Carnohan precludes any such argument. See 616 F.2d at 1122. As the Tenth 11 Circuit explained in Rutherford, "the decision by the patient whether to have a treatment or not is 12 a protected right, but his selection of a particular treatment, or at least a medication, is within the 13 area of governmental interest in protecting public health." 616 F.2d at 457. Accord Mitchell, 995 14 F.2d at 775-76 ("[A] patient does not have a constitutional right to obtain a particular type of 15 treatment or to obtain treatment from a particular provider if the government has reasonably 16 prohibited that type of treatment or provider").

17 Second, the OCBC defendants argue that, in contrast to Carnohan, "the government has 18 introduced no evidence concerning the harmfulness of cannabis." OCBC Opp. at 16. The Marin 19 Alliance defendants also assert that "the government has glaringly failed to submit any scientific 20 evidence to support its contention that a rational basis exists to ban medical marijuana." Marin 21 Opp. at 6. These arguments fundamentally misapprehend the nature of rational basis review.
22 Legislative classifications subject to rational basis review are accorded "a strong presumption of 23 validity" and must be sustained if there is "any reasonably conceivable state of facts that could 24 provide a rational basis for the classification." Heller v. Doe, 509 U.S. 312, 319-20 (1993). The 25 Government "has no obligation to produce evidence to sustain the rationality" of the Act; "a 26 legislative choice is not subject to courtroom factfinding and may be based on rational speculation

1 unsupported by evidence or empirical data." Id. at 320. Instead, "[t]he burden is on the one 2 attacking the legislative arrangement to negative every conceivable basis which might support it *
 3 * * whether or not the basis has a foundation in the record." Id. at 320-21.

4 Here, as we described in our opening memorandum, by placing marijuana in Schedule I, 5 Congress determined that the substance has a "high potential for abuse," "no currently accepted 6 medical use in treatment in the United States," and a "lack of accepted safety for use under 7 medical supervision." 21 U.S.C. § 812(b)(1). Moreover, when it passed the Controlled 8 Substances Act, Congress provided for a statutory framework wherein controlled substances that 9 have been placed in Schedule I (or any other schedule) may be rescheduled, or removed from the 10 five schedules. Id. § 811(a). As the Second Circuit has held, "[t]he very existence of the statutory 11 scheme indicates that, in dealing with the 'drug' problem, Congress intended flexibility and 12 receptivity to the latest scientific information to be the hallmarks of its approach. This * * * is the 13 very antithesis of the irrationality [defendants] attribute[] to Congress." United States v. Kiffer, 14 477 F.2d 349, 357 (2d Cir. 1972), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 831 (1973). Accord National 15 Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws v. Bell, 488 F. Supp. 123, 142 (D.D.C. 1980) 16 (three-judge panel) (same).

17 Third, the OCBC defendants argue that "medical cannabis has played a role in our 18 '[n]ation's history, legal traditions and practices' * * * at least between 1840 and 1937." OCBC 19 Opp. at 16 (quoting Glucksberg, 117 S. Ct. at 2262). Here again, there is no basis to this 20 argument. In Glucksberg, the Supreme Court rejected the asserted right to physician assisted 21 suicide because "[t]he history of the law's treatment of assisted suicide in this country has been 22 and continues to be one of the rejection of nearly all efforts to permit it. That being the case, our 23 decisions lead us to conclude that the asserted 'right' to assistance in committing suicide is not a 24 fundamental liberty interest protected by the Due Process Clause." 117 S. Ct. 2271. Similarly 25 here, in addition to the prohibitions in the Controlled Substances Act, there can be no dispute that
 26 "the use, possession, and sale of marijuana remains illegal in almost every state." Cass R. |

1 Sunstein, Pornography and the First Amendment, 1986 Duke L.J. 589, 627. See generally Leary
 2 v. United States, 395 U.S. 6, 17 (1969); United States v. Alkhafaji, 754 F.2d 641, 644 (6th Cir.
 3 1985). Under these circumstances, the OCBC defendants cannot establish that their asserted right 4 is so deeply rooted in the Nation's history and traditions as to be fundamental. Glucksberg, 117 S.
 5 Ct. at 2268.

6 Finally, the OCBC defendants contention that they are not required to show that each and 7 every person to whom they distributed marijuana on May 21, 1998, could establish the defense of 8 substantive due process, see OCBC Opp. at 17-18, fails for the reasons set forth above. See Part 9 I-II.

10 IV. THE OCBC AND MARIN ALLIANCE DEFENDANTS HAVE FAILED TO 11 ESTABLISH THE DEFENSE OF JOINT USERS

12 In our opening memorandum, we showed that, because the OCBC and Marin Alliance 13 defendants failed to present any competent evidence demonstrating that they were "joint 14 possessors who simultaneously acquired possession at the outset for their own use," United States 15 v. Swiderski, 548 F.2d 445, 450-51 (2d Cir. 1977) (emphasis supplied), their invocation of the 16 defense of joint users fails as a matter of law. See, e.g., United States v. Wright, 593 F.2d 105, 17 198 (9th Cir. 1979) (refusing to extend scope of the Swiderski ruling to cases which do not 18 involve joint and simultaneous acquisition<sup>4</sup>). As this Court explained, "[a]pplying Swiderski to a 19 medical marijuana cooperative would extend Swiderski to a situation in which the controlled 20 substance is not literally purchased simultaneously for immediate consumption. In light of the 21 fact that Swiderski has never been so extended, and in light of the fact that it has not been adopted 22 by the Ninth Circuit, the Court concludes that it is reasonably likely that such a defense would not 23 prevail at a trial addressing whether injunctive relief should be granted." Cannabis Cultivators 24 Club, 5 F. Supp.2d at 1101. See also United States v. Washington, 41 F.3d 917, 920 (4th Cir.

---

 26 <sup>4</sup> Indeed, in Wright, the Ninth Circuit expressly declined to decide whether Swiderski was good law in the Ninth Circuit. 593 F.2d at 108.

1 1994) (affirming district court's denial of Swiderski instruction because "[a] defendant who 2 purchases a drug and shares it with a friend has 'distributed' the drug even though the purchase 3 was part of a joint venture to use drugs").

4 The OCBC defendants completely fail to respond to this showing in their opposition brief.
5 Instead, in a transparent attempt to muddy the waters, they argue that the government's argument
6 focused on the fact "that the Cooperative members are not two members, husband and wife."

7 OCBC Opp. at 19. This, of course, was not the government's argument, as any cursory review of 8 our opening memorandum demonstrates.<sup>5</sup> Again, because neither the OCBC or Marin Alliance 9 defendants have offered a scintilla of evidence that they and their customers simultaneously
10 acquire marijuana, as Swiderski and Wright require, their invocation of the joint user defense 11 must be rejected..

12 IV. THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE OCBC DEFENDANTS' APPLICATION FOR 13 USE IMMUNITY

14 The OCBC defendants also have filed an application for use immunity "[i]n anticipation of 15 trial on the government's allegations that defendants are in contempt of this Court's Preliminary 16 Injunction Order * * * *." Application for Use Immunity for Statement or Testimony of 17 Defendant and Defense Witnesses in Case No. C 98-0088 CRB ("Immunity App.") at 1. Because 18 this Court should exclude the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants' affirmative defenses and 19 find them in civil contempt, the Court need not consider this application as there is no need for a 20

21 <sup>5</sup> The United States did argue that the sheer volume of customers at the OCBC on May 21, 22 1998 -- 191 -- dictates rejection of the joint user defense. And for good reason. The courts have 23 been extremely reluctant to extend Swiderski beyond its narrow factual posture. See, e.g., 24 United States v. Rush, 738 F.2d 497, 514 (1st Cir. 1984) (declining to extend Swiderski "to 25 situations where more than a couple of defendants and a small quantity of drugs are involved"), 26 cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1004 (1985); United States v. Taylor, 683 F.2d 18, 21 (1st Cir.) (finding 27 Swiderski inapplicable to complex marijuana distribution organization), cert. denied, 459 U.S.
945 (1982). In contrast, the OCBC defendants have failed to cite to a single case in which Swiderski was applied to an alleged joint users numbering in the hundreds, if not thousands.

1 trial in this matter. Nonetheless, we briefly respond to the arguments advanced in the application 2 for use immunity.

3 As a preliminary matter, the OCBC defendants do not dispute, as they cannot, the bedrock 4 principle that "[i]mmunity is an executive, not a judicial function, and '[t]his court has 5 emphatically rejected the argument that the sixth amendment provides a defendant with a right to 6 demand use immunity for defense witnesses who invoke their privilege against self-7 incrimination.'" United States v. Baker, 10 F.3d 1374, 1414 (9th Cir. 1993) (quoting United 8 States v. Brutzman, 731 F.2d 1449, 1451-52 (9th Cir. 1984)), cert. denied, 513 U.S. 934 (1994).
9 Rather, the OCBC defendants contend they are entitled to use immunity under two narrow 10 exceptions to this general rule. Neither exception is applicable here.

11 The OCBC defendants first contend the Court should provide use immunity to defendant 12 Jeffrey Jones "in order to 'vindicate the most fundamental of all constitutional rights, [his] right of 13 liberty from civil incarceration.'" Immunity App. at 5 (quoting United States v. Perry, 788 F.2d 14 100, 116 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 864 (1986)). The OCBC defendants argue that, because 15 the United States is seeking civil contempt, and because defendant Jones "faces in civil contempt 16 proceedings the risk of civil incarceration," use immunity is necessary to vindicate his right of 17 liberty from civil incarceration. Id.

18 This contention is a non-starter. The United States is not seeking civil incarceration of 19 defendant Jones, or any other defendant, as a potential remedy in this case. Indeed, the United 20 States has made it abundantly clear that it is seeking an order authorizing the United States
21 Marshal to enforce the Court's Preliminary Injunction Orders by padlocking the defendant clubs 22 until such time as the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants can "satisfy [the Court] that [they 23 are] no longer in violation of the injunctive order and that [they] would in good faith thereafter 24 comply with the terms of the order." Lance v. Plummer, 353 F.2d 585, 592 (5th Cir. 1965), cert.
25 denied, 384 U.S. 929 (1966). Hence, there is no merit to the OCBC defendants' argument that 26 defendant Jones is entitled to use immunity because he is in danger of civil incarceration.

1 The OCBC defendants also contend, relying on United States v. Lord, 711 F.2d 887 (9th 2 Cir. 1983), and United States v. Westerdahl, 945 F.2d 1083 (9th Cir. 1991), that the Court should 3 provide them and other defense witnesses with use immunity in order to protect their due process 4 right to a fair trial based on the government's alleged "intentional distortion of the fact-finding 5 process." Immunity App. at 8. This contention, too, is without foundation. As an initial matter, 6 Lord and its progeny are inapplicable to civil proceedings, in which the Ninth Circuit has made 7 clear that "[a] defendant has no absolute right not to be forced to choose between testifying in a 8 civil matter and asserting his Fifth Amendment privilege." Keating v. Office of Thrift 9 Supervision, 45 F.3d 322, 326 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 516 U.S. 827 (1995). Indeed, the OCBC 10 defendants do not point to a single case in which Lord-type immunity was provided in a civil case, 11 and we are aware of none.

12 Moreover, none of the circumstances at issue in Lord or Westerdahl are present here. In 13 Westerdahl, the Ninth Circuit explained that an evidentiary hearing regarding the government's 14 refusal to provide a potential witness with use immunity is required either: (1) where the 15 defendant makes a prima facie showing that "the government or its agents took affirmative actions 16 to prevent defense witnesses from testifying," 945 F.2d at 1086 (emphasis supplied); or (2) where 17 the government grants immunity to one witness while denying immunity to a defense witness who 18 would directly contradict the testimony of the government witness. Id. at 1087. Neither of these 19 situations is present here.

20 First, the United States has not taken any "affirmative action" to prevent defense witnesses 21 at trial. Indeed, the government has had no contact whatsoever with the defendants, or the 22 potential defense witnesses, regarding their testimony in this case. In Lord, by contrast, the Ninth 23 Circuit found that "[t]he record can * * * be read to suggest that prosecutorial misconduct caused 24 [the potential witness] to invoke his fifth amendment privilege against self-incrimination," insofar 25 as the prosecutor had allegedly informed the witness "that whether he would be prosecuted 26 depended on his testimony," and "that the government would not prosecute [him] if he submitted

1 to an interview and testified truthfully.” 711 F.2d at 891. Therefore, because there is no evidence
2 that the United States has taken “affirmative actions” to prevent defense witnesses from testifying 3 in this matter, there is no basis for the OCBC defendants’ request for use immunity on this basis.
4 See, e.g., Jeffers v. Ricketts, 832 F.2d 476, 479 (9th Cir. 1987), rev’d on other grounds, 497 U.S.
5 764 (1990) (defendant failed to make a prima facie case of prosecutorial misconduct because 6 “[t]here is no suggestion that the prosecutor made any threat to [the potential witness] that 7 induced him to invoke the fifth amendment, as was prima facie shown to have occurred in 8 Lord.”).

9 Second, “[t]his is not a case where two eyewitnesses have conflicting stories to tell, and 10 the government seeks and obtains immunity for its own eyewitness while refusing to request 11 immunity for defendant’s eyewitness.” Brutzman, 731 F.2d at 1452. The government has not 12 provided any witnesses with immunity in these actions, and the OCBC defendants do not point to 13 any instance in which two (or more) eyewitnesses have conflicting stories to tell.

14 Accordingly, the OCBC defendants’ application for use immunity should be denied.

For the reasons set forth above, and in our opening memorandum, the Court should grant the United States' motion in limine to exclude the affirmative defenses offered by the OCBC and Marin Alliance defendants, find defendants in civil contempt of the May 19, 1998 Preliminary Injunction Orders, and enter the relief proposed by the United States.

The Members answer the allegations of the numbered paragraphs of the Complaint using the same paragraph numbers:

1. The Members are without knowledge or information sufficient to enable them to form a belief as to the truth or falsity of plaintiff's averments concerning its intent and state of mind. Answering the remaining allegation of paragraph 1. the Members aver that the Complaint speaks for itself and that provisions of the Controlled Substances Act (the "Act"), 21 U.S.C. § 801 et seq., are conclusions of law, which speak for themselves. Except as so averred, the Members deny the allegations of paragraph 1.

2. The Members aver that section 512(a) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 882(a), is a matter of law that speaks for itself and further aver upon information and belief that this Court has jurisdiction over the claims alleged pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1345 and that venue lies in this district. Except as so averred, the Members deny the allegations of paragraph 2.

3. The Members admit the allegations of paragraph 3 upon information and belief.

4. The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine for members who need it. Except as so averred, the Members deny the allegations of paragraph 4.

5. The Members aver upon information and belief that Jeffrey Jones ("Jones") is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity of the allegations of paragraph 5.

ER1696

1           6.       The Members aver that 21 U.S.C. § 801 et seq. is a matter of law that 2 speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the allegations of paragraph 3 6.

4           7.       The Members aver that section 501(a) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 871(a), is 5 a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 6 allegations of paragraph 7.

7           8.       The Members aver that section 101 of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 801, is a
8 matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 9 allegations of paragraph 8 to the extent the quoted language is taken out of context.
10 The Members specifically deny that the findings excerpted in paragraph 8 represent all 11 of the Congressional findings in 21 U.S.C. § 801 that are pertinent to this action.

12          9.       The Members aver that section 102(6) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 802(6), is 13 a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 14 allegations of paragraph 9.

15          10.       The Members aver that section 202(b) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 812(b), is 16 a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 17 allegations of paragraph 10.

18          11.       The Members aver that section 202(c) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 812(c), is 19 a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 20 allegations of paragraph 11.

21          12.       The Members aver that section 401(a) of the Act, 21 U.S.C.
22 § 841(a)(1), is a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the 23 Members deny the allegations of paragraph 12.

24          13.       The Members aver that section 102(15) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 802(15), 25 is a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 26 allegations of paragraph 13.

28

1           14.       The Members aver that section 416(a) of the Act, 21 U.S.C.
2   § 856(a)(1), is a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the 3 Members deny the allegations of paragraph 14.

4           15.       The Members aver that section 406 of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 846, is a
5 matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 6 allegations of paragraph 15.

7           16.       The Members aver that section 512(a) of the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 882(a), is 8 a matter of law that speaks for itself. Except as so averred, the Members deny the 9 allegations of paragraph 16.

10          17.       The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
11 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 12 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 13 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine
14 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 15 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members deny 16 the allegations of paragraph 17.

17          18.       The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
18 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 19 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 20 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine
21 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 22 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are 23 without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity
24 of the allegations of paragraph 18.

25          19.       The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
26 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 27 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 28 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine

1 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 2 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are 3 without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity
4 of the allegations of paragraph 19.

5 20. The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
6 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 7 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 8 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine
9 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 10 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are 11 without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity
12 of the allegations of paragraph 20.

13 21. The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
14 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 15 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 16 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine
17 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 18 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are 19 without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity
20 of the allegations of paragraph 21.

21 22. The Members aver upon information and belief that the Oakland Coop
22 is an unincorporated cooperative association located at 1755 Broadway Avenue in 23 Oakland, California that operates as a not for profit organization pursuant to and in 24 accordance with the statewide mandate of Proposition 215 to help provide medicine
25 for members who need it. The Members further aver upon information and belief that 26 Jones is the director of the Oakland Coop. Except as so averred, the Members are 27 without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity
28 of the allegations of paragraph 22.

THIRD DEFENSE

21

Plaintiff's claims are barred by the doctrine of unclean hands.

22

FOURTH DEFENSE

24           The Members are informed and believe, and on that basis allege, that at all 25 times relevant to the matters alleged in the Complaint, plaintiff was informed of any 26 rights and claims which it may have had against the Members. Having such 27 knowledge, plaintiff intentionally conducted itself in such a way as to lead the 28 Members to believe plaintiff intentionally relinquished the rights and claims which it

12808021

1 may have had against the Members. Plaintiff is therefore estopped from seeking 2 damages and any other relief based on the allegations of the Complaint.

FIFTH DEFENSE

5 The Members are informed and believe, and on that basis allege, that plaintiff 6 knowingly and unreasonably delayed in asserting the claims contained in the 7 Complaint, without good cause and under circumstances permitting and requiring 8 diligence, and thereby prejudiced the Members. For that reason, the Complaint and 9 each purported cause of action therein are barred by the doctrine of laches.

10

11

SIXTH DEFENSE

12 The Members are informed and believe, and on that basis allege, that at all 13 times relevant to the matters alleged in the Complaint, plaintiff was fully informed of 14 the alleged rights it now asserts in its Complaint. Having such knowledge, plaintiff 15 intentionally conducted itself in a manner inconsistent with the assertion of those 16 rights and caused the Members to believe that it had relinquished said rights. As a 17 result, plaintiff has waived the rights it now claims to assert.

18

SEVENTH DEFENSE

20 The Members' actions are lawful under the doctrine of necessity.

21

22

EIGHTH DEFENSE

23 The statutes and regulations upon which plaintiff relies, as applied herein, 24 violate the Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution.

25

26

NINTH DEFENSE

27 The statutes and regulations upon which plaintiff relies, as applied herein,

20 As and by way of a counterclaim against plaintiff United States of America, 21 defendants and counterclaimants-in-intervention EDWARD NEIL BRUNDRIDGE, 22 IMA CARTER, REBECCA NIKKEL and LUCIA Y. VIER (collectively, the 23 "Members"), allege as follows:

24
25 BACKGROUND

26 1. By these related actions, plaintiff and counter-defendant United States of 27 America seeks to preliminarily and permanently enjoin the Oakland Coop, the Marin 28 Alliance, the Ukiah Coop (as those terms are hereinafter defined) and others from 1 allegedly using a facility for the purpose of manufacturing and distributing marijuana

2 in violation of the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 3 (the "Controlled Substances Act") and from allegedly engaging in other violations of 4 the Controlled Substances Act.

5 2. By their counterclaim-in-intervention, the Members seek to obtain a 6 judicial declaration of their fundamental right guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment 7 of the United States Constitution (the "Fifth Amendment") to be free from 8 governmental interdiction of their personal, self-funded medical choice, in consultation 9 with their personal physician, to alleviate their suffering through the only effective 10 treatment available for them. The Members also seek to obtain a preliminary and 11 permanent injunction restraining and enjoining the United States of America, and its 12 agents and employees and all persons acting in concert with any of them, from 13 interfering with the Members' exercise of this fundamental right and from hindering, 14 obstructing, preventing or attempting to enjoin the Oakland Coop, the Marin Alliance, 15 the Ukiah Coop or any of the other defendants from providing the Members, or their 16 primary care givers, with safe and affordable cannabis for personal medicinal use by 17 the Member upon a physician's recommendation as permitted by Proposition 215, the 18 Compassionate Use Act of 1996 (codified at California Health and Safety Code 19 § 11362.5).

20 21 JURISDICTION

22 3. The jurisdiction of this Court over the subject matter of this 23 counterclaim is based on 28 U.S.C. §§1331, 1346(a)(2), 2201(a) and the principles of 24 ancillary jurisdiction.

4. Defendant and counterclaimant-in-intervention Edward Neil Brundridge ("Brundridge") is a natural person, a resident of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California and a member of the Oakland Cannabis Buyers' Cooperative (the "Oakland Coop").

5. Defendant and counterclaimant-in-intervention Ima Carter ("Carter") is a natural person, a resident of the City of Richmond, County of Contra Costa, State of California and a member of the Oakland Coop.

6. Defendant and counterclaimant-in-intervention Rebecca Nikkel ("Nikkel") is a natural person, a resident of the City of Santa Rosa, County of Sonoma, State of California and a member of the Marin Alliance for Medical Marijuana (the "Marin Alliance").

7. Defendant and counterclaimant-in-intervention Lucia Y. Vier is a natural person, a resident of the City of Santa Rosa, County of Sonoma, State of California and a member of the Ukiah Cannabis Buyer's Club (the "Ukiah Coop").

8. The Members name plaintiff United States of America ("United States") as a counter-defendant.

FIRST CLAIM

(Violation of Substantive Due Process Rights)

9. The Members reallege and incorporate herein by reference as if fully set forth the allegations of paragraphs 1-8 hereof.

10. Each of the Members is a Californian in danger of imminent harm due to serious illness. Each uses cannabis for medical purposes. In each case, such use has been deemed appropriate and recommended by a physician who has determined it to be beneficial to the Member's health.

11. Edward Neil Brundridge suffers from severe arthritis in the right knee, which causes him extreme pain and difficulty in walking. In an effort to alleviate this

1 pain, Brundridge tried many traditional medicines, which were either ineffective or 2 caused him to experience an allergic reaction. Brundridge's doctor recommended 3 cannabis as a legal medical alternative to relieve his pain caused by the swelling in his 4 knee. His doctor's recommendation conformed with the Compassionate Use Act 5 (codified at California Health and Safety Code § 11362.5). Cannabis provides 6 Brundridge relief unavailable from any other medical treatment.

7 12. Rebecca Nikkel has fibromyalgia and multiple sclerosis. Both of these 8 conditions cause her to experience severe muscle spasms which are very painful.
9 Nikkel has tried many traditional medicines to alleviate this pain, but the traditional 10 medicines were either ineffective or caused her to experience an allergic reaction. For 11 example, upon the recommendation of her doctor, Nikkel tried baclofen, which caused 12 her legs to become so weak that she could not walk. Nikkel's doctor recommended 13 cannabis as a legal medical alternative to relieve the pain caused by her muscle 14 spasms. Nikkel's doctor's recommendation conformed with the Compassionate Use 15 Act (codified at California Health and Safety Code § 11362.5). Cannabis provides 16 Nikkel relief unavailable from any other medical treatment.

17 13. Ima Carter has congenital scoliosis, fibromyalgia and cervical nerve 18 damage. These conditions cause her enormous pain in her back and her head. Carter 19 has tried many traditional medicines to alleviate the pain caused by the muscle 20 spasms, but none of these traditional medicines has worked effectively. For example, 21 Carter tried steroids and anti-inflammatory drugs, but they caused her to bleed 22 internally. She also tried rhizotomy treatments and breast reduction surgery, neither of 23 which relieved all of her pain. Carter's doctor recommended cannabis as a legal 24 medical alternative to relieve the pain caused by her muscle spasms. Carter's doctor's 25 recommendation conformed with the Compassionate Use Act (codified at California 26 Health and Safety Code § 11362.5). Cannabis provides Carter relief unavailable from 27 any other medical treatment.

1           14. Lucia Y. Vier was diagnosed with squamous cell cancer in March 1998.
2 Her doctors have indicated that with radiation and chemotherapy treatments she may 3 live a year to a year and a half. Vier uses cannabis on the recommendation of her 4 doctor to stimulate her appetite. Without cannabis, Vier would not want to or be able 5 to eat a sufficient amount to stay alive. Vier's doctor recommended that she use 6 cannabis as a legal medical drug to stimulate her appetite and calm her. Vier's 7 doctor's recommendation conformed with the Compassionate Use Act (codified at 8 California Health and Safety Code § 11362.5). Cannabis provides Vier relief 9 unavailable from any other medical treatment.

10           15. The Members use cannabis as the only effective medical treatment for 11 their medical conditions described above. Each of the Members consulted with his or 12 her personal physician, who has recommended that the Member use cannabis based 13 upon the physician's determination that it is beneficial to the Member's health. The 14 Members have tried traditional, conventional medicines, none of which was effective 15 in treating their conditions. Each of the Members has tried cannabis and found it to 16 be the only effective treatment for his or her condition.

17           16. Each of the Members is a member of one of the cooperatives named as 18 a defendant in each of these three actions. The defendant cooperatives have served as 19 the Members' source of legal, safe and affordable cannabis upon the recommendation 20 of each Member's physician. As such, the Members are able to obtain safe, affordable 21 and legal cannabis from the defendant cooperatives during regular business hours 22 pursuant to their doctors' recommendations. If the defendant cooperatives are closed, 23 the Members will be irreparably harmed in that they will not be able to obtain 24 cannabis when it is the only effective medical treatment for them.

25           17. The Members have a fundamental right and liberty interest under the 26 Fifth Amendment to be free from governmental interdiction of their personal, self-27 funded medical choice, in consultation with their personal physician, to alleviate their 28 suffering through the only effective treatment available for them.

1 18. The Members' fundamental right in this regard is deeply rooted in this 2 nation's histories and traditions:

3 (a) The Members have a fundamental right to privacy for personal and 4 intimate decisions. These privacy rights extend to the most personal and 5 intimate decisions about life such that an individual has a right to use cannabis 6 free of governmental interdiction when such use is the only effective treatment 7 for his or her pain or disease, and no other effective alternatives are available;

8 (b) The Members have a fundamental right to bodily integrity. The right to 9 maintain one's bodily integrity extends to an individual's right to control 10 whether he or she receives medical care and the related tradition of preventing 11 governmental interference with medical care that he or she needs to control his 12 or her body, and specifically includes the right to be free from governmental 13 interdiction of the self-funded medicinal use of cannabis when it is the only 14 effective treatment for an individual's pain or disease, and no other effective 15 alternatives are available for them;

16 (c) The Members have a fundamental right to maintain the integrity of their 17 relationship with their doctors. The doctor-patient relationship historically is 18 rooted in trust and confidence. The right to maintain the integrity of one's 19 relationship with one's doctor without governmental interference includes the 20 right to speak freely with one's doctor, including both the right to discuss the 21 option of using cannabis as a medical treatment without fear of governmental 22 prosecution and the related right to be treated with cannabis when it is the only 23 effective treatment for an individual's pain or disease and no other effective 24 alternatives are available.

25 19. The Controlled Substances Act, 21 U.S.C. § 801 et seq., as it is sought 26 to be enforced in these related actions, violates the Fifth Amendment, in that it would 27 impermissibly burden the Members' fundamental rights to be free of governmental 28 interdiction of their personal, self-funded medical decisions to take the only effective

1 legal medication available to relieve their own pain and suffering, to obtain their 2 personal physicians' recommendations for appropriate medical care for serious 3 illnesses and injuries, and to take advantage of available medications for such 4 conditions recommended by their personal physicians. The federal government's 5 interference with this right is not supported by sufficiently compelling state interests to 6 justify such an intrusion on privacy, bodily integrity, and the traditional confidences 7 and the sanctity of the doctor-patient relationship, nor is it narrowly tailored to 8 effectuate any government interest which may exist. In the alternative, there is no 9 rational relationship between any legitimate governmental purpose and the means 10 chosen to achieve this purpose in these related actions.

11 20. The Controlled Substances Act and the injunction against defendants 12 entered in these related actions on May 19, 1998 is overbroad in that it does not 13 distinguish between citizens using cannabis for medical necessity when no other 14 effective medication is available and citizens using cannabis for other purposes. As 15 construed by the United States, the statute thus purports to reach self-financed life-16 saving medical treatment, in violation of the fundamental right of privacy and the 17 fundamental right to bodily integrity. In failing to make the distinction between 18 unprotected recreational acts and the government's forcing a patient involuntarily to 19 forgo life-saving medical treatment, the statute and injunction are over-inclusive and 20 therefore unconstitutional.

21 21. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between the Members, 22 on the one hand, and the United States, on the other hand, concerning their respective 23 rights under the Controlled Substances Act and the Members' fundamental rights and 24 liberty interests under the Fifth Amendment. In this regard, the Members contend 25 that:

26 a. The Members have, and at all times have had, a fundamental 27 right guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment to be free from governmental 28 interdiction of their personal, self-funded medical decisions to take the only 1 effective legal medication available to relieve their own pain and suffering, to 2 obtain their personal physicians' recommendations for appropriate medical care 3 for serious illnesses and injuries, and to take advantage of available 4 medications for such conditions as recommended by their personal physicians; 5 and 6 b. The United States cannot seek enforcement or application of the 7 Controlled Substances Act against the Members or the Oakland Coop, the 8 Marin Alliance and/or the Ukiah Coop in these related actions without violating 9 the Members' fundamental right guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment.

10 22. The Members are informed and believe and on that basis allege that the 11 United States disputes and denies the foregoing contentions and contends that the 12 Members do not have a fundamental right cognizable under the Fifth Amendment as 13 alleged and that the United States is entitled to enforce the Controlled Substances Act 14 against the Members or the Oakland Coop, the Marin Alliance and/or the Ukiah Coop 15 in these related actions.

16 23. A judicial determination of the respective rights of the Members, and 17 the Oakland Coop, the Marin Alliance and/or the Ukiah Coop, on the one hand, and 18 the United States, on the other hand, under the Controlled Substances Act is necessary 19 and proper at this time.

20 24. Pending issuance of a permanent injunction restraining enforcement of 21 the Controlled Substances Act against the Members, the Oakland Coop, the Marin 22 Alliance and/or the Ukiah Coop, there is a serious and palpable threat that the United 23 States will obstruct or attempt to hinder, prevent or seek to enjoin the Members from 24 exercising their fundamental right guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment to be free of 25 governmental interdiction of their personal, self-funded medical decisions to take the 26 only effective legal medication available to relieve their own pain and suffering, to 27 obtain their personal physicians' recommendation for appropriate medical care for 28

1 serious illnesses and injuries, and to take advantage of available medications for such 2 conditions as recommended by their personal physicians.

3 25. As a direct and proximate result of any such threatened interference in 4 the Members' exercise of such fundamental rights guaranteed under the Fifth 5 Amendment, the United States, unless restrained by this Court, will cause the 6 Members irreparable injury.

7 26. Accordingly, the Members are entitled to a preliminary injunction, and a 8 permanent injunction thereafter, restraining and enjoining the United States and its 9 agents and employees and all persons acting in concert with any of them, from 10 interfering with the Members' exercise of this fundamental right and from hindering,
11 obstructing, preventing or attempting to enjoin the Oakland Coop, the Marin Alliance, 12 the Ukiah Coop or any of the other defendants from providing the Members, or their 13 primary care givers, with safe and affordable cannabis for personal medicinal use by 14 the Member upon a physician's recommendation as permitted by Proposition 215, the 15 Compassionate Use Act of 1996 (codified at California Health and Safety Code 16 § 11362.5).

17 18 WHEREFORE, the Members pray for judgment in their favor and against the 19 United States as follows:

20 (a) For a declaration: (i) of the Members' fundamental right guaranteed 21 under the Fifth Amendment to be free from governmental interdiction of their 22 personal, self-funded medical decisions to take the only effective legal medication 23 available to relieve their own pain and suffering, to obtain their personal physicians' 24 recommendations for appropriate medical care for serious illnesses and injuries, and to 25 take advantage of available medications for such conditions as recommended by their 26 personal physicians; and (ii) that the United States cannot seek enforcement or 27 application of the Controlled Substances Act against the Members or the Oakland 28 Coop, the Marin Alliance and/or the Ukiah Coop in these related actions because it

1 would thereby violate the Members' fundamental right guaranteed under the Fifth 2 Amendment;

3 (b) For a preliminary and permanent injunction restraining and enjoining 4 the United States, and its agents and employees and all persons acting in concert with 5 any of them, from: (i) interfering with the Members' exercise of their fundamental 6 right guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment to be free from governmental interdiction 7 of their personal, self-funded medical decisions to take the only effective legal 8 medication available to relieve their own pain and suffering, to obtain their personal 9 physicians' recommendations for appropriate medical care for serious illnesses and 10 injuries, and to take advantage of available medications for such conditions as 11 recommended by their personal physicians; and (ii) hindering, obstructing, preventing 12 or attempting to enjoin the Oakland Coop, the Marin Alliance, the Ukiah Coop or any 13 of the other defendants from providing the Members, or their primary care givers, with 14 safe and affordable cannabis for personal medicinal use by the Member upon a 15 physician's recommendation as permitted by Proposition 215, the Compassionate Use 16 Act of 1996 (codified at California Health and Safety Code § 11362.5);

1 For good cause, the Court hereby orders that a protective order be entered in this action as

3 1. This Protective Order shall govern all documents, writings and testimony in this action
4 designated as "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" together with all information contained
5 therein or derived therefrom, and all copies, portions, excerpts, abstracts or summaries thereof
6 (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Information") arising from individual patient medical care
7 (including but not limited to patients' physician's names or other identifying information;
8 information concerning physician referrals to dispensaries and/or their authorizing or assenting to 9 communications, recommendations or approvals regarding medical cannabis regarding medical cannabis cannabis treatment; patient medical records or charts; physician status reports; notes made by 10 physicians, nurses, physician assistants or other medical staff, letters or reports from physicians, 11 nurses, physician assistants or other medical staff, reports of physical exams; and reports of medical 12 tests).

13 2. Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall be used solely for 14 conduct of this litigation, and not for any other purpose. Information "COVERED BY 15 PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall not be disclosed to anyone except as provided in this Protective Order.
16 In particular, Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" shall not be disclosed to any 17 employee or agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or 18 any federal, state or local law enforcement agency unless specifically provided for in this Protective 19 Order.

20 3. Notwithstanding paragraph 2, Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" 21 may be disclosed to the following persons who are participating in the conduct of this action on 22 behalf of the plaintiff after they have signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form attached hereto
23 stating their agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of this Protective Order:

- 24 United States Department of Justice
25 Frank W. Hunger, Assistant Attorney General
26 Robert S. Mueller III, United States Attorney
27 David J. Anderson
28 Arthur R. Goldberg
Mark T. Quinlivan

1 Defendants' Counsel

2 James J. Brosnahan
3 Annette P. Carnegie
4 Andrew A. Steckler
5 Christina Kirk-Kazhe
6 Robert A. Raich
7 Gerald F. Uelmen

8 Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" may also be disclosed, to the extent 9 reasonably necessary in conducting this litigation, to the secretaries, paralegal assistants, and legal 10 assistants of the above-named persons after they have signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form
11 attached hereto stating their agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of this Protective
12 Order; and to Court officials involved in this litigation (including court reporters, persons operating 13 video recording equipment at depositions, and any special master appointed by the Court). Provided 14 that the individual to whom disclosure is made has signed and sent to defendants' counsel the form
15 attached hereto stating his or her agreement to be bound and abide by the provisions of the Protective 16 Order, such Information may also be disclosed to persons noticed for depositions or designated as 17 trial or deposition witnesses to the extent reasonably necessary in preparing to testify; to such other 18 persons agreed to by defendants' counsel in writing in advance of disclosure (such agreement shall 19 not be unreasonably withheld); and to such other persons designated by the Court in the interest of 20 justice.

21 4. The inadvertent or unintentional disclosure to plaintiff or their counsel by defendants
22 or their counsel of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," regardless of whether the 23 Information was so designated at the time of disclosure, shall not be deemed a waiver in whole or in 24 part of defendants' claim that such Information is covered by this Protective Order. In the event of 25 inadvertent or unintentional disclosure of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," 26 defendants shall give prompt notification to plaintiff after learning of an inadvertent or unintentional
27 disclosure, and shall provide plaintiff with new copies of the inadvertently or unintentionally
28 produced documents, re-marked as "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER." The documents inadvertently or unintentionally produced without such designation shall then be returned promptly to defendants.

1 5. The Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., along with the Exhibit A 2 attached thereto, filed September 14, 1998, is hereby deemed by the Court to be an inadvertent or
3 unintentional disclosure of Information "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER," as described in 4 paragraph 8. As such, this Information shall be returned promptly to the defendants. Plaintiff is
5 hereby ordered to return to defendants the Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H. along
6 with the Exhibit A attached thereto, and it is ordered to return to defendants all copies made of this 7 same Information. Plaintiff is hereby further ordered to prepare and provide to the Court within 8 seven days a log of all copies made of this same Information, and to prepare and maintain a log of all
9 copies that may be made of this same Information in the future. This same Information shall be 10 deemed "COVERED BY PROTECTIVE ORDER" from and including September 14, 1998, and into 11 the future. The Court will receive, and orders served on plaintiff and all parties, the Amended 12 Declaration of Michael M. Alcalay, M.D., M.P.H., dated September 30, 1998.

14 IT IS SO ORDERED.
